Budget Cuts To Hit CUNY Baruch To Lose More Than A Million

Mayor Beame has requested that City University Chancellor Robert J. Kibbee pare the CUNY budget by $14 million. Taking into account lost state matching funds the total expected cutback reaches $28 million. As far as can be determined Baruch College will be forced to cut between $1.5 and $1.7 million.

TICKER has since learned that an unofficial order has been put into effect that students should not depend upon elective courses for Spring 1975 semester schedules. Some elective courses may be cancelled for lack of funds between the registration period and the start of the Spring semester. In addition the college has been forced to stand an increase in its accrual rate to 7%.

MCW Stage Theatraganza

Once again the musical/comedy workshop is hard at work. This year faculty advisor Jack Light has initiated a new idea. The students in the workshop are putting the show together by dint of their own efforts with minimal supervision from Light. It is truly "their own thing."

Many of you have seen the posters around school for Theatraganza, an original revue of musical/comedy. The show, from the student conferences to be held in Student Center officials are

Legal Confab Held by USS

One of the most successful student-conferences to be held in many years took place November 8, 9, and 10 when more than 250 students from 32 states gathered at the International Hotel at Kennedy Airport to attend the First National Conference on Student Legal Rights.

The vending-machine area of the Student Center was the site of a break-in and robbery sometime over the weekend TICKER has learned. Extensive damage was done to the machines themselves. Glass and broken metal littered the floor. In addition, the bolt on the double doors guarding the 104 complex had been torn off.

No estimate has been made of the amount of money stolen.

The conference was specially designed to provide a practical "nuts-and-bolts" approach to the problem of legal rights as it relates to today's college student. Workshops conducted by dozens of attorneys and experts in the various subject areas were combined with addresses by guest speakers in an attempt to equip students with necessary expertise to develop legal programs on their own campuses.

CUNY Chancellor Robert J. Kibbee welcomed the students and cited the City University's free tuition and open admission programs as vital to the rights of students in New York. Keynote speaker, Les Whitten, columnist and associate director of The Media Institute, urged students to seek financial disclosure from their college presidents and boards of trustees. Issues covered during the conference included Student Academic Freedom, Student Press and Freedom of Information, Legal Counseling and Campus Codes of Conduct.

Trash!

I must oppose a charge that the Register's Office is not executing its duties. Yes, we are having a bit of a budget crisis when it comes to paper, but the Register's Office received an ample supply of paper from the School Treasurer last week.

Now, many months later, I still haven't received an answer to the query my colleague and I posed last year in register number 202. Why? Simply because the Register's Office has yet to receive a final budget allocation for the current year. Please, my dear, dear Register's Office, get your act together and try to make a decision that we can actually read.

Cagey!

The Baruch basketball team will become part of NCAA basketball history Friday when the Statesmen take on Pratt Institute at the 69th Regiment Armory, 25th St. and Lexington Ave.

Admission is free and game time is 8 P.M.

Pratt lists on its roster Cyndy Meserve, who when she enters the game, will become the first female ever to play in an NCAA men's basketball game.

Although Pratt coach Tony Miserre has been uncommitted about how much playing time the 18-year-old blood will get, he is quick to point out she is definitely not the last player on the team. In one of the early workouts she went to the basketball eight times and scored every time.

Basketball is no new game for her. She played high school ball in Maine where her girl's team won the Mountain Valley Conference championship four straight years.

Ms. Meserve, who is 5-8 and 130-133 lbs., will not be greatly outdistanced by Baruch's guards. None of the top four guards weighs over 155 lbs. and none go over 6-0. In fact freshman Dom Marfornoaro is just 5-8 and 135 lbs. Starting guards are Bekhals and Stew Barfield, 5-11 and 6-0, respectively.

The Pratt game will open a 20-game regular season schedule for the Statesmen. Saturday night Stoney Brook - the defending Knickebocker Conference champions - will visit the Armory for their first meeting with Baruch. Game time is 7:30.

Newcomers on the schedule are William Paterson, Kings, and Southern Connecticut.

Baruch will again face all eight CUNY senior colleges - meeting the Mountain Valley Conference champions four straight years.

Barfield, also in his fourth varsity season, moved into the starting lineup midway through last year, and averaged 15.5 points a game over the final 8 games. His season's average was 8.9. He hit a career high of 26 points in the CUNY Tournament against John Jay.

An excellent defensive player, the 6-0, 145 lb. senior, usually guards the opposition's top scorching-guard or small forward.

Active in Baruch's extensive intramural program, he is the recipient of the Ira Zaslaff Memorial Award, as the student contributing most to the school's Physical Education program.
