To GARY:

WASHINGTON D.C., January 26, 1971.

I have been thinking about your letter of January 15th, in which your fraternity members will be presented to the Senate of the University. I believe that it would be a good idea to pass a resolution that they be given a reception in the Senate chambers in the hope of allaying any "gripes" that they have. It may also be possible to arrange for them to spend some time in the Senate chamber and to ask them to discuss their programs. It is thought that they would be interested in meeting the students of the University and that they would be interested in discussing their programs. It is also thought that they would be interested in meeting the faculty and students of the University. It is thought that they would be interested in discussing their programs. It is also thought that they would be interested in meeting the faculty and students of the University.

Sincerely yours,

Robert M. Johnson

There is a Better Way and It's Happening Now

The authors of this article have written it to help people understand and support the movement that is seeking to bring about a better way of life for all people. This movement is based on the belief that the current system of power and wealth is unjust and oppressive, and that a more just and inclusive system can be created through collective action.

The road back is with the people who are willing to fight for a better way of life. We all need to be part of this movement, and we can all make a difference. Let's work together to create a better world for everyone.
COMMENTS:

The previous term, "Ticker" will not be making any endorsements for the candidates in the election. This decision was reached not to avoid any ethical work, but rather because recent events have shown that this is not the best interest of the students as a whole. As an editorial, "Ticker" would like to see the students of the college, and especially those who are running for office, to vote according to their conscience. We hope that the candidates will receive positive encouragement from the students of the college and that they will not be swayed by the endorsements of the "Ticker". We urge you to vote according to your conscience and not according to the endorsements of the "Ticker".

COMMENTS:

The previous term, "TICKER" was not making any endorsements for the candidates in the election. This decision was reached not to avoid any added work, but rather because recent events have shown that this is not in the best interest of those running, as well as the student body at large. As it was just announced that "TICKER" will make endorsements, we urge you to go through this carefully.

As the second quarter approached the question of who should receive these endorsements was decided. The decision was reached after thorough research and consideration of the candidates. The decision was made to endorse candidates who have demonstrated their commitment to the students and the college, and who have the best interests of the students at heart.

We hope you will take the time to read these endorsements carefully and make your own decision based on the information provided.

Once again, we urge you to read these endorsements carefully and make your own decision based on the information provided.
Chairman

To the Student Body:
I have received your letter expressing concern about the lack of communication between the various student agencies and the faculty and administration. I understand the importance of clear communication for the effective functioning of our institution.

As a student leader, I believe it is crucial to foster an environment of open dialogue and collaboration. It is through such dialogue that we can address the concerns and needs of all members of our community.

I am committed to ensuring that Communication, Education, and the Needs of the Students are prioritized. I advocate for the establishment of regular faculty-student forums to discuss important issues and initiatives.

I amlooking forward to working with all stakeholders to create a more inclusive and transparent operating environment. Thank you for your continued support.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

I, Brian Harvey, hereby make a solemn promise to the Baruch community. My Senate are fourfold: promise all my efforts and a student participative in my goals in joining the Student government. If I am elected, I hereby guarantee a movement in this area in student affairs in high and creative instrumental force in the Baruch vicinity. My qualifications are: I was very active in student affairs in high school and also in political the New York community.

I was very active in student affairs in high school and also in political the New York community. If I am elected, I assure you I shouldn't the Baruchian be able to obtain more effective and integrity to keep the initial step in changing Baruch.

These include business commitments, a life of the Baruch College community, and not take the freshman class of the Baruch community. My promise to the Baruch community is promises to make, but much in- the Baruch have given sufficient qualifications to make the Baruch body as a whole. If I am elected, I would like to be a part of it.
Hi

I was recently asked by a television executive to come up with an idea for a TV series. The situation was this: the network was looking for a new series to fill a slot in their schedule. I thought about it and came up with a concept that revolves around a family of five. The father is a classical composer, the mother is a Impressionist painter, the oldest daughter is a high school graduate, the younger daughter is a child prodigy, and the son is a university student. The series would focus on the family's daily life, their interactions, and their artistic endeavors. The concept was well-received and the network ordered it as a pilot episode. I'm excited to see where this goes.
The End of 25?

by Marty Klohm

First of all, there's a chance it can happen. While the 15-year-old WNBC owner never did get what he wanted in the first place, he now has a number of people in many parts of the country who are willing to help him. He has been told that anywhere between 15 and 35 percent of the WNBC audience is on his side. This number was confirmed by a recent poll, and it is estimated that as many as 50 percent of WNBC's audience are also against 25. As a result, the possibility of a last-minute deal being struck between the two sides cannot be ruled out. For now, however, it appears that there will be an agreement and the station will continue to be owned by WNBC.

Another reason 25 may not ép out is that it would be a business disaster for the station. As one source explained, "If we were to continue to operate under the current conditions, we would soon be forced to shut down."

The news of the agreement was met with mixed reactions by the public. Some were pleased with the outcome, while others were concerned about the possibility of a new owner taking over the station. One listener said, "I'm glad it's over, but I'm worried about what will happen next."

A number of people have already started calling the station to express their support for the agreement. One caller said, "I'm happy that we're going to keep our station. It's such an important part of our community."

For now, the station's future looks bright. With the agreement in place, it appears that WNBC will continue to bring its unique programming to the airwaves for years to come.

Bennett Dances to Strauss' Waltz

by Stephen Tack

"Good evening New York. How are you? May I have your attention, please?"

The audience at Lincoln Center got a chance to hear a little-known piece of music when Bennett selected Strauss' Waltz for his dance performance. The piece, which is often played at galas and charity events, was well received by the crowd.

Bennett's dance was elegant and graceful, with a touch of humor. As he moved across the dance floor, the audience couldn't help but smile. The dance ended with Bennett holding a flower, which he presented to the audience.

In his commentary, Bennett said, "This is a special occasion for me. Strauss' Waltz is one of my favorite pieces of music. I hope you enjoyed it as much as I did."

The evening was a success, and Bennett received many compliments on his dance. He is planning to perform Strauss' Waltz again in the future.

The acting, of course, is exceptional. The entire cast gives its best, and the performances are natural and engaging. The beautiful costumes and sets add to the overall atmosphere of the film.

The direction of Patrick Fellows is also notable, with a crisp and energetic style that enhances the story. The performances are universal and universal, with a particular attention to detail.

The film's full of symbolism and material for the intellectual mind. The acting is, as expected, wonderful and the performances are exceptional. It can be enjoyed by anyone, regardless of age or gender.

The following review was written by William D. Bennett, who hopes will become a permanent member of our film staff: "I have seen this film several times and each time it leaves me in awe. The acting, direction, and cinematography are all outstanding. The film is one of the best I have ever seen and I highly recommend it to everyone."

Night Visitor is a film that will leave you thinking and questioning. It is a masterpiece of filmmaking and deserves to be seen by as many people as possible.
