A CASE OF BIAS

In the January 4, 1971, issue of the Hunter College Bulletin, a report story came from a campus official. It concerned an effort to determine lines along which faculty progress toward a tenure track could be measured. The story was based on an extensive study of the tenure and recall of faculty members of the college.

The report claimed that the study was conducted by the Hunter College Faculty Senate, which had the authority to make recommendations on the matter. However, it was later revealed that the study was conducted by the Hunter College Faculty Senate, which had the authority to make recommendations on the matter.

The study was conducted by the Hunter College Faculty Senate, which had the authority to make recommendations on the matter.

The Hunter Faculty Senate was elected by the senate and will serve for a three-year term. Students, faculty, or administration members of the college community are eligible for the office.

The student body of The Bernard M. Baruch College is the student body of The Bernard M. Baruch College. The student body has the right to determine lines along which faculty progress toward a tenure track could be measured.
