

Honors Program Gets Under Way

by Robert Barrett

"For some time to come," said David Rudolph, Chairman of the Committee on the Undergraduate Honors Program, "it will be difficult for most departments to offer courses in honors work with full registration on a regular basis. Every department, however, may now have a limited number of students who are ready for honors study under supervision, and who might be encouraged to pursue their interests in a structured honors program.

To meet the needs of these students, the Committee has devised a way in which honors programs can be conducted. Each Department is to establish its own criteria and supervise its own students. It will recommend the student who satisfactorily completes the program, generally four to nine credits in the appropriate field, for the appropriate Dean for a degree with honors in his major.

The purpose of honors courses is to enable especially capable students to pursue intensive work under the guidance of selected instructors. The instruction is conducted so as to give the student a wide range of initiative and independence and responsibility.

To be awarded a degree with special honors, the candidate must satisfactorily complete the number of credits specified by the department in which he is doing his honors work, and must obtain the grade of A in all the work which he pursues as an honors student. The award of the degree at commencement shall specify the department of field of study in which the candidate has satisfactorily completed his work for special honors.

Honors involve individual assignments, independent research or creative work, as well as advanced and intensive study.

Departmental honors committees will designate honors students for participation in their department's work in their respective departments.

The following regulations shall apply:

1. The number of credits to be granted for an individual honors assignment shall be determined by the appropriate honors committee.
2. No candidate for special honors shall be allowed to take more than six honors credits in one semester.
3. The departmental honors committee shall be the sole judge of the achievement of the student in his honors work and, in case of disputes to attach the honors standard, to grade the work of the department and to assign the number of credits to be granted.

Interested students should contact with the appropriate department or with members of the appropriate committee for more information.

Jimmy Collier and Sweet Medicine, who held a concert in the Terrace Room of the Baruch Freshman Center on Thursday, February 23, presented a unique mixture of soul and folk music. Their repertoire included performers who were not unknown in type of music that would be presented best. Their song selection, like "Zip-pa-de-doo-da" done in rock, a working song, was a song participated in by singing "HUMPI" (Man And Nature United in National Enterprise) which is devoted to the theme of man in relation to his environmental living space, the world in the song "I Am An Animal," which contains a brotherhood to be just for people, and should be shared among all living things, "Sharing is one of the most beautiful kinds of love, Minerals share the world. Speech Dept's Levy at Poetry Recital

by Kevin Howard Dubrow

Professor Louis Levy, Chairman of the Speech Department, held a poetry recital this past Thursday afternoon in the Pulitzer 66th Street Building. Attendance was over 50 students, administrators, and faculty.

Professor Levy was introduced by Professor Service of the Speech Department, who cited his meritorious 40 years of service as Professor. Professor Levy has received many honors in his career, including the Rome Prize, an award from his undergraduate poetry reading day at City College, and the Faculty Service Award in 1962. In his faculty member who has contributed the most to the life of the College, the departmental awards at Baruch. Professor Service told of his three decades of producing special and direct works at Baruch through the Theatre troupe.

Professor Levy read fourteen selections that moved the audience to tears and to deep reflection for others. The opening selection was from "Good Morning and "saw an excellent choice for an opening selection with its poem and to determine the theme for the afternoon. The next piece was from "Good Night," and how "one man and the women and one woman did it." The last piece was from "Good Work," how 12 and how "one man and the women and one woman did it." To Paula: Thank You. Love Joyce.

To Woopsiq and Wanda: Thanks.

To Irene: Thanks.

We found that people who had a "hot line" had a problem to work on that was more than being unable to find a job. The hotline has been aiding students in whatever difficulty they might be having.

But Club Charters will probably be used, if one reaches a high enough level. The Baruch Hot Line is like a Greek organization in that it is not very original and does not seem so lonely at times. It is not very original or necessarily needed time to work for the organization.

And all other organizations involved in the student body, the time, and the use of preventive detention.

The question now is can Day Session put aside dub for the enjoyment of all Day Session students, not just your own persona? In the 24m Street Building, the renovations should have been completed in October. Again, as with nothing new, students safety is being overlooked. Next it was set for February—until the latest above their actual needs, which is vacation. Let's Clean Up The Mess and faculty.

The renovation of the Student Center was supposed to be finished in December. We are presently asking that the renovation of the Student Center be completed as soon as possible. "A Reconciliation Of The Ages"

When one examines the difference in ideas between the older and newer generations, one finds that they are entirely different. Their ideas are so different that certain very direct relations cannot be seen that is, that which was not known before cannot be seen, and that which was not known before cannot be seen.

A new level of understanding has been reached in this field of study. The new generation is already at work. They do not understand, very easily, the language of the older generation.

QUESTIONS

- Supposedly, 'The Prophet' by Gibran, seems to me to be using a tone of the older generation.
- Sometimes, in the middle of making a speech, the speaker's words seem to be falling due to this reasoning.
- My opinion is that the reader, who is younger, must be able to understand the words of the older generation.

Since this has happened on several occasions, it has become necessary to learn the proper way of dealing with a particular girl.

ANSWER

It is my opinion that you are communicating with the beginning of a process of reconciliation. Your actions may disrupt your ability to communicate.

The answers to questions reflect a basis for the exchanges of ideas between people from many different points of view. Should they be different, it is possible that they may be different. Reconciliation can be achieved if one never gets to understand what other people are talking about.

With a week in my heart,

Baruch 12-5 After Beating John Jay, Fisher

The basketball team kept rolling along last week picking up two impressive victories over John Jay, 66-46, and St. John Fisher, 77-64, at the 69th Regiment Armory to run its record to 12-5. The regular season ends this afternoon with the Statesmen visiting New York Maritime in a 4:30 start.

The victory over St. John Fisher was one of the biggest this season. The Rochester, N.Y. team had a 15-4 record to Baruch's 9-6. At the 69th Regiment Armory to visiting New York Maritime in a Jay game. Scott Charney, a 6-6 forward, moved into the starting lineup and picked up the slack. He scored 12 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to match Cary Jordan's rebound figure, tops in the game. Mark Stein, the senior co-captain, also came up with a fine game. He replaced Comboy as the middle man on defense and was strong offensively. He hit 7 of 13 shots and wound up with 16 points.

John Adams paced the attack with 19 points and added seven assists. He beat his man consistently and then fed off to the open man for an easy basket. Jimmy Holman and Adams controlled the ball in the final minutes to prevent John Fisher from closing the gap. Baruch led 39-30 at the half and opened up a 52-33 lead five minutes into the second half. Only some poor free shot prevented the margin from going higher. Baruch was just 19 of 46 from the charity line.
