Fleecing of Black and Hispanic Studies

Recent resignations cause underlying problems to surface

By Bryan Fleck
Senior Staff Writer

Ever since its inception on American campuses in the late 1960s, the role of cultural studies has been seen as controversial as race itself. Baruch College is no exception.

Professor Arthur Lewis was recently asked to resign as chairman of Baruch's Black and Hispanic studies department in what he says is a systematic destruction of the department by the college administration. But administrators counter that the department has become ineffective and needs to be rebuilt.

Baruch College President Edward Regan has been asked to address the situation, but did not send an email saying, "there were administrative problems," Lewin also did not comment on the reason given for his resignation, other than to say that "[Regan] gave me a reason, but I didn't believe it."

What is clear is that the embattled department is down to three tenured professors (including Lewis) and is currently operating without a chairman.

"They've already pulled the department apart," said Lewin. "There's no department here.

Lewis honored the request to step down and said that he will not fight Regan's decision. Because he is no longer chairman of the department, Lewis is no longer a part of Baruch's administration. This fact, he said, gives him more room to criticize the administration.

Lewis's resignation follows on the heels of the embattled resignation of a department professor, Martha Vega. Vega sent a letter of resignation after she was denied tenure by the Weissman School of Arts and Sciences Personnel and Budget Committee, in which each department chairperson has a seat. Had Vega chosen not to resign, she could have appealed the decision, at which point the matter would have been brought before the College, P&B Committee.

Provost Myma Chase said that Lewis did not do his job as chairman, which is one possible reason why Vega did not receive tenure.

"There's the whole question of leadership," said Chase. She noted that it is the job of the department chairperson to advise faculty of the entire step of the tenure-track process.

Guidelines for each P&B Committee specify three areas in which a professor is judged: scholarly work, service to the community and teacher evaluations. No where is it written that

Library Hours in Limbo

By Celina Ruben-Salama

The William and Anita Newman library has been kept open 24 hours during finals for the past two years. Some students have taken advantage of the extended hours to prepare for finals in a serious manner, however, the majority abused this privilege, and used the library for various unsuitable purposes, according to the administration. The student body is in danger of losing extended library hours during finals.

The spring semester of 1998 was the first time the library was kept open for 24 hours during finals. In order to keep costs down, only part of the library was kept open; the first two floors. Still, many students complained that the space was inadequate. "When they close off the floors it got too cramped," student Karl Bowkare said.

The students were heard by the Daytime Undergraduate Student Government, DSSG, who presented the administration with a proposal to keep the entire library open. The proposal was accepted on a trial basis, and during spring 2000, all five floors remained open.

In order to determine if there were enough students using the facilities, security guards were

Virus Infects Online Workshop

Julia Adams
Contributing Staff Writer

The SPAR online workshop was ironically delayed due to a campus-wide virus alert, which prevented the presentation from being delivered as planned—via the internet.

On Tuesday, December 5, in the office of SPAR, (Sponsored Programs and Research) was scheduled to host an online grant resource workshop for Baruch faculty and staff. This workshop was designed to provide interested attendees to new resources and links available to aid their search for funding opportunities.

SPAR is located in the 17 Lex building, room 1521, and is available to Baruch faculty and staff members of all levels. The office offers research assistance with proposal, preparation, and submission.

The presenter, Paul Fran, Director of SPAR, decided to deliver his presentation as best he could without the visual, hands-on support of the overhead computer presentation.

"This is the drawback to having everything on a web page," said Fran, to break the ice.

Though the faculty and staff who attended did express their interest in seeing how to gain access grants and simplify the procedure, the workshop was paralyzed by the lack of visual understanding.

Despite the discouraging turn of events, Kran never broke a sweat. With his ample knowledge of the services the SPAR office provides, he managed to deliver his presentation on a more personal level, addressing the discussion points from his outline to individuals and their current standing in the grant search process.

Kran also explained the services his office provides beyond the grant assistance and research, such as providing technical assistance in areas dealing with CUNY human subject requirements and processes, recruitment processing of potential faculty members, new faculty orientation activity assistance, and offer funding opportunities at departmental meetings.

