BARUCH HOOPS NYU

by Alan Steinberg

After being humiliated by Pace last week, Baruch came back and swept NYU 3-0 this week in similar fashion. The keglers finally put it all together and continued in their quest for first place. Baruch avgd. 182 per man and beat NYU 945-838, 901-815, and 877-805.

Leading the attack for Baruch was Greg Jentzen who now has the league high series—652. He bowled games of 201, 203, and 248 in a fine exhibition of pocket shooting. Also contributing to Baruch's win were Walt Mademann with a 547 series and Harv Cohen with a 545 series.

Baruch is now back in second place, 1% points away from 1st place St. Johns. They take on Cooper Union this Sunday. All are invited to come down and give one of Baruch's best teams your support!

Dear Santa

Dear Aunt Eva

Dear Aunt Eva,

For the sake of this girl for 5 years, she goes to school, in bed, every day. I love her to death. I want to buy her a present. I think about getting her a toaster, but I know she already has one. I also thought about getting her a candle, but I know she already has one. Finally, I thought about getting her a necklace, but I know she already has one.

What do you think I should buy my third girl that I met at a Hillel dance. Do you think I should buy my

Consumeism and Consumer Protection

Marketing Trends

New York, N.Y. CONSUMERISM AND CONSUMER PROTECTION is the theme of the annual meeting of the American Arbitration Association and the State Bar of New York, to be held in the coming weeks. The meeting will feature a panel discussion and question and answer session on the topic of consumer protection.

A panel of distinguished marketing representatives will discuss the current state of consumer protection laws and regulations. The panelists will include attorneys, consumer advocates, and government officials. The discussion will focus on the challenges faced by consumers in today's marketplace, as well as potential solutions to these problems.

The meeting will also feature a keynote address by a well-known consumer advocate. The keynote speaker will discuss the importance of consumer protection and the role that consumers can play in advocating for their rights.

The meeting is open to the public, and all interested parties are welcome to attend.

The American Arbitration Association has a long tradition of advocating for consumer rights and protecting consumers from unfair business practices. The organization is committed to ensuring that consumers have access to fair and equitable resolution processes for their disputes.

The State Bar of New York is actively involved in consumer protection efforts, and has a dedicated Consumer Protection Committee to promote the interests of consumers and ensure fair and just outcomes in all consumer disputes.

Both the American Arbitration Association and the State Bar of New York are committed to upholding consumer rights and ensuring that consumers are treated fairly in all transactions. The upcoming meeting is an opportunity for consumers to learn more about the issues facing them and to participate in the effort to protect their rights.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:
A recent article has revealed that the lives of some students are being affected by their involvement in extracurricular activities. I agree with the statement that students should not be forced to choose between their academic responsibilities and their personal interests.

I believe that extracurricular activities provide valuable experiences that prepare students for the future. These activities can help students develop skills that are not taught in the classroom, such as leadership, teamwork, and time management.

Moreover, extracurricular activities can also be a source of stress for students. The pressure to excel in both academic and extracurricular pursuits can be overwhelming, and it is important for students to find a healthy balance.

In conclusion, I believe that extracurricular activities should be encouraged and supported by schools. However, it is also important to ensure that students are not put under unnecessary pressure to participate in these activities.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

Another Face

By Barbara Fink

In the不经, when the Peter, suddenly burst into a loud laughter. He had been silent for some time. His eyes were bright and his face was flushed. His friends were围, smiling and laughing. The air was filled with the sound of their voices. Peter looked at them, and then back at the mirror. He couldn't believe it. He had never seen himself look this way before.

Peter had been feeling down lately. He had lost his job and was struggling to make ends meet. But tonight, he was feeling lighter. He had decided to go out and have some fun. He had never been one to let his problems get him down.

Peter's friends were excited to see him. They had been missing him and were happy to have him back. They talked and laughed, and the night seemed to go on forever.

Peter felt a sense of contentment. He had forgotten about his problems for the night. He was happy to be with his friends, and he knew that they were happy to have him back.

As the night wore on, Peter and his friends talked about their lives and their dreams. They laughed and joked, and the night seemed to go on forever.

Peter looked at his friends and smiled. He knew that he was lucky to have such good friends. He was grateful for their support and their love.

As the night drew to a close, Peter and his friends said goodbye. Peter felt a sense of sadness. He knew that he would miss his friends and their company. But he was also excited for the future, and he knew that he would see them again soon.

Peter walked home, feeling happy and content. He knew that he had a lot to be thankful for, and he was grateful for the people in his life. He looked forward to the future, and he knew that he would make the most of it.
