Retailers Buy It In the Alley

Wheeling and dealing was the name of the game on Wednesday, October 30th, when the Retailing Society sponsored the Alley Fair.

According to spokesmen for the group the purposes of the event were the demonstration of retailing techniques and for the members of the Baruch College community to participate and enjoy the festivities. Among the items up for sale were blouses, sweaters, costume jewelry, record albums, convenience foods and the like. Some of the items were first-hand while many were in second-hand, but saleable, condition.

The Fair was well attended and most of the students who stopped for a look seemed to appreciate the idea. The proceeds totalled over $800.00 and the success of the event has prompted the idea of another in front of the Main Building on 23rd Street.

The reason for the selection of the alley between the Main Building and the Student Center was its resemblance to open markets on some city streets.

Theft at 360 P.A.S.

On Wednesday, October 23rd at approximately 10 a.m., Professor Bryant Hayes of the English Department finished teaching a class and returned to his office on the 18th floor of 360 Park Avenue South. He discovered an apparent burglary in progress.

He found an intruder in his office. Mr. Hayes asked the man what he was doing there, and he claimed to be a maintenance man from the building. After being asked, the man flashed an I.D. card in front of Mr. Hayes. After further discussion an altercation ensued. During an escape attempt, the intruder bit Mr. Hayes, who subsequently received treatment at the college medical office. Security was called, and a female security guard arrived. The burglar was taken downstairs for identification purposes, and managed to escape.

Mr. Hayes and other members of his department feel there is a serious security problem at 360 Park Avenue South, and they do not feel it is safe to leave anything valuable (including books) in their offices overnight. This was the fourth burglary or burglary attempt of his office since Mr. Hayes was assigned to it last spring. Some members of the department question the quality of guards from guard agencies and would prefer to see a more direct contractual arrangement. However, Mr. Max Linden, Director of Security at the college, points out that budgetary restraints prevent him from hiring college employees as guards at this time.

Mr. Linden admits that there have been a number of “thefts” at 360 Park, but states that corrective measures have been taken. There have been numerous changes of personnel since the beginning of this academic year, and all personnel have been carefully screened. The number of security guards assigned to Baruch’s space in 360 Park has been increased, and stricter supervision of the guards has been instituted.

The effectiveness of these measures can only be judged by the number of times that occur in that area from now on. Mr. Linden says that cooperation of faculty members is needed; they should make sure their offices are securely locked when they leave.

THE students, the faculty and the people at large are in awe of the new development at the City University of New York, particularly at Baruch College. What do they say about the new development? That it is a turning point, where they had "just a tiny bit of a feeling for themselves." Above all, they have learned that they are not in control of their destiny, that they are subject to the whims of others.

and Duplicating Services of the Wrestling Travesty

by BOB LIPSON

If you stay home as I do most Saturday nights, you find yourself either reading a book, listening to the Top 40, or watching T.V. Such contemporary classics of the t.v. shows these days include Mary Tyler Moore, Paul Sand, Archie and Edith, Kwan Chang, the movie, and the ever-present news on Channel 5 of who got mugged, murdered, raped, etc., or the combination of the three, followed by Dr. Martin Abend's commentary on our "permissive society." Saturdays have become boring here.

One of the entertaining aspects of Saturday television is Channel 67 on the Island, and its airing of the syndicated "Championship Wrestling" at 7:30. It's a joke, while also being somewhat of a sociological phenomenon: It has sociological implications because wrestling has a loyal following predominantly lower-middle or lower-class, as a recent visit to the Garden revealed, who take the action as a sociological phenomenon. It's basically taken to be something of a relief, a temporary escape from the reality of their lives. The participants, both men and women, are not taken seriously, except for a few, such as Bruno Samartino or Pedro Morales, among others, and loathe the bad-guys i.e. the Valiant Morales, among others, and loathe the "permissive society." Dr. Martin Abend's commentary on the "permissive society."

SPORTS

Fem Volley

by OLMPHIA MIHAJLIDIS

Among all the exciting sports available to athletically inclined students, wrestling has been changing and gaining popularity in recent years. Women's wrestling has developed into a highly skillful and competitive sport, requiring a high degree of skill, concentration, strategy and physical conditioning. Until this year, the female students of Baruch could only participate as spectators in this or any other sport, if they did not feel confident enough to compete with men. Women's equality has finally penetrated the century-old stone walls of 17 Lexington Avenue as female students of Baruch have achieved a major breakthrough in equal opportunities with the male students. You guessed it! A women's varsity volleyball team has now been established in Baruch.

The volleyball team was held during the week of September 21 and was seeded to November 15. Basically all that is required of the women trying out for the team is interest in the sport. Commitment to attend practice three days a week for two hours a day, and a pair of sneakers. Coach Peggy Jaeger of the Physical Education Department, said she was disappointed by the lack of interest shown by the female students. She hopes that more women will join the team in the future.

"Apology" said Jaeger "may not be the only reason girls are not showing up. It could also be that many women do not know about it."