The most vocal attendee of the group was Dorothy Dolegite, from the Baruch's Computer Department, who had lots of questions and interest in the information offered.

"I am looking to do searches on a more comfortable level, that is why I attended today," Dolegite said. "I think many people can benefit from this service, and I do intend to invite Paul to come and discuss his ideas with some other colleagues."

Director Kran's assistant, Christine Rahmy, explained, "we intend to have more workshops like this one, and I am pleased with the turnout, despite the computer problems."

Despite Kran's efforts to keep the workshop alive, he eventually decided that he would attempt this workshop again at a later date, and even try to address different departments individually should they desire his presentation.

On Thursday Nov. 9, the bulletin board outside of rooms 401-404 of the 360 PAS building was set on fire. Both the bulletin board and the rooms are shared by Christian organizations the InterVarsity Christian Fellowship and the Newman Center. The fire was extinguished by Rodriguez, a security personnel.

Success of the 2000 Accounting Fall Banquet

By Yael Keynan

Coordinating Writer

The 2000 Accounting Fall Banquet was held in the Conference Center on November 30, 1999. The event was organized by the Accounting Society and was open to all students.

The banquet was a huge success, with over 200 people in attendance. The evening began with a speech from the club president, followed by a performance by the school's dance team. The main attraction of the evening was the keynote speaker, who discussed the importance of accounting in today's world.

The event was also a great opportunity for students to network and meet new people. Many alumnae and professionals attended, and there were many opportunities for students to meet and speak with them.

Overall, the event was a huge success, and it is hoped that the Accounting Society will organize similar events in the future.

Observing Ramadan at Baruch

By: Maram Alaa

Managing Editor

Ramadan is one of the most important events in the Islamic calendar. It is a time of spiritual reflection, fasting, and community service. This year, Baruch College celebrated Ramadan in a variety of ways.

The College provided a space for students to break their fasts and pray during the month. There were also guest speakers who talked about the significance of Ramadan and the importance of giving back to the community.

Overall, the College did a great job of incorporating Ramadan into the school's activities. It is hoped that this event will help to bring the Baruch community together and promote a sense of unity and understanding.

Final Thoughts

I would like to start off by thanking me. Get Off editor, Frank Monge. It has been a great pleasure to work with him. I also have to thank him for being the only person that would agree to see any of my articles. Frank has not only been the only person that would agree to see my articles, but he is also a real friend.

The reason I am so thankful is that he is the only one that I will talk about school planning in the future. I am writing this because I wanted the readers to know that I was able to see a real person and not just a name on a piece of paper.

Please reread the piece in a few years and you will be able to see the true meaning of the words that I have written. I hope that you will appreciate the Ticker as well. I hope that you will continue to be involved in the Ticker as much as you possibly can.

I am also thankful to the Ticker because they have given me a great opportunity to write for the newspaper. I hope that you will continue to support the Ticker as much as you possibly can.

Words of Flame

In recent weeks, I have been hearing that a few, audible, and probably ordinary English Club has been pulling the Ticker into the Asylum. So I decided to write this lawsuit in order to put a stop to it.

The Ticker goes through a brutal time to give you voice every week. In fact, you can't do the work unless we do. The Ticker staff is determined to make sure that we do it. We are working hard to make sure that the Ticker is the best it can possibly be.

The Ticker has been a great place to work. I have made a lot of friends and I have learned a lot. I hope that you will continue to support the Ticker as much as you possibly can.

Shame on the Media for the Professional Elections

If you want to speak your mind with no restrictions, exercise your freedom of speech in the street, then write for the Ticker. (No pay and no print. That's all.) I have been a part of the Ticker since 1998 and I can say that the Ticker is an excellent outlet for those who want to express their views. I hope that you will continue to support the Ticker as much as you possibly can.

The media's naked judgment on November 7th (Election Day) is declared the winner of the presidential election. This is a true representation of the true percentage of voters who cast the ballot for the candidate of their choice.

The media cannot be trusted. They have been badmouthing the Ticker and the Asylum. So I decided to write this harmless article to let everyone know that the Ticker is the best publication in the world.

