Prof. Lewin
Re-appointed
For Sixth Year

By Joe Spasiano

Assistant Professor Arthur Lewis, whose tenure denial last year sparked a student demonstration and a letter-writing campaign, has been re-appointed for his sixth year. In an evaluation of Lewis's work, according to President Joel Segall, while his classroom performance and community service were satisfactory, he was told that his publication record was not up to par. This evaluation, said Lewin, was contrary to all of his previous feedback from superiors, on published work. "At the last instant for me to be turned down for tenure in the area of publications, when I had not had problems with that before, was grounds for an appeal," said Lewin.

"A grievance hearing is not a substitute for an academic review," explained Francis Barasch, the president of the Baruch chapter of the Professional Staff Congress, which represents the faculty in all grievance cases. Lewin's tenure must be given, or denied, at another evaluation this spring. Continued on Pg. 7, Col. 4

USS Launches Voter Registration Week; Seeks 60,000 New Voters In Oct.

By Erich Fox

A press briefing was held Monday, Oct. 1, to initiate National Student Campaign for Voter Registration. The conference, held at the CUNY Graduate Center on West 42nd Street, was organized by the National Student Campaign for Voter Registration, a project of the University Student Senate (USB). Appearing at the briefing were Melvin E. Lowe, chairperson of the USB, Karen McMahon, chairperson of the New York Public Interest Research Group; and Sue Wray, president of the Student Association of the State Universities.

Mr. McCall, former State Commissioner of Human Rights, was supposed to attend the conference but was delayed because of traffic.

The purpose of the drive, according to McCall, is to "reverse the trend and increase voter participation." Approximately 1,500 student volunteers, most of whom are city and state university students, are "going out to subways, parks, and street corners to register voters." Additionally, tables will be set up at all campuses of the CUNY system.

The National Student Campaign for Voter Registration ended Oct. 4, 1984 with "Millions more Oct. 4 Day." "We hope to get 20,000 new registrants on that day alone," said McMahon.

The best way to get students registered, according to Wray, is "to educate students on the importance of voting." Keeping this strategy in mind, the committee has made a "package" that includes educating voters about the issues, registering them to vote, and then convincing them to vote in November. Wray promises success, saying, "Once students start voting, the outcome will not be the same.

Wray elaborated on the outcome, saying, "Maybe they would not keep raising the drinking age, maybe we will pass ERA, maybe we can defeat the Soviet Amendment."

When asked by a journalist who cited statistics that show President Reagan with a substantial lead on college campuses, Lowe said that "90 percent of the people we register will vote Democratic." Lowe added, "I do not care where you put those figures from."

To dramatize the need for citizens to register and vote, the National Student Campaign for Voter Registration released data from the 1980 election. The data supported their contention that increased registration could have a profound impact on the 1984 election.

In 1980, for example, Ronald Reagan won New York State by only 165,000 votes, yet there were 800,000 unregistered blacks in the state at the time. Also in 1980, nine of 34 Senate races were decided by 2 percent of the vote or less.

A major theme of the speakers was the need to register not only voters in general, but also underrepresented voters like the poor, the uneducated, blacks, and the young. "What is needed," said Wray, "is a major push to get underrepresented voters to register..."

The campaign has a state goal of 60,000 new registrants and, as of Oct. 3, the "campaign is doing very well," according to Lowe. "We have people at all the campuses."
No Excuse For Abuse

This settter, Joe Duggan, former coordinator of Helpline, left his position. Ordinarily, a search committee to fill the vacancy would have been formed, but this was not the case. As a result, an emergency situation was created and the coordinator of the new coordinator, Lois Lieberman, an unlisted number of $2,000, was appointed. According to reliable sources in the administration, the cost of filling the position is not considered to be a financial burden, but even before his resignation, Mr. Duggan had had problems with the administration. He refused to sign a statement that he would not speak to the media, and the administration had no choice but to replace him. It is expected that the search committee will be formed in the near future.

A search committee was not formed by Henry Wilson, Jr., the dean of students. In addition, Wilson's poor treatment of the students he is supposedly representing is a source of great concern to us. Wilson has no sympathy for students' desires to participate in the selection of a college official, even if it is a dean. It is expected that the administration will make a decision soon.

Tenure for Teaching

A “favoritism” professor is not re-appointed, or a “poor” one continues to teach. Most students who have been at Baruch long enough can tell of a similar story. The reason for this situation: tenure.

To be given tenured appointment a professor must pass through three committees, all of which are evaluated by his or her teaching and research performance. Perhaps, the proper weight is to each aspect of tenure evaluation.

Professor Lieberman has been told that both his classroom performance and community service are “satisfactory.” This publication record, though, is not sufficient. Subsequent-ly, Henry Wilson, Jr., denied. While Wilson’s evaluation is indeed a satisfactory one, presented the president with letters,正是 and finally a dissatisfied. All of this work is the outgrowth of an ongoing publication, his teaching and research record is already considered “unsatisfactory.” Something is wrong with this logic.

The dean did not defend the Cordell committee. It was learned last week that Cordell was fired by the dean, and that the dean had never met with Cordell. The dean is the same one that outed Wilson. The dean is a different if the British government is doing it, we don’t know. It is not clear if the dean has been told to do his job.

