DSSG Argues Election Cost

by Wendy Gerlier

With the Day Session Student Government's election coming up, on May 3 and 6, DSSG members are faced with two problems: Poor voter turnout and lack of student involvement is one chronic symptom, but the question of who should pay for student government elections is first being addressed this year.

The DSSG Constitution states, "All costs incurred shall be borne by the Baruch College Association Inc. through the Senate Elections Committee." This procedure has been in practice for the past few years, but is now being questioned by the Association's Board of Directors and other school officials.

"Do the DSSG and students have the right to pass the buck to someone else to pay the bill for the elections?" asked Mark Rosenbaum, chairman of the SEC. He also said, "The Board doesn't want to pick up the tab anymore, but it's in the Constitution, so does it (pay for the election)?"

The original allocation from the Board of Directors to the DSSG for the election was $5,000. On May 18, the Board passed a resolution to provide the additional $1,595 needed to conduct the election, under the condition that the Senate review the entire election.

As it stands now, there are many students who feel as Russell Marshall, an upper freshman, does: "I don't know anyone of the people who are running, and I'm not familiar with the system. If someone could show me that he or she is really representing the government, then I would vote;" says Marshall.

Governor Carey's 1981-82 Executive Budget calls for cutbacks in Faculty and non-teaching positions, including student service positions. Furthermore, the budget fails to recognize the problems of rising costs and tuition increases which the Board's Executive committee recently recommended. New York State currently has the highest tuition rates in the nation for public education.

Assemblmen John Flannigan (Rep.) also voiced his objection to a tuition increase. He stated, "there is no need for an increase since everything is going well for the state government. For this fiscal year the state will have taken in $1.5 billion dollars in income and sales taxes."

Assemblmen Flannigan feels that some of these funds can be used in place of an increase. He also believes that they have the necessary number of votes to amend the budget and make the necessary appropriation.
A Time for Killing?

These are some of the more popular names in recent history. They are the names of people and things, and they say something about the times we live in. When you think of John F. Kennedy, you are also likely to think of Lee Harvey Oswald. The mention of his brother, Bobby, is sure to bring to mind the name of his assassin, Sirhan Sirhan. The same goes for the mention of Martin Luther King, the man who yearned to teach a generation of Americans the true meaning of peace. James Earl Ray will always have a share of his glory.

Then there are the more recent names. After a while, we didn't even need a person in order to identify our killers. The ".44 caliber killer" and the type of gun he used, the "Charter Arms Bulldog," made the press long before the name of David Berkowitz got into print. But the name of Mark David Chapman did make the papers, right alongside the name of his victim, John Lennon.

The national horror of an attempted presidential assassination which left four people, including the president, seriously wounded, pales when it is seen in the context of what this country has become. We are a nation where violent crime has become common place, no longer an outrage but a simple by-product of modern life.

Richard Reeves said in the New York Daily News that in November of 1963, we lost our innocence, in March of 1981, we lost our self respect. It has gone too far.

It takes something like this to wake some people, or most people. They reacted with the same horror that they would feel if it had been a close friend or relative who had been shot down on the street. Whether we liked the man's politics or not, the possibility of his assassination was a distant nightmare that wouldn't really happen, wouldn't it? What would that say about our country?

Well, it has happened, and whatever it says about our country has been broadcast loudly and clearly to the rest of the world. The message to ourselves will take a little more time to sink in, as usual.

There is a practice of cynical resignation to the "ways of the world" evident in the nation now. People look at disasters and violence without batting an eye and shrug, "Tough break," but that's the way it goes." The news of an assassination attempt affects them more than the news of a "common murder" only because of who the victim is.

This is the attitude that has to change. People must care more about their fellow man. If it sounds like a sermon, it's probably because all the sermons are true, and bear repeating. The killing has to end, and it's up to every one of us to do whatever he or she can about halting it.

Dollars and Sense Debuts

Congratulations are in order on the event of the publication of one of Baruch's most prestigious and worthwhile journalistic endeavors. It is the Baruch College Business Review, Dollars and Sense.

The magazine, which is the production of the Fall semester class of Business and Financial Writing (English 3200), contains straightforward, well-researched, and insightful articles on subjects as diverse as the recording industry and culture, all seen from a business angle. A look through it will certainly prove to be both entertaining and rewarding for anyone, student or business person.

In a time when the school has come under criticism from many students for being too splintered among its various parts, Dollars and Sense is a wonder of cooperation. A budget of $1,250 was put up by the school for the venture, and the editor in chief, Professor Roslyn Bernstein, said that she received complete assistance from school president Joel Segall, and from art consultant Virginia Smith.

The result was the most impressive Dollars and Sense in the magazine's three issue history. 1,500 copies were printed and many were mailed to prominent members of the business world. In all, it was quite an accomplishment, and quite an addition to the academic and business worlds of Baruch.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

by Maria H. Katz

According to an article I read in the Village Voice, Dr. Antonio Silva who was formerly the Assistant Secretary of Health in Puerto Rico will soon be heading up the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Lincoln Hospital. So what? Everyday we read the papers and hear about people moving to the suburbs, to another. Why be interested in this man and his coming to New York?

Dr. Silva brings with him a very disturbing background. He served three years as Secretary of Health in Puerto Rico and headed up a sterilization program there. Citing a N.Y. Times article on Nov. 4, 1974, it states that Dr. Silva designed the program to promote "open childbearing," and "socio-economic balance" and that of all birth control methods, economics clearly favors sterilization. Though there is yet another reason for a sterilization boom in the South Bronx, whose population is mostly Hispanic, the figures for N.Y.C. in recent years already show that more than 90% of sterilization occur among poor black and Latin women.

Population control programs have been promoted on the island for decades as a solution for unemployment, poverty, and starvation. Corporate interests in the population-control programs accompanied by sterilization drives, the cornerstone of their efforts to combat poverty and hunger throughout the Third World.

In November, 1973, shortly before Silva was elevated to Puerto Rico's health ministry, a special government committee issued a confidential report outlining options for controlling population growth. The report's title was Opportunities for Employment, Education, and Training, but nearly half of it was devoted plans aimed at reducing the growth of the working sector, of the island's population.