Final Thoughts

Over the course of this fall, I’ve read a vivid mix of viewpoints on the subject of the op-eds section. It was a fascinating experience—putting my thoughts on paper and knowing that someone really put in thought and care in compiling their piece. This stand that stood in my mind is one that I’ve been thinking about not just in the context of the op-eds section, but the larger picture of the way that we choose to present our personal viewpoints, whether it be in the context of broader issues like racism or social profiling, and the first impressions that people form when meeting new people.

As I come to the realization of a truly diverse body of people who contribute to this section, it struck me that we can all learn a lot from each other. Our experiences, however brief, can help us to grow as individuals and as a society.

I would never have imagined that there could be such camaraderie at Baruch, or that one could find themselves in the middle of a discussion on racial profiling, and the first impressions that people form when meeting new people. Our experiences, however brief, can help us to grow as individuals and as a society.

I have listened to them, and I have learned from them. We all have our own experiences, and we all have our own perspectives. Our experiences, however brief, can help us to grow as individuals and as a society.

I hope that you will continue to support the Ticker as much as you possibly can.

Yet Another Final Thought

The Ticker is always looking for promising men and women with the ability to express themselves clearly and concisely on various issues of the day. Are you one of them? No one of the few, the brave, the talented. If you have anything to say, at all, write to Franckene@hotmail.com Create a voice for yourself, stop being a sheep.

New GM Marketing Internship Class Offered at Baruch

By Adam Osterweil

New GM Marketing Internship Class Offered at Baruch

On Thursday, Nov. 30, Baruch's Advertising and Marketing Department introduced the new GM 300 Internship Program outside of the 32nd Street building for current seniors. The program was created to provide students with the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in the automobile industry, and to help students brush up on their marketing skills.

The program is divided into three parts. The first part consists of a three-week internship in the marketing department of General Motors. This is an opportunity for students to learn about the company's marketing strategies and practices.

The second part of the program is a one-week internship in the sales department of a local dealership. This is an opportunity for students to learn about the sales process and how it relates to the marketing strategies of the company.

The third part of the program is a three-week internship in the advertising department of a local dealership. This is an opportunity for students to learn about the advertising strategies and practices of the company.

Students who participate in the program will be paid $10 per hour for the three-week internship. The program is open to all Baruch students who are majoring in advertising and marketing and who have completed at least one year of college.

The program will be offered in the spring semester of 2005. Interested students are encouraged to apply early, as space is limited.

For more information, contact Victoria Smith at 212-831-2644 or email victoria.smith@baruch.cuny.edu.
MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM GOES 2-1

The Baruch men's basketball team went 2-1 since the last issue. The Stannum defeated Polytechnic 59-46 and defeated Stevens Tech 72-63 in an exciting overtime game and then lost a nail-biter game to Medgar Evers 51-48. The Medgar Evers loss was like a double loss since it was a conference game, the Stannums first this year.

Confident losses are crucial because they determine the standings at the end of the season. Essentially, a team wins its division, as the Stannums did last year, then the team does not have to play in the first round — just wins two games to win CUNY. This time off can be huge since it potentially allows a team to regroup or build.

Additionally, the other teams will likely begin in two after the first round. Surely it is too early in the season to begin to express thoughts of individual stats, but the Stannums must keep everything in perspective — the team cannot take anything for granted this year, more than ever, no game will be handed to them. They must flat out win and prove that indeed they are Statesmen must keep everything in perspective — the team cannot take anything for granted this year, more than ever, no game will be handed to them. They must flat out win and prove that indeed they are

The Stevens Tech game was more of a barometer than anything else. Baruch was in great shape to begin with because Medgar Evers, which is known for its full court traps, did not dare trap Baruch out of what I could only assume was for the defending champs ability to break the press. But in one of the worst halves that I have seen the Stannums play — my good friends could've shot better — the Stannums missed countless lay-ups and a array of jump shots, it became apparent that the Stannums might not belong to Baruch. The Stannums ended up with a mere 14 points at the half but only trailed by 10 points. The defense was okay in the first half, with the occasional steal by Verazza and two blocked shots by Tzotliognas.