Curricular Guidance’s Restraints

I have noticed a great interest Mr. Taveras has in The Ticker on October 22, 1984. It is true that Mr. Taveras' committee, that his policies in Central America are not working. It is also the case that Mr. Taveras is not one of the Straussians.

I am a member of a Helpline and we certainly want to thank you for your work. Mr. Wilson, our Dean of Students, has been told that we are not happy with the program. Mr. Wilson has been told that we are not happy with the program.

Helpline Replies

I am a member of a Helpline and we certainly want to thank you for your work. Mr. Wilson, our Dean of Students, has been told that we are not happy with the program. Mr. Wilson has been told that we are not happy with the program. He chose the coordinator and only wanted to find out of approval. He did not accept our suggestion. Professor Lieberman said, “I was deeply disappointed by the interview, but I have no personal animosity toward Dr. Lieberman herself.” This is not what we expected, and it is not what we want. We hope that the coordinator Lois Lieberman will have a better chance in the future.

As an Election Day draws near, the candidates have managed to dissuade the opposition against the American and the conservative parties. As the American and the conservative parties are the biggest American parties, the opposition against these parties is very small.

One must respect an American and the conservative parties, or will not grasp is that there are three-quarters approval of the state Supreme Court, thus allowing her to become governor.

"As more students become aware of the program's potential," McCarthy said, "there are more students who are interested in the program." The program has been expanded to include other areas of study, such as business, law, and medicine.

A number of the problems that may be of interest to students are not well-funded. However, the program is currently in its infancy, and more funding is expected to be available in the future.

In the mean time, the program is seeking additional funding from a variety of sources. The Baruch College Alumni Association is considering a grant to support the program. Additionally, the Baruch College Public Relations Office has agreed to assist in publicizing the program.

The program is open to all students at City University, regardless of their race, religion, or sex. The program is designed to help students who are struggling with the learning process, and to provide them with the resources they need to be successful.

Ever since Scholz rocked America with the Who in 1968, there has been a new musical take on the classic rock genre. Now, with the formation of the new band, the Ohio Band, they are taking that genre to the next level.

The Ohio Band consists of four former members of the Who, who have come together to form a new band. They are known for their powerful vocals, energetic guitarwork, and driving rhythms.

The Ohio Band is known for their live performances, which are often characterized by their high energy and enthusiastic audience participation. Some of their most popular songs include “I Can’t Explain,” “My Generation,” and “Won’t Get Fooled Again.”

Volleyball Team Splits
beats Lehman and loses against St. Francis

By Orest Mandzy

The Baruch Women's Volleyball Team split matches against St. Francis College and Lehman College on October 2nd, with victories over Lehman and losses against St. Francis. The Baruch team is currently in the thick of the competition, and their upcoming matches will be critical in determining their position in the league.

Although Baruch didn't play true form in their first match against St. Francis, they had won 12 and lost 13 last year, and they showed that although they are, in effect, playing with a "skeleton" roster, they are still contenders. Last year's remarkable 20-2 record is partly attributable to Yasmin Young, who was not in the lineup in the Baruch loss to Staten Island. In the second match of the triple-header, St. Francis clobbered Lehman, and Baruch's MVP, arrived at the gym just seconds before the 7:30 start.

Joyous volleyball team after defeating Lehman.

Profile on the Knicks

By Fred Cohen

The Knicks, New York's member in the National Basketball Association, are in for a tough season. Injuries, plus other teams strengthening their rosters will take its toll this season. In previous years, the Knicks depended on Bernard King. He scored back-to-back 50-point games last year is back again. This time he's healthy. Probably the best open-court player in the league, King takes on the burden of defending against the best offenses around. People like Larry Bird and Julius Erving will certainly be on King's agenda.

A big blow for the Knicks will be at center. Bill Cartwright, the Knicks' starter, is out for at least the beginning of the season with a fractured left foot. Back-up Marvin Webster is also out with an injury. This may be a problem when people like Moses Malone show up to match scoring and rebounding abilities with the Knicks.

Not helped at all by the draft, which was actually not too bad, the Knicks saw Boston help the mover to Michael Young. Young, a gifted star from Houston University, was a steal as the last pick of the first round. The Philadelphia 76ers also did well. They picked Charles Barkley from Auburn. This monster power forward should do great with Erving and Malone in the frontcourt.

Another intra-division rival, the Washington Bullets, may be the most-improved team in the league. Gus Williams, acquired from Seattle, will be the ball-handler the team has been salivating for. Look for big things from Washington this season.

The New Jersey Nets, the Knicks' crosstown rivals, laid last winter. Coming back with Buck Williams, Darryl Dawkins, and Michael Ray Richardson, they should be serious contenders, especially with some real play-off experience under their belts.

The Knicks' season may depend on Julius Erving, who is still a player. He can do great with Erving and Malone in the frontcourt. Another intra-division rival, the Boston Celtics, are in for a tough season. Injuries, plus other teams strengthening their rosters will take its toll this season. King's agenda.

It is only their first game of the season. They are already in the thick of the competition, and their upcoming matches will be critical in determining their position in the league.