One third of Puerto Rico's women of child-bearing age had already been sterilized. The report advocated the use of maternal and child health programs as a "way to attract the potential clientele of women who were still fertile."

The report added, those who suffered most from a condition of excess population are the groups with the least income and smallest education. The next year Silva was in Puerto Rico to implement the 1973 report's recommendations within less than a year, he had set.

SECURITY AGAIN

The Dean of Students, Dr. Ron Aaron, refers to this incident (in a Ticker article) as "an alleged assault on a member of the faculty...a couple of weeks ago." "Alleged" is a curious word for Dr. Aaron to have used about an incident he clearly knows did happen and the phrase "a couple of weeks ago" is an extremely conservative estimate of an incident now eight weeks gone.

A more curious phrase by Dr. Aaron appears in an article in your 3/5/81 issue. The sentence reads, "Except for robbery nothing more serious happened." Strictly speaking the statement is accurate, but it neglects to consider that several members of the department were meeting in a room not 50 yards from where the robbery was happening and any one of these staff members could have been shot had they walked into the room.

Ten days after the incident I inquired about the contemplated security changes and was told that a cost feasibility study was being done. Twenty days later I again inquired and was referred to...
MAKING HELPLINE WORK

by Veronica Szanto

Being a major force behind the tremendous growth of one of Baruch's largest student organizations is not a claim many people can make. Mr. Joe Duggan, a coordinator for Baruch's Helpline, can, however, justly make that claim.

Mr. Duggan came to Baruch five years ago on a federal grant with which the college was able to hire tutors. Mr. Duggan, who has a Master's Degree in Psychology, was to have tutored psychology and statistics. Since there were an additional 60 tutors hired by Baruch, each tutor had the opportunity to work more or less wherever he wanted.

The counseling office and the office of freshman orientation expressed a desire to start some kind of student organization that required a great deal of supervision. Mr. Duggan's objective was to provide students with a sort of outreach program. And so, Helpline was created.

When Mr. Duggan was asked what new project Helpline was planning for this term, he replied, "We have one major new project for this term that we're trying to get together and that is to try and reach out a little bit better than we are. We are a population of this school who perhaps don't get as much help as other students.

Mr. Duggan stated that Helpline's most important function was "the fact that there are students there at any time of the day from 9 is the morning to 7 o'clock at night which means they can help day, evening and night graduate students, and no matter what the problem is they're willing to deal with it and wrestle with it, with the student, and to help the student come to a better understanding of himself and of the problem. There is always someone there and if he can't help you he'll refer you to someone who can."

Helpline is located in room 516 in the 26th St. building behind the school's cafeteria. Its services involve both personal peer counseling and counseling over the telephone. Helpline meets during club hours on Thursdays. Each Helpline member has to go through an initial screening process with a member of the counseling office to determine his motivation for joining Helpline. Then there is an 8 week training program where role-playing the problems that come up in Helpline is practiced. There is an evaluation phase where audio visual feedback is used to show the student-trainee how he is coming across. Listening skills especially are stressed to show the student-trainee whether or not he has built up the ability to really listen to the student and deal with him. After the evaluation phase, the student works 2-and-a-half hours a week on Helpline.

"We really would like to consider the fact that Helpline is almost an independent student organization, fully trained and supervised by professionals here from orientation and counseling. The more students can do on their own, the more they can grow themselves and help other students. So they continually wrestle with the problems of dealing with each other and dealing with students and we try to provide them with the supervision they need to grow better."

When asked if Helpline has a shortage of students, Mr. Duggan answered, "No, not at all. We have a glut of students who want to volunteer. I think it's an example of the fact that the student who comes to Baruch is sometimes tagged as the impersonal business student who just wants to get through his 4 years of college and go out and get a job and doesn't care about anybody else, which is so far from the case as far as Helpline is concerned. We have over 100 students working on Helpline and each term we have over 50 who want to volunteer and go through the training. It's amazing how many students want to volunteer and reach out."

Mr. Duggan's plans for himself involve obtaining a doctorate in counseling psychology. However, Mr. Duggan so enjoys working on Helpline that he also plans to continue working on Helpline to help reach other students and help them grow.

Helpline's funding comes basically from the office of student activities, and the student center program board who are in charge of student funds and the student activities fee. As Mr. Duggan stated, "We're able to obtain our funds from that office because of our close association with Mr. Carl Aylman and his staff. They've been able to help us in numerous ways and be a back up as far as supervising and helping with our students, taking on some of our student problems and providing us with the money we need to run the program."

Mr. Duggan's views on whether the cut back on professional staff are demonstrated in his response:

"At this time we have enough funding. We, of course, are very concerned about the cut back on funds for student activities and the cut back on professional staff."

Helpline receives no funding are demonstrated in his response. I

If that funding is taken away and those staff members are gone, Helpline itself would be in jeopardy."
RAISE A LITTLE HELL IN PARADISE.

How do you feel about the idea of a party? If you can't stand them, don't waste your time on this invitation.

Because the party we're throwing has all the possibilities of reaching super proportions.

We've got all the right ingredients: good people, good music and good, cold adult beverages of your choice. And we've got a great place to celebrate.

The Bahamas College Week is going to be the best opportunity you'll have (before summer vacation) to bask in the sun and howl at the moon, both in the company of people who relate to the party philosophy.

Now, the fact that you'll be with a group of people doesn't mean you're headed for a "tour." This effort is going to be incredibly inexpensive but it's not a "package" type package. Everything's included as far as airfare and hotel are concerned, but at no time will anybody push you into a planned event or blow a whistle and pack you onto a museum-bound bus. We'll give you the itinerary, just for the record, but after the "Get Acquainted party" you're invited to improvise. O.K?

On with it.

TRIP INCLUDES: Round-trip airfare, 7 nights hotel accommodations (based on quad occupancy), taxes & tips. Double and triple accommodations also available.

Itinerary

DAY #1
GET-ACQUAINTED PARTY—featuring live band. It will be an opportunity to meet one another and get acquainted with the island.

