CUNY And Board of Ed. Partnership

By Nina Dobris

CUNY Chancellor Joseph S. Murphy and Board of Education Chancellor Anthony Albanese have decided to form a partnership to develop programs for underachieving high school students.

Under the direction of Dr. Joyce F. Brown, Special Assistant to the Chancellor for Board of Education Relations, the City University has proposed and will soon begin a number of collaborative projects with the Board of Education. The major thrust of the programs are to improve academic performance, increase retention, and provide better preparation for college study.

"Although it would be nice if the students came to the university," says Brown, "our major thrust is to be able to develop programs utilizing the expertise of both systems to allow these kids to at least stay and finish high school."

Until now, the programs in existence were geared toward the high achievers. "What's new now is that we're trying to open our umbrella a little wider and bring under it those students who are in academic trouble; who perhaps are not motivated, or perhaps are terrified of failure."

In March, the new partnership will begin with a mentoring program at Queens College, LaGuardia Community College and Lehman College. Queens will be partnering with John Bowne High School, LaGuardia with Long Island City High School, and Lehman will be working with Walton and DeWitt Clinton High Schools. The first college recruitment phase began February 8 for this particular program.

"This semester, college student participation will be in the form of academic field work or independent study in lieu of other course work in such

Day Session Gov't. Creates Student Relations Committee

By Ivan Clatren

The Student Relations Committee (SRC) is an established body of Day Session Student Government, due to a temporary amendment of DSSG's constitution for the Spring 1984 semester.

Despite the objections of three DSSG Upper Council members, "A motion moved by Frederick Kress, seconded by Enia Veltir, to approve the formation of the Student Relations Committee, was passed," according to the minutes of the council meeting, Thursday, February 2. The vote was 10 for, three against.

Denise White, President of DSSG, said the committee would help to "decrease student apathy" and get students involved with, and interested in, organizations, such as financial aid, tuition increase, voter registration and the draft.

According to the amendment, White said it will be effective immediately. White explained that the committee will have two ex-officio members of council sitting in on their meetings. In March, three members of the SRC would be elected to sit in on council meetings. "This creates more communication between the various committees. This is done for all bodies in student government," White explained.

Fred Cusatelli, a council member, and sole member of the Better Baruch Coalition (BAC), who opposed the SRC, said he did so "because there is minimal membership and it would be connected with the executive branch.

Revised DSSG Constitution Planned For Elections

By Marcelo Trinajo

In the Day Session Student Government, main concern has been the revision of the Day Session Student Constitution. Concern for this problem had its origins in the administration of last year's DSSG president, Luc Cheda, and has been passed on to the administration of current president Denise White.

Vice-President of Student Affairs Anita Shochet reported that she and White came together to examine the constitution and a proposal they had devised earlier, and discovered a need for change in both. "The constitution that we tried to pass last year is what we've been looking at to see what changes are needed; it's our proposed constitution. But even that does have some problems. So we're looking at the problems of this one, in a way, it's better that (our) draft didn't pass because now we see the problems of the (current) one, and now what we'd like to adopt is a really good constitution."

Otterly Information Released By School of Business

During early registration, there is a constant threat of being closed out of a course required for completion of a major or minor. This problem is especially acute in the School of Business and Public Administration where approximately 95 percent of Baruch's students are registered.

Associate Dean Bertha Newhouse believes that if students are aware of the procedures involved and constraints faced by the college, registration could proceed smoother, and problems in adjusting schedules could be minimized.

Voodoo Jurisprudence

Dear Ms. Ed,

Your recent off-the-cuff remarks on the problem of law enforcement in the U.S. have once again illustrated your tendency to bypass the constitutional framework in favor of personal opinion. I am writing to point out that your remarks—while not inflammatory per se—demonstrate a serious disregard for the rule of law.

Your recent remarks suggest that the U.S. criminal justice system is in desperate need of reform. You have called for the creation of a new breed of law enforcement officers who would be willing to employ any means necessary to maintain public order. Your remarks have been widely criticized for their potential to encourage vigilantism and undermine the legal process.

The U.S. legal system is built on the principle of due process, which guarantees that individuals are presumed innocent until proven guilty. This principle is enshrined in the Bill of Rights and is a cornerstone of the rule of law. It is essential that the legal system remain impartial and objective, and that law enforcement officers be trained to operate within the bounds of the law.