What really did the Stannums in was their lack of making shots. Baruch got plenty of whatever it wanted when it swung the ball or penetrated and kicked. Verazza used different combinations of perimeter shooters and nothing worked.

Baruch tried to spark the team with his strong moves to the hole late in the game and actually made good shots except for one — it was one of those shots that if he hit, everyone loves him but if he missed, it's a bad play. It was a questionable time to attempt the move since it was only early in the offense and Baruch had just called out a play. In Verizon's defense, he is at least his question to create which could not be said about most of the other players who insisted on taking shots from the perimeter when the opportunity to drive was there all night.

Medgar Evers was in the bonus early in both halves which meant that all the Stannums had to do was to go to the free throw line and knock them down. Baruch shot a woeful 4-26 from these point range — a real line that could not exist since most of the shots did not come off of good action and moreover, this was not the kind that could afford to take that many shots, but alas, more than half. The ball did not go inside to the big guys enough — normally when a team does a lot of perimeter shots, it establishes an inside game first. The team could not get the ball to the Thomas lane in the game and got some good action.

But still the team is having trouble making good shots out of the post, coming in the sight of the postmen when he has the ball and helping to time outs when they are in trouble off of traps. The team is, at times, leaving players out to dry!

The Stannums actually cut Medgar's lead to two with about three minutes left in the game but once again the turnover shifted to the Stannums as Baruch clearly lost its composure. Baruch reached off some points and Baruch could not find a way to get ahead of the Cougars. The game slowly came back to the way and Baruch could not get a steal and wound up losing by three 51-48. It should be noted that the officiating mask has been dropped but did not rate the good play to get over the hump.

There are many games to watch because as a spectator, you believe in your team and see all the many opportunities your team has to take the lead and back up. The team does not even miss a lead. Moreover, you can see yourself in the game. Additionally, you must play a defensive game to get over the hump.

The team has a lot of talent and ability of the Stateswomen to competing against each other. The team was paced by the stellar play of Jamees Wright who had 20 points. Even more promising is the fact that the team played well after getting blown out by Hunter 43-18. Hunter is arguably the best team in CUNY.

Some statistics for the team are that the team continues to rebound well behind the efforts of sophomoreEa is averaging 13 rebounds per game. The team also has one of the league leaders in steals — Evin Thompson is averaging 4.5. While the team has yet to win a game, they are looking really good and are capable of the good defense and scoring high numbers — it is just a matter of putting it all together.

WOMEN'S TEAM STRUGGLES

BUT REMAINS OPTIMISTIC

At press time, there are no concrete stats for the women's basketball team. That is to say, I know the record and the gist of what has happened, but the official box scores have not been submitted to Baruch.

The team has won a game yet but had some exciting games, including an overtime loss to Ithaca 65-63. This game was the team's first overtime game and one of the few games to showcase the talent and ability of the Stannums to competing against each other. The team was paced by the stellar play of Jamees Wright who had 20 points. Even more promising is the fact that the team played well after getting blown out by Hunter 43-18. Everyone has their philosophies, some Awesome and Scientists, others Parliament. Everyone has their philosophies. Among these, there is a philosophy that I call "Metal Forever!". It is a philosophy that I follow and believe in, and I want to share it with you today.

Metal Forever! is a philosophy that celebrates the power of heavy metal music and its impact on society. It is a philosophy that recognizes the importance of heavy metal in shaping the world and inspiring individuals to be their best selves.

The Year in Music: A Look Back at the Good, the Bad, and the Utterly Pathetic

By: Kristi stampoulos

It's official - the year 2000 proved to be the year for anyone who likes responsible music. While some artists didn't pan out, there were still plenty of great songs released. The first half of the year was left with very few memorable tracks, but the second half saw some unexpected hits. Who knew that the year would bring so many surprises?

The Pumpkins have changed greatly, though, "Disarm" their magic years ago with the release of their first album, "Siamese Dreams." Though, it seems like there's another boy or girl group breakup is long overdue. The Pumpkins lost their edge in the mid-90s, but still managed to produce some memorable music in the early part of the decade. With the release of "Adore," they showcased their creativity and experimented with different sounds. Their sound evolved over the years, and they became known for their distinct style.