DAY #2
SIGHTSEEING & SHOPPING TOUR—Half day sightseeing tour of Freeport or Nassau including the "FLYING COUNCOUN TDOWN CARD" entitling you to special reductions and concessions at shops and stores, restaurants, nightclubs, exhibitions, sports, etc. Complete booklet of discounts will be given with the Card.

DAY # 3
MOONLIGHT CRUISE with open bar in Freeport; Famous CATAMARAN CRUISE, In Nassau.

DAY # 4
LIMBO PARTY—Student contests with prizes to the winners

DAY # 5
ATHLETIC COMPETITION—A day of competition in tennis, track and field, and other sports.

DAY # 6
FAREWELL COCKTAIL PARTY—With "the first beer on the house."

A Little Bit About What You Can Expect From Nassau & Paradise Island and Freeport.

If you've never had the opportunity to visit the Bahamas before, don't let this one pass you by. There are reasons why the islands have attracted visitors for the last few hundred years, including 18th century tour groups consisting mostly of pirates.

Among the attractions:

The Best Weather. Average temperature is 70°F. Farenheit. The best beaches. Paradise Island could easily be one of the world's most beautiful. Freeport too!

The best hangouts. Old forts and buildings, modern night spots, lively markets and good restaurants.

The best accommodations for the money. These people are wonderful hosts. Your hotel will have considerable charm and comfort.

And the best people. Bahamians depend on visitors for their livelihood. So, even though they're friendly to begin with, they'll make an extra effort to shake the hand that feeds them.

Stay home.

BAHAMAS COLLEGE WEEK.
PROF. AXELROD SPEAKS ON BUSINESS AND ENTERTAINMENT

by Peter Tripi and Oliva George

On March 19, The Baruch Music Club proudly presented Professor Elliott Axelrod as its guest speaker. Before entering private practice, Prof. Axelrod in the early 70's was an attorney and agent for the William Morris Agency, one of the world's leading theatrical agencies. He is now a full-time member of the Law Department and a legal consultant in his field.

Prof. Axelrod spoke of the "wealth of opportunity" in the entertainment industry for Baruch graduates. He pointed out the need for "professional managers" in the field, saying that too many managers are merely former performers who may be able to find "gigs" for their clients but know little about "professional career development." One of the main objectives of career development, according to Prof. Axelrod, is to "obtain longevity for one's clients in a highly competitive and ever changing environment." He emphasized that financial management and investment and tax advice are also extremely important.

Through his work with such successful people, acts, and shows as Diana Ross and the Supremes, the Spinners, John Denver, Edward Albee, Ira Levin, The Kraft Music Hall, One Life to Live, "Raizin," and "Eubie," Prof. Axelrod believes that while it is important to "understand and stay abreast of the dynamics of the business as it is today," it is also "imperative to draw upon the experience and history of yesterday" and that a good marketing idea may prevail over the years. As an example of this, Prof. Axelrod pointed out the concept of launching a recording career for an artist through the vehicle of a weekly television series. This was successfully done for Rick Nelson via "The Ozzie and Harriet Show" in the 50's, David Cassidy via "The Partridge Family" in the 60's, and David Soul via "Starsky and Hutch" in the 70's.

Prof. Axelrod said that professional management not only relates to individuals but also to management of artistic properties such as "the exploitation and turning to profit of subsidiary rights in plays, including motion picture and television rights, cast albums, foreign language rights, stock and amateur rights, merchandising, sequels and revivals.

He also said that the "winning combination" for success in the Baruch graduate entering the entertainment industry is an academic mix of both artistic and business courses. He stressed how fortunate Baruch students were to have a first-rate Music Department and excellent exposure to the other liberal arts, together with one of the best Business Schools in the country having the strongest Management and Marketing Departments anywhere.

It was also pointed out by Prof. Axelrod that Baruch College has the largest and most extensive undergraduate Law Department of any school in the country, offering some 14 different law courses. He stressed that Baruch students would be well advised to take as many law courses as possible because "all creative deal-making, contract negotiations and business transactions, require a clear understanding of the legal framework involved." He said that over 95% of all Broadway and Off-Broadway shows are financed through Limited Partnerships which are studied in Law 3102 along with the subjects of Agency, General Partnerships and Corporations, a very important course. Prof. Axelrod indicated that together with other relevant and important courses already offered by the Law Department, he is developing a new course in "Entertainment Law.

Those who attended the discussion profited greatly and were most appreciative of Prof. Axelrod's very informative talk and question-answering session which followed.

IF SEX IS NEXT

by Craig Altman

Spring is rolling around and love is in the air, or rather people are in heat. Some say that sex has lost its meaning in terms of love, that its primary functions are now better seen in the categories of leisurely pastime or exercise. Not to say that sex is not still one of the greatest forms of giving between two people, or that it is not something cheap and dirty, but many people are realizing today's reasons for its activity and its inactivity. This is because of our society's categorizing of the actions of both gents, and it is wise to be aware of them when meeting someone in which you are interested. Examples to illustrate:

Women (shy)

I once asked a young lady from Baruch if she was a man she was interested with, would she speak to him. She said, "No." She claimed he might be too presumptuous about her approach. It is obvious why she would feel this way. In some cases, a man's approach may well have been an invitation to rape. Yet, there is also the fact that an intelligent woman has enough judgment (if not knowing from past experience) to decide whether or not she feels the man can be trusted enough to talk to him. In any case, with the age of the liberated woman, ladies should keep their confidence in speaking to the men they desire, because it might be the best way for them to get what they want instead of awaiting someone to make them their selection (but take some marital arts classes and a razor just in case). As for the men, keep your head, if they day is not ashamed to get in the driver's seat, then relax and let her take you for a ride.

Men (shy)

On the other hand; if a man does not speak, or in speaking, never propositions a woman to a sexual relationship, he may be labeled as impudent; stuck up, gay, or as the possessor of some other social disease. This is not fair at all. True, there is some reason for him not trying, and it might just be that he never knew the woman was interested. If she really wants him, she will tell him exactly how she feels, because beating around the bush don't make the grade. However, he should be aware of the reactions they get in their relations with women; it is not conceited to think a woman likes you.