I urge you to reconsider your remarks and to reaffirm your commitment to the rule of law. The success of our society depends on the integrity of our legal system, and we must work together to ensure that it remains strong and effective.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
While Beirut Burns

Reagan's most inept and illegal venture was to continue assuage Gemayel of continued American support, while in- deed, he has been keen to pull the Marines out of Lebanon before the election. In hisgram to Gemayel on July 29, 1983 Reagan stated: "I have no doubt that this new phase in our policy towards Lebanon...will be welcomed by the [Lebanese] and the Americans. In fact, I plan to make this the most successful evacuation made to the Mar­ines[...]."

What happened was that Gemayel took the assurances seriously and decided to continue his offensive. At the same time, the United States was being made to look as if the withdrawal was a failure. After the bombings, both the government and the press were ipso facto invested in the need for continued American military presence in Lebanon. Not only did Reagan play a foot- root in the White House, but the national press was thirty to forty per cent more favorable to a continued American military presence than it previously had been.

The immediate result of this was the appointment of Richard B. Secrest, a man of the same ideological ilk as Gemayel, as the new U.S. ambassador to Lebanon. Secrest, who was the head of the American defense mission to Beirut, was an unashamed supporter of Gemayel and the Christian militias. The day before he took up his duties he sent a telegram to Reagan in which he said: "I am quite confident that Mr. Gemayel is an adequate ally."

It was in this context that Reagan then announced the withdrawal of the Marines. As his Energy Secretary, James Schlesinger, put it in a letter to Reagan: "You really have to be successful. Failure and rejection would be far worse than remaining in Lebanon."

It was a letter that Reagan ignored, a letter that he was not prepared to assume the responsibility for the failure of his policy. By the time he was forced to announce the withdrawal, he was already planning the evacuation as a victory for the United States. But the announcement was not made just to show the country how tough he was. It was a triumph of public relations over reality; a triumph of the image over the fact; a triumph of the calculated over the calculated.

The result of this was that the Americans were left to bear the brunt of the consequences of a policy that had been built on lies and half-truths. Reagan's policy in Lebanon was a policy of appeasement. It was a policy that had been based on the assumption that the Americans could force the Lebanese to do what they wanted by the use of force. Buchin on Leave

Dr. Jean Buchin, coordinator of the Center for Women's Studies, will be leaving the University to serve as Professor of Women's Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara. Ms. Buchin has been a major force behind major developments at the Center for Women's Studies and will be missed by everyone who has worked with her.

Macintosh

The Ticker has found out more details about the announcement that Apple Computer is setting up a new company to manufacture Macintoshes. The company will be called Apple II, and it will produce a new line of computers that will be sold directly to the public.

Consumer Advocate

Stephen G. Goldenberg, Financial Aid Director at Baruch, will speak on "Financial aid programs" at Baruch's Financial Aid Program. The event is free and open to the public.

Constitution

Another student who has become involved with the constitution revision, although outside of the political sphere, is the new Macintosh. The new Macintosh will be released in Fall 1984 and will be available to the public.

Just Ask

The Ticker has learned that the new Apple Imagewriter printer should be available soon. For students with a background in graphic design, this printer will be a welcome addition to the lab.

Dial in to WBMB

By Lisa R. Rhodes

The ultimate goal of Baruch's WBMB radio station is to "be a FM source of news and information for the students and alumni of Baruch College, and to provide a forum for students to express their opinions on current social issues." The station's focus is on community service and giving students an opportunity to learn about broadcasting.

The station's programming includes a variety of shows such as "Theatron," which focuses on theater-related topics, and "Helpline," which provides counseling services to students. Other shows include "Chess Club," "Lesbian Students Alliance," and "Yiddish Society." The station also has a "Student Affairs" program, which provides information about events and activities on campus.

WBMB is available on campus through the radio station's local connection and on the internet at www.baruch.cuny.edu. The station's website provides information about the station's programming, staff, and how to get involved.

Student Clubs at Baruch

By Angelina Sartor

The Christian Club at Baruch College, the only non-denominational club at Baruch College, is a community of students who meet every week to learn about the Christian faith. The club is open to all students, regardless of their faith, and provides a space for discussion and learning about the Bible and Christianity.

The club meets weekly in room 722 on Wednesday nights at 7:30 pm. The meetings consist of prayer, a study of the Bible, and discussions about faith and life. The club is led by a team of volunteers and is open to all students who are interested in learning more about Christianity.

The club's website provides information about the club's mission, events, and how to get involved. The website also includes a calendar of upcoming events and a list of club officers.

Student Government

By Marissa Todd

According to the constitution, the Student Government is an organization of students elected by the student body to represent their interests and promote their rights. The Student Government is divided into committees, each of which focuses on a specific area of student life.

