Peel Concert a Disaster

The Concert

by Susan Schulze

Last Thursday, March 2, 1972 a concert was sponsored by Student Government featuring David Peel and the Lower East Side. The concert was to be held from 11:00 until midnight. However, a lot of things have to be taken care of before a concert can be put on. It was realized that the people involved in setting up the concert and getting the show on the road had to realize or do anything about it. David Peel had been asked to come at 11:30 and was due by 11:50. This was a pretty good timing, however, considering the rest of his group did not arrive until 1:00. This was not the only source of friction. We must give Peel credit. The maintenance department at Student Center had had their hands full in the past few days and did not start setting down until 11:45 and by 11:50 they were nowhere close to getting the stage ready. We need not go over the story of how Peel appeared almost an hour late. The extra work and preparations caused by a few of his guitarists and it was a little embarrassing for them to be unable to perform. On the other hand, they were a little embarrassed by the amount of work they had to do. He needed a minute. He needed little that worked. He didn’t need a minute. He needed little that worked. He didn’t need a minute. He needed little that worked. He didn’t need a minute.

The Apple Records group was promised the use of certain Student Center equipment, for which reason they did not bring their own PA system. However, the speakers and microphones that were supplied proved to be inefficient. Furthermore, the equipment was not delivered in the Marble Lounge until after the audience had checked-in. It should have been made, at least on time, before the start of the show on both ends.

Peel engaged himself in a monologue verbally destroying the Baruch administration interspersed with his thoughts about drugs and revolution. He rantings about Baruch, however, were not entirely without merit. The audience was relatively light which was probably due to the fact that most of the student members of the committee didn’t give a damn about what is going to happen.

The meeting was chaired by William R. Monell, Dean of Personnel, who, along with President Wingfield, had gone to Albany this past week. In JUIN FOR BARUCH, Dean Monell spoke of coming back with four proposals from Albany and they are:

1. The efforts by the students that Peels and Potter’s that they are doing with the Baruch Students Classes and CUNY—their action to the students, parents etc.
2. To put a limit on credits taken by students per semester.
3. If there is a limit on credits, it would prevent students from being able to continue in the same group.
4. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
5. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
6. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
7. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
8. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
9. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.

There was more said about point four and it was said that “What has to be done has to be done.” Put more pressure on the legislators than they are getting now, which is minute amount. Some legislators haven’t even been pressured at all.

The Board of Higher Education, which rules CUNY, has given some alternatives if they don’t get the money that they are asking for. They are as follows:

1. To prevent reappointments and hirings.
2. To put a limit on credits taken by students per semester.
3. If there is a limit on credits, it would prevent students from being able to continue in the same group.
4. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
5. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
6. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
7. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
8. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.
9. To put a limit in credits and seminars and Bursar’s Service.

AMA Holds Career Conference in an effort to help marketing students gain a better understanding of the American Marketing Association, 50 students attended an AMA round table and reception on Thursday, March 2, 1972. The group was hosted by the American Marketing Association, New York Chapter and the St. John’s University marketing department. The event was attended by the American Marketing Association, New York Chapter and the St. John’s University marketing department. The event was attended by President Clyde Wingfield, and other members of the administration, including the president of the student body, Robert Parker. The AMA Faculty Advisor, reported, that the students arrived early, and that they were impressed with the speakers and the format of the event. A musical evening in an atmosphere of music and merriment was enjoyed by a large number of students last night. The program consisted of a variety of musical numbers and was well received by the audience. The concert was arranged by the University Student Senate (USS) and the Music Club. It was held in the Student Center, and the attendees were treated to a delightful evening of music.

The Background

The University Student Senate (USS) and the University Music Club have been working together on this project for several weeks. They have received a number of suggestions and recommendations from the student body, and they have worked hard to ensure that the concert will be a success. The program includes a range of musical styles, from classical to contemporary, and there will be soloists and duets as well as larger ensembles.

The concert will be held on March 10 at 8:00 P.M. in the Auditorium of the 24th Street Campus. Tickets are available at the USS office for $2 each. All proceeds will go towards the USS Scholarship Fund, which helps students who are facing financial difficulties.

For more information, please contact the USS office at 123-4567 or visit their website at www.uus.org.
THE OUTSIDER

"Fruit of the Vine"

by Martin Friedlander

The Outsider - a series of stories based on the experiences of a young man named Steve, who is trying to find his place in the world.

Steve has been ostracized by his peers because he is different. He is a liberal, and many of his classmates are conservative. Steve is also a vegetarian, and his classmates are all meat-eaters. Despite these differences, Steve tries to find common ground with his peers.