Women (aggressive)

In speaking to a woman about getting on intimate terms with each other, she said that we would have to get to know each other better, by me taking her out. So I asked her if she was a prostitute. As she sat there stunned, I continued by saying that I'm not cheap, but I'm not Rockefeller either. Getting better acquainted is great, but why must it be at my expense? If we are two people who are interested in each other, then our meeting should be a combined effort. If I offer (not that she can't offer as well) that's one thing, but if the funds aren't really there on either side then what is wrong with chipping into making our time a success?

Men (aggressive)

As women now strain into their tightest jeans and see-through blouses (which on the right form can make the coolest male become beatiful), men will be constantly on the corner crooning them compliments. This every year (in fact every day) epidemic has put men in a bad position. Now when a man speaks to a woman in passing, she's got him pegged for the perfect pervert. Of course, this is an exaggeration, for not every man speaks to disrespect for a woman, and even when some do, it shouldn't blindly dull a woman's feelings for all men. However, some men do talk to women with their draws at their knees, telling them what they got, what they want, then when, where, and how they can get it on.

Six awards of $400 each.

2. Becker Family Scholarships
Four annual scholarships. Three to full-time undergraduate juniors, one from each of the schools (Business and Public Administration; Liberal Arts and Sciences; and Education), who have completed at least 24 credits at Baruch College. The fourth award is to a full-time graduate student in the School of Business and Public Administration who has completed at least 24 credits of graduate work.

Selection of Recipients
The primary criterion for these awards is academic excellence. In situations where this cannot be the sole determining factor, the Committee may request materials pertaining to financial need and letters of recommendation from teachng faculty. Candidates are solicited from the respective school deans and department chairs.

Award
Four awards of at least $400 each.

Faculty Excellence Awards

President Segall has established a series of faculty excellence awards. One or more awards are to be made to faculty members recognized for distinguished teaching or contribution to teaching. The awards carry an honorarium and will be presented during the commencement ceremonies in June.

The Awards Committee wishes to remind students of the awards and to solicit nominations. If you feel that you have had the opportunity to study with a faculty member whose teaching ability you consider to be outstanding or who made a significant contribution to teaching procedures at the College, please feel free to make a nomination.

If you wish to nominate a faculty member, please fill out the enclosed form, put it in an envelope addressed to Box 347, and drop it into the college mail.

A different administrative office where I was told that no decision would be made before there was input from the faculty via the Faculty Senate and input from the students via a day and evening session student meeting. Well, both groups have met and no additional suggestions have been made and still no positive action has been taken.

On January 26, 1981 the department requested that "peep-holes" be put into several doors so that staff members in early in the morning or out late at night had some minimum form of security. On March 9th, March 13th, March 16th, March 17th, March 18th, March 20th and March 23rd I enquired as to when we could expect the peep-holes and was put off each time. As of this writing still nothing has been done.

The bottom line is that after having spoken with just about every office and level of the administration nothing has been done and NOTHING IS GOING TO BE DONE. Nothing will be done because students don't like wearing their identification cards or because the administration thinks that the changes will cost too much or for some other equally unaccepteable reason. Just think about that. The college is ripped off every day. Students are robbed, rapes are attempted and people here are held up at gun point and everybody seems to think that the reasons for doing nothing outweigh their personal safety of students and staff.

The logic eludes me. Making molehills out of mountains won't get rid of the problem. Does serious bodily harm to a student or staff member have to happen before everyone suddenly wants to jump on the bandwagons and declare that they were the first to yell "cost damned, we'll do it now!!"

up 19 free sterilization clinics, set a goal of 5000 "voluntary sterilizations" for the program's first year, surpassed that in 1975, when 5400 women were sterilized. The overall thrust of the program was not to inform women of the birth control options open to them, but to encourage sterilization as the best alternative; otherwise, how could Silva's goals be achieved?

In an interview with Puerto Rico magazine on June 1974, Silva insisted that "the basic requirement is the consent of the person" in every sterilization, but his program clearly embodied the government's will to reduce the child-bearing population by any means necessary. Though Silva said, "we believe that all people should have control over their own bodies, his program encouraged sterilizations even for young women who might change their minds when it was too late. Federal and state laws here now require that any women undergoing sterilization sign a consent form in her native language, and that he be informed about the irreversible nature of the operation; there is scant monitoring to enforce these statutes in New York. In the past, poor women seeking abortions, other health care, medical aid have been sterilized without their informed consent. It has been stated by one woman that she underwent sterilization at Lincoln Hospital, when she just went in for the treatment of a vaginal infection. Is my opinion Silva's arrival in the South Bronx is only a beginning in creating a planned shrinkage in population there. If enough support comes his way, then the South Bronx might be the starting point for him, but it won't be his finishing point.

near endless, so don't call any goal too high to try. The money will surely make you do your best in your field. Money is necessary to survival; to get it through doing what you want satisfies a need, to get money through means that aren't of your desire is a form of greed. It is my unfortunate duty to announce that this is my last column of this semester. I just like to say that this has been an experience I will never forget, but I will continue to provide services to you students of Baruch in every capacity I can. I hope you have enjoyed reading my column as much as I have enjoyed writing for you. Remember me because I think of you.

HELPLINE

Continued Mr. Duggan, "An organization which has as many students and outstations in this many ways needs a number of different back up systems to it and they provide really the stop gap of the whole system. If a student needs help and I don't happen to be here, they have those other professionals as a back up."

When Mr. Duggan was asked if he thought Helpline received enough support from students he replied, "I think that students don't reach out enough. Sometimes they have a very hard time reaching out to Helpline or asking for help from anyone because of the society we've grown up in that says we're supposed to be so independent. It's really hard to ask for help so while I think Helpline has the respect of the students, I think it's underutilized sometimes by the majority of students in the school because it's so hard to react out for help."

There are many other situations too numerous to name, but the fact remains that we should always take the situation realistically and with open minds.

