Dear Andrew Franklin,

I read your column, “The Outsider” in the Ticker, and I must confess that I find it a bit much intrusive and often filled with inconsequential pieces that you write. Although I understand your attempt to convey our message to you in the most effective way possible, I feel that this time you have not succeeded. You mention that you are looking for a clearer racist stance than Franklin's. I have to say that you have not succeeded in this. We are deeply grateful for the “Outsider” or any other column to unforgetable character. Uncle Morris will be the subject.

Firstly, I must point out that I have been a student at Baruch for several years, and I have not found your column to be a reliable source of information. As a student, I have found that the information I receive from the administration is often distorted and misleading. I believe that it is important for students to have access to accurate and reliable information, and I feel that your column does not provide this.

Secondly, I believe that it is important for students to have a voice in the decision-making process that affects them. As a student, I have the right to be heard and to participate in the decision-making process. I feel that your column does not provide this opportunity.

I must also point out that your column often contains inaccuracies and misrepresentations. For example, you mention that Franklin has a racist stance. However, I do not believe this to be the case. Franklin has always been a proponent of diversity and inclusion, and I believe that his stance is more nuanced than you suggest.

I must also mention that I believe that your column is often overly critical and negative. I believe that it is important for students to have a positive and supportive environment in which to learn and grow. I feel that your column does not provide this.

I must also mention that I believe that your column is often overly critical and negative. I believe that it is important for students to have a positive and supportive environment in which to learn and grow. I feel that your column does not provide this.

I must also mention that I believe that your column is often overly critical and negative. I believe that it is important for students to have a positive and supportive environment in which to learn and grow. I feel that your column does not provide this.

I hope that you will consider these points in your future columns. I believe that it is important for students to have a voice in the decision-making process that affects them. I believe that your column can be improved if you take these points into consideration.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