The Student Government is involved in a variety of activities, including organizing events, providing services to students, and representing student interests to the University. The Student Government is elected by the student body and is responsible for ensuring that student voices are heard and that student needs are met.

The Student Government's website includes information about its mission, committees, and how to get involved. The website also provides a calendar of upcoming events and a list of student government officers.
Rock: Cats and Ants

At one time Rockland was the place to go to catch the latest in rock 'n' roll, but now the only tickets sold at some local shows are those that get them into parking lots. The Cats and Ants have been around for a long time. They even opened officially on February 19, but it seems they have been around for much longer. The Cats, a band from Long Island, have been playing for over a century. The Ants, a band from New York City, have been playing for over a century.

The four members were all brought together for the same reason. They all had a hit with a song. The Cats had a hit with "Rock You Up" and the Ants had a hit with "Fools Fall in Love." The Cats and Ants, along with the rest of the rockabilly scene, have been playing for over a century. Lillian was born in New York City to a family of Polish-Jewish heritage. Her parents instilled in her a love for music and a strong work ethic. After graduating from high school, she enrolled at New York University, where she majored in Music Business and minored in Business Administration. She later earned a Master's degree in Business Administration from Baruch College.

Lillian's passion for music began at a young age. She learned to speak English as a young girl by herself. Her parents encouraged her to explore her interests and pursue her dreams. She chose New York University's Graduate Program in Music Business because it offered a program that combined her love for music with her business acumen.

Statesmen Fencing

By Orest Mandzy

Although Baruch's fencing team is small (12 men, 6 women), they are competitive. With five intercollegiate matches left in the season, the men’s squad has an respectable record of 4 wins and 1 loss. The women’s team, however, hasn’t fared as well and has a dis­ap­pointing 0 and 5 record.

Baruch’s fencing team was started about 10 years ago, and is now coached by ex-Olympian Ed Ballinger. He presently ranks fifth in the nation and is eyeing the 1988 summer games.

Ballinger blames the lack of pro­ductivity of the women’s team on the fact that few have prior experience in the sport. “Three of our starters never fenced (this season), they’ve also going through a growing up period.” He noted, “In that point of growth, they’re int­ advanced to the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) competition.”

This year’s NCAA tryouts are cre­eping up, starting March 20 and end March 24. According to coach Ballinger, “I tell the fencers to participate in outside competitions.” He noted that by doing so, his players not only get more experience but also receive, the morale boosting ex­posure which is necessary for any athlete to compete well. He added, “Our hope is to get at least three guys and one gal to qualify.” Ac­cording to fencer Neil Horner, “I think we’ve done better than ex­pected, we should have no problem.” He added, “The spirit, es­peter de corps, youth, and hunger for winning on this team is incom­parable.”

Each male on the team specializes in the use of a certain weapon, the saber, epee, or foil. Women are restricted to the foil. The weapons are constructed differ­ently and the method of scoring varies from weapon to weapon.

Baruch excels in the epee. David Moya, a sabre fencer, pointed out that this was so because the foil squad is entirely new. Leading the epee squad is John McKenzie, in his senior year. He is undefeated in 13 competitions. He said for the reason for his success was, “We’ve best coaching staff around.” He added, “The fencing spirit is. Every player is a CLUNY champion.” According to Moya, the only team with the potential of beating Baruch is City College. “But this year we’re tiring, we should beat them.”

This year the epee squad may have carried the team, but next year when two of their leading fencers, McKenzie and Maurice Carrera graduate, the epee squad will no longer be as threatening as before. According to Moya, “By next year, our foil squad will be great.” The same can be said of the women’s squad, as they gain valuable competitive experience.

“We’ve experienced trouble getting players,” said coach Ballinger.

Coach Without A Team?

By Michael Latinsky

Over the last month Baruch Athletic Director Dr. William Eng has been looking for a new head coach for the Baruch Statesmen baseball team. The search has ended, and there may have found a coach for the team. It might turn out that he doesn’t have a team to work with.

The strange turn of events which have transpired over the past several weeks leaves the Statesmen’s 1984 season in doubt. According to John Krochak, a former member of the team, andformer coach, “I’m worried that there might not be a team,” said Krochak, “I’d really hate to see it happen.” Krochak added that there was a problem because not enough players have shown interest in playing for the team this year.

In addition the pool of players has been diminished by recent graduates, and also those students who have been placed on proba­tion.

Before this problem had surfaced Eng wanted a person with good organizational skills. He indicated that organization was one of the teams major flaws last season.