There is no true definition for love, only factors that make it real enough in any place, at any time, with anybody, and can be achieved in any way. However, the real deal is what you feel, and if you feel you're getting what you want; keep it; if not, then don't be shy to try again. Love is what you make it, and ideally the reason for sex is love. If it is not your reason, then be upfront enough to say so, that way the surprise is no surprise.

The Culture of the East
China Night will Show

by Helen L.K. Chan

On Thursday evening, April 30, the Chinese students of Baruch College will be presenting an array of cultural exhibits and performances from China. The event takes place at the Faculty Lounge, Student Center, which will be transformed into a traditional Chinese setting.

The show, sponsored by the Chinese Student Association (CSA), Chinese Students Association (CSA), Chinese Club of Baruch (CCB), and the Chinese Student Union (CSU), will feature a wide array of Chinese culture. Attendees can expect to witness traditional Chinese dances, kung fu (martial arts), Chinese songs, instrumental music, and a fashion show. The fashion show will showcase traditional Chinese costumes.

The program will begin with a speech by Dr. Cyrus Gordon, the guest speaker at the Jane Addams College of Social Work. Dr. Gordon is a renowned archaeologist, orientalist, and Bible scholar who has spent four years in modern Iran and has written extensively on Near Eastern history. His primary areas of research include the history and culture of the Ancient Near East, he has also written on the history and culture of the people from the last thousand years of and always-willing-to-help with any questions or inquiries.

Dr. Gordon combines erudition with a warm, personal style and enthusiasm which captivates his audience. His seminars are eagerly anticipated by students and faculty, and there would not be a show without his presence. There would not even be a Chinese Club in the school.

Mrs. Violet Seung, the friendly and always-willing-to-help counselor of the Chinese Singing Club and the Chinese Students Association, is again lending her helping hand to aid the staff and add exciting features to the show.

With the help of the others and Stanley Ng, former President of the Chinese Club, Frank Su of the Chinese Singing Club is doing fine in managing and coordinating this spring spectacular.

The show will consist of a period of questions and answers after the program. There will be a period of questions and answers.

The show will be a gala festive LATIN DANCE. To wind up the Hispanic Week events, we will have a gala festive LATIN DANCE.

CHINA NIGHT

Chinese films, and martial arts presentations. One of the blockbuster films they had shown last year was superstar Jackie Chan's "Snake in the Eagle's Claw."

The Chinese students come from different regions of China or Taiwan. So they may speak various dialects such as Cantonese, Mandarin, Teochanese, Hakka, Shanghai, or Fukienese. In spite of this regional and linguistic difference, they are willing to join together to celebrate the single most important event of the year in Chinese heritage—Chinese New Year on "China Night."

"China Night" will promptly begin at 6 p.m. and conclude at 8 p.m. Admission to the two-hour program is FREE! A reception will follow the conclusion of the show. So, Baruchians, write down the date, time, and place—April 30, 1981, Thursday, 6 p.m., Auditorium: "China Night" on your schedule. Come and see one of the most enjoyable events of the year. For more information pertaining to the program, contact the S.C.P.E. Chinese club, Mrs. Violet Seung.

Have A Nice Recess!
The Who Make A Disappointing Return

by Paul Golden

After two years of seclusion alternated with touring, and solo projects, The Who have released Face Dances on a different record label, Warner Brothers. Is it worth the wait? I'm not so sure. Hailed by Warner's as "one of the most comprehensive marketing campaigns in (their) history," the major emphasis seems not to be placed on the music, but on the album cover artwork. The credits on the inner sleeve hardly mention The Who, but rather the sixteen "internationally known" artists who have adorned the front cover with their portraits of individual members of The Who. Granted, the album looks great, but what about the music on the inside?

Face Dances won't attract new fans for The Who. It won't lose them any either. Peter Townend's work (he penned all but two of the songs) runs from the banal to the satisfying, giving Face Dances a decidedly uneven sound. John Entwistle, the bass player, seems to pull the most meat out of the band on his two, by now obligatory, numbers; "The Quiet One," and "You," fusing his usual brand of macabre humor with dark, minor twanged arrangements. "The Quiet One" employs Townend's thunderous power chording, and marvelous bass 'zoops' from Entwistle making it reminiscent of the great "Heaven & Hell" from The Story of The Who album.

The rest of Face Dances is pure Townsend: good, bad, and indifferent. The opening cut, "You Better You Bet" is in the great "Who Are You" tradition, with Townend diddling with a synthesizer in the intro. "Cache Cache" is all about story book scariness—"Did you ever sleep in a bear pit, with apple cores and mice along"—and ends up quite sily, "Did You Steal My Money tonight as just as on Middle" has been on Odds n Sods; it just doesn't fit on the album. "How Can You Do It Alone" starts off relating the dumb denials of flashers, and little boys who steal girle magazines and breaks, midway, into a highlands, bagpipe reel.

"Daily Planet" is one of the most blatant homages (or should I say ripoffs) exactly mimicing the Beach Boys opening to "Sloop John B." Townend has a lot of nerve claiming that "my money keeps me poor."

As I said before, Face Dances is a mixed bag of tricks. On one level it's an extremely enjoyable Who album, full of rich, loping melodies and expert playing. On another level, it seems as though the Who have grown tired. Daltrey's voice can sound strained at times, leaving one with the impression that perhaps he would be happier acting, than singing. Kenny Jones, the new kid on the block, does admirably, but lacks the manic explosiveness of Keith Moon's haywire drumming which so propelled The Who in its earlier days. The Who are, by now, an institution in rock. Let's hope they put a bit of wrinkle cream on their age spots and give themselves a little youthful vitality which is the essence of rock 'n roll.

Record Review:
A Mixed Bag Of New Releases

by Jay Schwartz

Warren Zevon is a rather meek-looking Preppy with a strong baritone voice. After only releasing three fairly successful albums, Zevon has gone ahead and released Stand in the Fire (Asylum), a solid package of live recorded music containing some new, and some old, tunes.