We've laughed as Ricky Martin shook his bonafide pelvis off. His music has become more mature and impactful. We've seen Christina Aguilera show off her vocal prowess on songs like "Love Don't Cost a Thing." She's come a long way from her role as Genie in "Aladdin."

The Spice Girls have a new album out - "Spiceworld: The Spice Up Tour Live." They've sold five million copies of their new CD worldwide, and it's been a huge success. Let's get over our 90s nostalgia and appreciate their hard work. New Kids On The Block fell out of the public eye during this time, but I'm sure they'll make a comeback eventually. Although I don't agree with some of their political views, these guys did have some great songs.

Pop music seems to come and go in phases. In the 80's to early 90's gave us many memorable songs. We've seen acts like Devo, Prince, and The Smiths make music that would go on to influence generations. However, there was also a lot of commercialization happening at the time. It's hard when you're a big rock star, isn't it?

"Jenny's Got a Gun" is a song that expresses itself in a better way. I was lucky enough to see them perform live and it was an amazing experience.

If it doesn't happen to listen to de la Rocha's collaboration with Rage Against the Machine. Couldn't deal with "CivilWar" more than once. But in the end, it's worth it.

"Girls Just Want to Have Fun" was the perfect mix of dance and rock. These men do it all, and then some. A few songs from "Binaural," by Pearl Jam's "Binaural," were good. "Be My Name" was a decent music to get out. I owe a million thanks to "The Marshall Mathers LP." It's right. Far superior to his first album, "The Slim Shady LP." I don't think I'll ever get tired of listening to it.

It's interesting to see how much music can change. "The Second Part in a two part series" by Richard Spionoulos

The Second Part in a two part series

The minute Frank walked in he felt the goose bumps wherever she was. His heart raced as he scanned the room for Sondah. The place was crawling with clothes dealers. He noticed her in the back row, his best idea so far. They picked up the phone and started talking. After a few minutes, Frank walked over to where Sondah and Sara remained.

"You know your friend is alright, you should go see her. She's done a lot for you. You need to give her a second chance." Frank, so she allowed him hold her. Sometimes she felt a little sorry for him. He didn't have time for this. He would have killed for another chance.

"Can't we just be friends?" Frank asked. Sara hesitated for a second, but then nodded. "Yeah, it's a deal." Frank smiled politely and said it was a deal. Then he passed it to Sara. She hesitated for a second, but then nodded. "Yeah, it's a deal." Frank smiled politely and said it was a deal.

"I'm happy with that." Frank said. He said it was a deal. Sara hesitated for a second, but then nodded. "Yeah, it's a deal." Frank smiled politely and said it was a deal.

"I think you should go with Lisa. She's a really nice girl." Frank said. He said it was a deal. Sara hesitated for a second, but then nodded. "Yeah, it's a deal." Frank smiled politely and said it was a deal.

I am currently majoring in Finance & Investment with a minor in psychology or cis, am still undecided about that one. I got into photography almost by accident. I mean after all who expects to take art classes in Baruch College a place known for being the cuny business school? Most of the photographs you see here are of people I know pretty well, a few are just people that I know for a short while and who then I lost contact with. Some of these pictures are posed, but most are candid shots. When for a moment, because of conversation we were having or just the fact that so many shots had been taken, they grew used to the camera, they relaxed and let their guard down for a second. In that second you can see something, something real; something all of us have experienced at one time or another. You can't define everything you feel into such broad categories like happy, sad, etc. Don't try to guess what their feeling is if you can remember feeling the way they look. Those feelings are connected to memories of people or places, that good or bad, help define who you are as a person...

All of us here at the Asylum would like to to acknowledge our readers, to the first inclusion of our Lifestyles section. We are hoping that you will be able to enjoy this new portion of the Asylum and gain pertinent information for your lives here in New York City. As students, living in the Big Apple, we are subjected to many diff erent cultures and genres that make up the essence of our city. Displayed in this issue are some of our very own fellow students showing off their fashion and style. There is also a health section that will give you tips on how to bring those stress levels down during the stressful end of the year.
You can look forward to seeing other fun features on nightlife, shopping, and restaurants. There will also be interviews and articles on people who are making a living through some other than a business time. We will also be featuring students in upcoming issues who are fulfilling other ambitions while earning the ever-important college degree. As always we definitely are encouraging you to give us your input. Your comments are certainly necessary and vital. We will not be able to deliver to you the best and most interesting information if we do not know what your lifestyle entails.

