Sandra Hochman is a writer, a painter, and a sculptor. She writes about people, landscapes, and other things she observes. Her writing is filled with amazing detail and she can bring things to life that others might consider irrelevant or insignificant. She gives meaning to what she sees. She observes the world and things around her, every shape and every event. Her fruits are constantly changing shapes. Sandra Hochman is a spy. She spy's on her own words and watches them come alive. She gives life to what is written. She creates a world that is unique and beautiful.

Miss Hochman read an excerpt from one of her works and managed to give the listener a feeling of the writer's life with the words she spoke. It was the English Department's first poetry reading and the audience was captivated by the words spoken. After the reading Miss Hochman gave a talk on teaching and writing. She shared her advice on how to become a successful writer, and she encouraged the audience to keep writing. The involvement of the United States in the war in Vietnam, since 1965, was discussed. The war has affected many Americans, and the discrimination of being black or a Vietnamese has been a major issue. The war has also affected the perception of what it should be, a conventional car and a father sitting in it. The war has enabled man to walk on its surface. A system which uses the same concept to make a car go faster has been invented.

ROBERT BARRATT

President of the College explained the situation to the students and faculty present. The President was followed by two black students, who then proceeded to talk about the fact that this was a black campus and that the students were demanding more rights and a greater say in the running of the school. The President then went on to say that he had received many letters from students and faculty and that he was going to listen to them. The students then proceeded to give a lecture on the history of the college and how it had been founded.

One Light...
I had originally assumed that the success of our first public performance would only accrue to the performers. I was wrong. I was not prepared for the intense and overwhelming response the performance received. Not only did the audience show appreciation for the performers, but they also expressed their support for the cause. The event was a turning point for us, and we have decided to continue performing to raise awareness about the issue.

Dear Sir/Lady

I would like to express my concern about the current state of the Freshman Orientation program at Baruch College. I believe that the program is failing to meet its objectives and that improvements need to be made.

Firstly, I would like to say that the current Freshman Orientation program is not effective in providing students with the necessary information and guidance. The sessions are too brief and do not cover all the important topics and issues that freshmen need to know. The program is also not interactive and does not encourage active participation from students.

Secondly, the Freshman Orientation program is not well-organized, and the information provided is not consistent. The sessions are scheduled at inconvenient times, and the venue is not accessible to all students. Moreover, the program is not inclusive and does not cater to the needs of different students.

Lastly, the Freshman Orientation program is not supported by the faculty and staff. The sessions are not well-prepared, and the faculty and staff are not enthusiastic about the program. The program is also not evaluated and improved regularly.

I would appreciate it if you could address these concerns and consider implementing improvements to the Freshman Orientation program. Thank you for your time and attention.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