The "live" audience, on some of the tracks, simply does not sound live. Perhaps the audience sounds were dubbed in later, after the music had already been recorded. This phoniness could also be a result of the size of the club where the album was recorded. At any rate, Stand in the Fire has some good tracks, such as "Jennie Needs a Shooter," some better tracks including "Lawyers, Guns and Money," and "Poor. Poor Pitiful Me," a one-time hit for Linda Ronstadt; and some garbage like "Werewolves of London." Fans of Zevon will go berserk over this album, but it is still not a bad investment for the rest of us, and it gives a fairly well-rounded picture of Zevon's talent.

1967 was a very interesting year in music. It hosted the appearance of the Doors, the Beatles' experimentation with drug related songs, and Jefferson Airplane's second album, Surrealistic Pillow, which introduced their new lead singer, Grace Slick. Slick's two songs, "Somebody to Love" and "White Rabbit" lifted the album to new heights both musically and commercially. Slick's two songs, and Jefferson Airplane's songs, a multitude of protest songs, and Jefferson Airplane's songs, as well.

Fourteen years, three groups and a solo career later, Grace Slick is still at it. Her new album, Welcome to the Wrecking Ball (RCA) marks her return to Rock after her last album, which was labeled Middle of the Road style music, flopped terribly. It is good to see Slick back, but unfortunately she is not the same as she was in '67.

Take, for example, the song "Mistreater." "Mistreater" would be a great song if Pat Benatar was singing it. Slick's version, missing what is needed to make the song more powerful.

"Just a Little Love" and "Shooting Star" are two tracks that are more geared to Slick, and she handles them well.

Besides, it is doubtful that Pat Benatar could sing "White Rabbit" the way Slick does. Let's just hope that Slick finds the music that is right for her, because then it will be right for us too.

by Helen Chin

About this time of the year, more college students can be found hanging around outside of school than inside attending classes. But things are much different this year; more students are still attending all of their required classes. Why? Spring is here! It made its official debut at 12:03 p.m. on March 20. But if Spring is here, why does it still seem as though Winter never left?

What happened to Spring? Why aren't the bees about story book scariness?—"Did you ever sleep in another level it seems as though Winter never left?

What happened to Spring? Why aren't the bees and the mosquitoes out fluttering and biting their ways into our hearts? And speaking of flying nuisances, what happened to the flocks of birds which migrated South for the winter? Are they overstaying their welcome? They must have taken enough suntan lotion with them to protect their delicate little feathers throughout the Summer season. They are in no hurry to return, it seems. Well, as long as the South is playing host to our feathered friends, we'll have one less worry: the windshields of our cars will stay much cleaner.

Where are all of the Spring hay fever sufferers? You know, the ones who have red eyes, sniffly noses, walk around like zombies and pass in and out of consciousness? Actually, they've been around all winter. They are the people who are always mistaken for junkies.

Once again I ask "Where the hell is Spring?" As a full-fledged Ticker reporter, I felt that it was my duty to do some research on the topic. So away I went, eagerly trotting over to the library. I looked through magazines, books, encyclopedias, and even an atlas. To my shock and dismay, I found nothing. It occurred to me that maybe Baruch had something to hide.

Okay, so the plot thickened. I decided to go undercover, as a janitor, and do some further investigating. I worked late into the night, cleaning toilets and snooping around for any clues. Soon I was down to my last bottle of Sani-Flush, and my last hope as well.

It was then that I finally found my answer. In the Chemistry lab, I heard noises. Peering through the half-opened door, I could see many men in white laboratory jackets, each bearing the emblem of a different CUNY School. On the wall was a graph, indicating how well students' grades have stayed since Spring was delayed.

So that was it! I knew I had to put an end to this conspiracy. So I rounded up some security guards, and with their help we managed to put an end to their miserable scheme.

Well, the case of "Where the hell is Spring?" is finally solved. By the time you finish reading this account, Spring should be in the air. Enjoy it, but be prepared for another fight next year!
Broadway’s Thorny “Rose”

by Bill Dudley

The late Gertrude Stein once said, “A Rose is a rose, is a rose,” but had she seen a show of the same name, it wouldn’t have smelled the same.

“ROSE,” which opened last week at the Cort Theatre, stars Glenda Jackson and Jessica Tandy. This drama, produced by Elizabeth L. McCaa and Nelle Nugent, portrays an elementary school teacher, who is facing a mid-life crisis. Although Rose likes her job, she feels as if she is not being used to her full potential. The relationship with her husband is “dead.” Unfortunately, the play is more boring than Rose’s life.

The production is formed, not in scenes, but rather in short sketches as Rose encounters the minor characters. It seems that lately, so many playwrights have been using short sketches strung together, because they lack the talent to write a full scene that could last long enough and still remain strong. This weakness has caused failure in recent productions (THE SURVIVOR, THE AMERICAN CLOCK) and alas, also falls here. Rose pops in and out of these sketches to talk to the audience about her life. It seems that every time one starts “getting into” the dialogue, it is abruptly cut short so Ms. Jackson can talk to us on a one-to-one basis.

Due to these inadequacies, the audience never really gets to know the minor characters. They are all two-dimensional. It is especially sad to note that this falls true for Jessica Tandy, who plays Rose’s mother. The opening scene, which starts as being a night-out for the two girls is very refreshing. As always, Ms. Tandy just seems to breathe life into a play. Unfortunately, the scene last no longer than five minutes, and we don’t see mother again until the first five minutes of Act II. It is a very minor role and Ms. Tandy deserves better. It should anger any theatre goer that the producers have advertised this big name only to have her appear in a cameo role.

It is perfectly understandable why Ms. Jackson accepted her role. It gives the actress constant exposure and demands someone who has excellent command of the stage; something which Glenda does most certainly possess. It is fortunate that with all the minor, “life-less” characters, there is someone as strong as Ms. Jackson in the center spotlight. She deserves to be. Her freshness, originality, and sharp mind makes her the epitome of the intelligent mature and sophisticated British Actress which we wish so many of our own actresses were.

There are a few bright moments in the production, particularly one scene which takes place during an assembly in the school where she teaches. Some credit should be given to actress Margaret Hilton, who plays one of her co-workers. Another scene in which Rose visits an old friend, Sally, played smartly by Jo Henderson. There are some fruitful moments in the pair, but these few highlights are separated by long dull lulls.