Eng finally found a person who fit these qualifications and offered the job to him. This man, Peter Becker, a math and science teacher at St. Frances de Chantal in Brooklyn, is a former member of the Baruch baseball team during the years 1976-80. According to Eng, the job was offered to Lade­donna during the week of February 6th. As of press time Lade­donna hadn’t got back to Eng as to whether he would accept or re­ject the offer.

Thus at this juncture the Statesmen’s season is in doubt. It is possible that they might have a coach without a team to work with. Therefore when spring rolls around, Baruch might be devoid of that perennial sound of “Play Ball.”

IBA ROUND UP

By Joseph Fagan

The games leading up to the coveted Intramural Basketball Association Championship Game were far from uneventful. Almost every game came down to the wire. On November 3rd, with 8 seconds remaining, the Gentleman’s Quintet failed to tie the score and lost to the Not Ready for Varsity Players, 58-56, Gerald Taylor (17 pts.) led the Not Ready attack, along with Jeff Anderson (7 pts., 9 rebs.) and Derek Hogg (10 pts., 11 rebs.) G.Q. was led by Mike Green (16 pts.), Gary Brown (10 pts., 11 rebs.), and Rod Wildgoose (1 pts., 12 rebs.). In the second game, Hoop Connection’s Michael Mc­Daniel (20 pts., 11 rebs.) and Mari­on Haiger (10 pts.) held off a late second half rally by the Hawks to win 74-59. The Hawks’ offense was spearheaded by freshman George Finley (20 pts., 5 rebs.).

On November 10th, the Hard­wood Hotshots defeated the In­dependents, 59-54. The Hotshots were led by the game’s high scorer forward Kenny James (19 pts., 6 rebs.) and Steve Robinson (16 pts., 11 rebs.). The Independents were led by freshmen Erwin Wade (16 pts., 5 rebs.), Scottie Scott (9 pts., 9 rebs.), and guard Anderson Regis (13 pts.), in a losing effort. In the second game, Fly Slamma Jamma frustrated the All World Crew, 71-56. Fly led a balanced attack, getting 18 pts. each from Roger Miller and Andy Yarder (9 rebs.). Center Mike Houston scored 4 points and grabbed a game high 12 rebounds. For the All World Crew, Al Lazada (23 pts., 10 rebs.) and Scott Abramson (16 pts., 6 rebs.) supplied the offense.

On November 17th, G.Q. out­rebonded the Hawks to eliminate them from the tournament 66-40. G.Q. was led by forward David Toone (19 pts., 12 rebs.) and guard Mike Armstrong (14 pts., 10 rebs.). The Hawks were led by Marlon Pelle’s 10 points and 10 rebounds. In game two, N.R.V.P. made a late comeback to overtake the Hoop Connection II 54-42, N.R.V.P. was once again led forward Gerald Taylor (22 pts.). Forward Anthony Gentry added 14 points. Michael McDaniel (19 pts.) kept the Hoop Connection in the game, along with Anel Tyrell (10 pts.).

After Thanksgiving recess, on December 1st, in quarterfinal play, the Hardwood Hotshots eliminated the All World Crew, 55-53 in an unbelievable upset. The Hotshots got three players into double figures: Kenny James (15 pts., 7 rebs.), Tony Bolden (12 pts., 6 as­sists), and Tony Durant (10 pts.). Steve Robinson also grabbed 12 re­bounds. Trailing most of the game, Sidi Phillips (6 pts.) and Al Lazada (19 pts., 7 rebs.) brought the All World Crew back into the game, but the Crew experienced late turn­overs. Center Bill Davis broke the I.B.A. rebounding record (18 rebs.) and scored 20 points in a losing ef­fort. In game two, G.Q. eliminated the Hoop Connection II, 48-42. Hoop II outrebounded G.Q. (34-26) but had a free throw percent­age of 0. Mike Green took control of most of the game, scoring 22 points and grabbing 9 rebounds. Gary Brown added 13 points, with 9 rebounds. For the Hoop Conne­ction, Garland Mitchell (10 pts., 13 rebs.) controlled the boards, but fouled out late in the second half.

Michael McDaniel added 16 points and 7 rebounds.

With four teams remaining in semi-final play, on December 9th, Fly Slamma Jamma literally fouled out G.Q., 77-64, to advance to the final. The whole starting five of G.Q. by the game’s end had fouled out. Despite the halftime score, the I.B.A. All-Stars beat the Varsity team last year with a buzzer basket, 85-83.