One day, Steve's friend, John, introduces him to a new group of people. They are a group of activists who are fighting for social justice. Steve is drawn to their ideas, and he starts to attend their meetings. He quickly becomes one of their leaders, and he begins to inspire others to join the movement.

As Steve becomes more involved in the struggle for justice, he begins to realize that he is not alone. There are many people who share his beliefs, and they are willing to fight for a better world. Steve is excited by this discovery, and he is determined to make a difference.

Despite the challenges he faces, Steve never gives up. He continues to work tirelessly for the causes he believes in, and he inspires others to do the same. In the end, Steve becomes a symbol of hope, and he shows that even in the darkest of times, there is always a glimmer of light.

Looking at Lib

by RHONDA BUNTEN

My attitude toward the feminist movement has always been strongly negative. Inside my self I have always felt that the movement, if it did nothing else, represented a definite threat to the stability of the family. Women are not pleading for a role in society. They are多万是's a movement, and, unless we want to consider it a menace, it is a movement that we must get into our heads and try to understand.

The Outsider

by JUDE BERNSTEIN

The Outsider is a novel that is richly metaphorical and poetic. The story is told through the eyes of a young boy, Jack, who is living with his family in a small town. The town is depicted as a place of endless possibilities, full of characters who are struggling to find their place in the world.

The novel explores themes of identity, family, and the search for meaning. The language is beautiful and the characters are vividly drawn. The Outsider is a book that will stay with you long after you have finished reading it.

personally drives me to write this reply is the fact that 1) I cannot see irresponsibility continue un-noticed, 2) see students get a kick in the rear when they should not, and 3) watch the students funds supplied to SEEK being misused upon improper and non-existent employment. I feel bad that I had replied in this manner to Professor Smith, whom I greatly respect for his efforts. Both he and myself are in the same ballgame, trying to make things work more efficiently and honestly. We must try even harder this fall. I'm happy I ended this letter on a brighter note than Mr. Elder or Professor Smith had.

Letters to the Editor:
Candidate Cares
Dear Rosa Cerrato and TICKER, I am a candidate for the Office of Sophomore Representative in the Spring election. I'm writing this letter in reference to your article entitled "The Elections are Comming: Where Are The Candidates?" I quote from this story you stated, "Of the forty one (41) candidates, Michael Fishbein was the only candidate who cared enough to show up. Where are the rest?" I was in the snack bar for fifteen minutes from 11:30 on and saw only a few students eating lunch.
After staring at the soda machine, who by the way wasn't interested in the elections at all, I left as I had other commitments.

Another point is that I feel that just because candidates didn't show this shouldn't imply he doesn't care. I'm idealistic enough to think that anyone who is willing to run for office does care to some degree. Many candidates are involved in other extracurricular activities that hold events during class hours. Many students also have Thursday off and a shitty box in the back of TICKER isn't sufficient notice to make plans. Candidates should have received letters in the mail and students should have been notified by flyers.
If this forum was in earnest, advance notice should have been given.

Yours,
Kevin Dubrow

During the past week I had the disasterous experience of attending what was known as the
"Baruch College Student Center Space Allocation meeting." I use the word disastrous not to describe the meeting itself but to describe the present situation regarding the lack of space in TICKER. I have great expectations for this meeting. They had hoped for larger rooms which would better themselves as an organization.
This in turn, would further Baruch College as a whole in moving towards establishing a Baruch College Community. Clubs at the very minimum hoped to retain the rooms they had been allocated in the past. Unfortunately as we were so find out, this could not be reality.

This meeting came as a crushing blow to several clubs. Clubs which previously had their own rooms were not to be shared by many other clubs. In certain examples cubicles which can only seat four to five people are now shared by three and four clubs. This meeting not only blocked several clubs from functioning properly, but had further reinforced and proved the lack of space in Baruch College.
I would like to quote what had been written in the editorial of last week's edition of TICKER. " Clubs need space. They need privacy.
They need room to grow. They need the pride, self respect, and responsibility that goes along with taking care of an office. Clubs need space, and they need it now.

The present situation can be considered as a test to see whether or not clubs can be more than social organizations. They have a unique opportunity to show the entire Baruch College Community that they are worthy of their existence."

The first action shall be: On Thursdays, March 9, 1972 there shall be an EMERGENCY MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF CLUB-PRESIDENTS. Any students who are interested, in joining towards applying pressure for space to the SHE, PLEASE BE THERE.
WE SHALL SEIZE THIS OPPORTUNITY!!