One “bright” is when Rose attempts a last fling at excitement by fooling around with her supervisor int he back seat of his car. (He is married too.) When she gets home afterwards, she admits to her husband of what just took place. He breaks down, starts to cry, and admits that he too has cheated on their marriage. Now, that moment seems to be a terrible paradox. We know that Rose has cheated on her husband; when she confesses, he breaks down; the audience is supposed to feel sympathetic to him, but how can we let our hearts go out to him after he admits that he has also been cheating. One cannot feel sorry for the “loyalists” and the “two-time” at the same time. It’s a shame. There is so much that Playwright Andre Davies could have done with this subject, and instead, we leave the theatre forgetting what little significance the show did have, by the time we reach the marquee. The audience attends, what they hope will be an evening of intelligent theatre; perhaps the chance to use the theatre as a learning vehicle to gain some insight, and we are, unfortunately, like so many times this season, left short-changed.

Music

The Plimsouls

This is one group which shows some potential. The Plimsouls imitate the style of the musicians of the sixties. This imitation is very obvious; they want to be LA’s version of the Rolling Stones. Although their main influence is said to be The Who, they sound more like the early Stones. The album cover even looks very similar to the Stones’ Out Of Our Heads album.

Okay, so they sound similar to the early Stones and use similar cover designs—that means they are another ripoff group, right?

No way, Jose. With some more refinement and some more album experience, the Plimsouls could be well on their way to success.

Sixties music is coming back and the energy and vigor shown by the Plimsouls will be appreciated by record buyers. Similarity does not mean duplication in this case. Eventually, the only duplication of the Stones by the Plimsouls may very well be a collection of platinum and gold records.

“Scrambled Feet” is Still Going Strong

by Michael Star

Scrambled Feet. What could a show with a name like Scrambled Feet possibly be about? It would have to have some substance, I assumed, since it is currently the fifth longest running off-Broadway play, it will be number one, its producers project, if it lasts until 1983. It might very well last that long.

The four person cast—Mitchell Greenberg, K.K. Preece, Jim Walton and Steve Liebman—is the main reason for the show’s success. Of course, Hermoine the Duck (that’s right, a duck) also deserves some credit. The cast sings and dances their way into the hearts of the audience, and makes them smile as well. The basic plot of Scrambled Feet revolves around four unknown actors who constantly strive to become stars. An aspiring actor, the theme of the play seems to say, needs more than just talent to “make it.” Other tools are needed.

Each tool is a good agent. Scrambled Feet takes a few funny looks at agents, making them cut the bone-tiled, insensitive and uncaring people.

Luck, aggressiveness and an undying will to become a star are more of the necessary tools. Unfortunately, few make it to the top. The feeling of emptiness which occurs when an actor finds his/her career at an end is beautifully interpreted by the lovely K.K. Preece and arch comic Steve Liebman.

One unforgettable act is a spoof on middle-aged women who go to the theatre. Steve Liebman (a well-rounded individual, shall we say) portrays the stereotypical woman who is obnoxious, cheap, full of compartments and a devoted member of the B’na’i Brit. And if you think that’s funny, imagine what fun the cast has in their imitation of three yentas shopping the Village!

Who is a “triple threat” to show biz people? That is someone who can dance, sing and act. Once again those funny lines by John Driver and Jeffrey Hadow throw the audience into hysteria. Scrambled Feet is, for the most part, a barrel of laughs. Some of the satire, though, went a bit too far. Sure, it was funny, but some of the skits contained sick humor which added nothing to the show and only served to make the audience restless.

To become an actor, the play explains, one must be willing to take chances—big chances. Without the right connections, one’s talent could go unrecognized. Fame can be achieved, but it takes years of hard work. Scrambled Feet seems to question whether or not all of the hard work is worth it.
On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, April 9th, 10th, and 11th, the Departments of Speech and Music will present the Bock and Harnick musical, "The Apple Tree." This team, which created "Fiorello" and "Fiddler on the Roof," presented "The Apple Tree" on Broadway in 1966. Mike Nichols directed the production with Alan Alda and Barbara Harris playing the lead roles.

Theatron/Stagewise production stars Todd Slater, Joe Scherri, Maria Mazzurki, Lystra Alexander, Alexander Plumber, John Minore, Pam Pergen, and Peter Barricella.

Professor Mimi D'Aponte, of the Speech Department, is directing. She is pleased with the way the production is coming along. She feels that "the cast is very talented and very responsive."

John Tietsof, director of last semester's production of "The Dream," is serving as set designer and producer of "The Apple Tree." He has created a set which Professor D'Aponte describes as "wonderful."

She also describes as "wonderful" the creativity of musical director, Kathy Beaver, of the Music Department, and notes that the production is fortunate in having found Robert Speller, who teaches tap dancing in the School of Continuing Education, to be choreographer. Jasa O'Keefe, assistant director, who has taught speech at Baruch, has been executing the basic directing of Act I and has been most helpful in alleviating some of the burden on Professor D'Aponte.

Student Costume Designer Charles Lo Bello and his staff have built all the costumes for the show—a first in recent Theatron history. Another student, William Covington, is Lighting Designer. Mr. Covington has had many years of Theatre experience.

Tickets for "The Apple Tree" are currently on sale in front of the 23rd Street auditorium at $2.50.

Student Art on Display
The Annual Student Art Show will open on April 30 in the lobby of the 24th Street Building. Paintings, drawings, watercolors, sculpture, ceramics, graphics, photography, and works in two and three dimensional design by students in this year's art classes will be exhibited. All are invited to a reception at 11:00 to open the show. Theatron is looking for original manuscripts for workshop productions. Anyone interested contact: Adriane Finkelstein 260-6344, Barry Scoft 859-0287.

STATESMEN HAVE POTENTIAL

by Thomas Schwartz

"Super potential" is the term used by Coach Engel to describe the 1981 Baruch baseball team. After three straight years of coaching baseball, the coach has finally put together a team he can call his own. "When a coach takes over any kind of team, he gives himself five years to rebuild that team into the way he wants it. I've been lucky—it has only taken three," explains Coach Engel.

