Special Ed. Program May Begin In Fall

The Department of Education and Psychology have jointly proposed a new program, "Special Education and Habilitative Services," leading to a B.S. in Education with a major in Psychology. The program aims to train teachers and other habilitative service professionals for work with mentally retarded, physically handicapped and emotionally disturbed children and adults, and for work with children with specific learning disabilities.

The program has been approved by the Baruch College School of Education and by the CUNY Committee on Coordination of Teacher Education, and is now before the Board of Higher Education. If passed by the Board, the program will begin in Fall, 1974. Present Freshman who are interested in beginning the program should register this semester for a section of Education 40 which is especially designated for Special Education students. Sophomores who are interested should make an appointment to see Professor Gold in the Education Department.

This program promises to be an exciting addition to the offerings of both the Education and Psychology Departments. It will, in addition, offer new career opportunities for Baruch students, and contribute toward the help of many children and adults for whom services have not been adequate.

All students wishing to attend summer session must file an application at the Registrar's Office (2nd Floor, 34th St.) by May 1.

Letters To The Editor

April 4, 1976

Dear Editor,

I was interested to read the recent article on the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, which mentioned that the organization was founded in 1851. However, I believe that the statement that the organization was founded in 1847 is incorrect. The American Academy of Arts and Sciences was actually founded in 1847, as stated in its official history. I hope you can correct this error in the future.

Sincerely,