This is a completely new team with the roster being dominated by freshmen and sophomores.

"Young yet very promising," the coach points out.

He sees many bright spots for the upcoming season. The offensive punch, which was lacking last year, should materialize along with an improved defense.

"The biggest factor in college baseball is pitching," said Coach Engel, and he hopes he's proven correct this season. With the return of tested veterans John "Mr. Capt'n" Krochak, Tom Meola, and Tom "Tough Guy" Moore, plus the additions of Jeff Delgado, Luis Vargas, and Alan Grunbaum, this gives the coach six strong arms to work with.

To handle these gifted pitchers, the team has Darryl Donaldson and Robert Scagnelli—"being blessed with two catchers who can do the job," says Coach Engel.

The infield is composed of Barry Pasternack (assistant captain) at first, Jay "J.J." Carrasquillo at second, Moore at third, and Steve Belnavis trying to fill the shoes of last year's All-Star shortstop Monte Jimenez. Freshman Greg Ortiz is designated to start at third base when Moore is on the mound. Adding depth to the infield is Gerald Gorman, Willie Davila, Alan Grunbaum and David Hurri, who is also team manager.

“SPORTS STUFF”

by Peter T. Barricella

For the past five years that I’ve been attending Baruch College, I wanted a column of my own. I’ve been writing for the respective newspapers the Reporter and Ticker since I was a freshman. I was Sports Editor for both the Reporter newspaper and W.B.M.B. Radio Station, simply because I was the only one to write sports for both these Communications. The Ticker however, has the pretty and talented Pamela Smith as its able Sports Editor. So now after five long years I’m finally able to have my very own column, and now I’m graduating.

Well, at least I have until June to write my column. Who knows maybe I’ll sign up for the ten year plan at Baruch. If not, someone will nevertheless take over the column come September.

The column will be all about sports and henceforth shall be appropriately labeled “Sports Stuff.” It will entail either one item or little pieces on Baruch sports.

So hence, I give you “Sports Stuff”!

The Intramural and Recreation Department is growing bigger and bigger every semester at Baruch. Tom Cracovia has been the director of the program since its rebirth five years ago. This man never ceases to amaze this reporter, with his continuous excellent work. The program now has a numerous amount of events, and all Baruchians, if they haven’t already, should participate in this wide range of extracurricular activities.

Volleyball Tournament Not Over

The Volleyball Tournament started over a month ago, and it’s finally winding its way down.

In the three way finals PHI KAPPA THETA finished third. The Unknowns and Feedback will battle it out for the championship April 4th.

Foul Shooting Up In The Air

The Foul Shooting contest is still open for anyone to join. So far, Joe Fagan has made 13 out of 15 for an .82 percentage. Keith Cheeks (no relation to Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia 76ers) Carlos Quinones and Lesly B. Prosper all shot 12 for 15 from the line for a percentage of .800.

Club-A-Tug

Any club interested in participating in the Club Tug-O-War scheduled for April 9th should contact Tom Cracovia. The Intramural and Recreation office is located in Room 610A in the 23rd Street building or call 725-7197. The maximum weight in the Tug-O-War is 1500 lbs., and there must be a minimum of three girls.

Swimming Makes A Big Splash!

On March 5th, the Intramural swimming competition was held. In the 100 yard Free Style, Robert Huff stroked his way home in a time of one minute, eleven seconds. David Hartford pushed his way home in first in the 40 yard Breast Stroke in 26.4 seconds. Tony Kirk flapped his arms to victory in the Butterfly in 22 seconds. In the backstroke, Eddie Figueroa had the best time for the men, finishing in 22.5 seconds, and Janet Timlin turned in the best time for the women, finishing in 32.2 seconds. The best time for the 40 yard Free Style was turned in by Tony Kirk in 20.8 seconds, and the top finisher for the women was Nora Sullivan at 23.5 seconds. The 160 yard Individual Medley was won by Eddie Figueroa in 2 minutes. Nora Sullivan won the Individual Medley for the women in 2 minutes and 15 seconds. Maximo Lopez, Eddie Figueroa, Janet Timlin and Tony Kirk combined for the best time (2 minutes, 13.5 seconds) in the Medley relay.

The same four people won the Free Style relay in 2 minutes and 36 seconds.

Runners Take Your Mark

On March 26, the indoor track tournament was held in the Armory on Lexington Avenue between 25th and 26th Streets.

"Men's Paddleball"

The men's paddleball competition was very close. Not victories but points separated these men who played in the contest. The tabulations were finally decided by differences between points scored and points given up. Fred Samuel emerged champ, finishing with +11, Carlos Gaubler finished with +4 and Jose Gonzalez placed third at -15.

Garfield Dillworth sprinted to victory in the 100-yard dash in 13.4 seconds. Sidney Phillips dashed around the track in 29.5 seconds to win the 220 yard dash. Don Paris broke the tape first in the 880 yard run in 2 minutes, 24.4 seconds. Jacob Bonitto crossed the finish line first in both the 440 yard and the mile in 1 minute and 18 seconds and 5 minutes and 51.3 seconds respectively.

The best word to describe the Baruch outfield is "Fast." With speed demons Willie Toro, Jesus Martinez, and Jose Bravo roaming the outfield, not many fly balls hit out there will fall for bassehits this year. Though specific positions haven't been assigned, chances are Toro and his super arm will be in rightfield, with Martinez in center and Bravo playing leftfield. Backup outfielders include Stewart Chakiry, Cliff Marshall, Doug Bianco, Wally Bishop, and Dwight Delvalle, the last three being all promising freshmen.

The season begins with the Statesmen playing away at St. Thomas Aquinas on March 28 at noon. The first home game will be on April 1 against Queens at Henry Kuphal Stadium, located between Hillside Avenue and Union Turspike and Winchester Blvd. in Queens Village. Game time will be 3 P.M.

"This team has the greatest potential since 1978," emphasized Coach Engel. "This is the NEW Baruch Statesmen... with a brand new confident feeling and a brand new outlook."