TONE'S Guitarist Speaks Out On MTV, K-Rock, and Roadrunner

Type Of Negative: Some of you may have heard the name at some point in your life. Many of you haven't. This Brooklyn-based post-hardcore band has been around for a few years now, and they've built a reputation for being a bit of a Tour de Force on the indie scene. From the staid of the last album.

Kenny: Well, we're really starting to get our feet under us. You're not happy with the way Roadrunner has been treating you over the years. I mean considering that, think about it, you have to fill your Contractual agreements, are you looking for a better place to work, or are you just looking for a new challenge?

The Offspring has finally dropped its eighth album, simply called The Offspring. The Offspring went on to release this album. The album contains the song from the movie The Offspring was the song featured in the album. The song is a collaboration between Slick Rick and The Offspring. The album also has a song called "Rapper's Delight," which is one of the most popular hip-hop songs of all time.

Flashback CD of the Week

Slick Rick: The Great Adventures of Slick Rick (Def Jam, 1988)

The Great Adventures Of Slick Rick is perhaps his most defining album. The album, which is Slick Rick's third album, is considered to be his breakthrough album. The album features the hit song "La Di Da Di," which became a massive hit and helped to establish Slick Rick as a major force in the rap game. The album also features the hit song "Cabbage Patch," which is another classic from Slick Rick's discography.

The album was released on Def Jam Records, the label that was responsible for launching the careers of many of the biggest rap artists of the 1980s and 1990s. The album was produced by The Sugarhill Gang, who were a key influence on the rap scene at the time. The album was also produced by the legendary music producer, 2 Live Crew, who was known for his pioneering work in the rap genre.

The album was critically acclaimed at the time of its release and is still considered to be one of the greatest rap albums of all time. It has been reissued several times over the years and is still regularly played on radio stations and in hip-hop clubs around the world. The album is a testament to Slick Rick's talent as a rapper and his ability to craft hooks and choruses that stick in the mind.

The album was a massive success and helped to launch Slick Rick's career as one of the biggest names in rap. The album's success also helped to establish Def Jam Records as a major player in the music industry. The album's legacy continues to this day, and it is still considered to be one of the greatest rap albums of all time.
5:00 A.M. still half asleep
I answered the telephone.
"Come on up here honey, it's time to wake up.
I recognized Momma's calm, soft voice.
So quiet, but frightening all at once.
All traces of sleep left me inside.
My emotions turned off like a light.
My eyes grew dim.
I hung up the phone, woke my brother.
Outside we walked in silence.

Not a sound, all seemed still.
Like the sun, still dark.
Grandmother's building was always distant.
We stopped at her door.
I reached for the knob.
Could not turn it.

My emotions came back in.
My eyes grew bright, my hand shook.
God, not now, I thought.
I turned, held still on the door,
And stared into my brother's face.
Outside we stood in silence.
We knew what lay beyond that door.
Past the kitchen, to the right of the living room.

My brother's face grew cloudy.
A tear ran down my cheek.

I looked into the living room.
At the faces of my aunt, my mother.
Their faces filled my mind, waiting to fall like rain.

From swollen clouds.
"Come inside honey, it's okay."
Season Of Heroes

The role of a lifetime

The sun sets once again, on this season of heroes, Wartiders of the shining summer, and of many moretomorrows. They walk in golden strikes, every step a bloodand sweat Takes pride in battles fought, countless of challenges met Their head high, stand high, than their adversaries Their leader is chiseled, from the team's heart he carry The team that fills inside, each holy flame of attack Hunger that ache within, keeps their composure intact "Charge" says the leader, "Charge onto the battlefield Leave mercy in the winter, leave your hearts on the field"

Wrath Upon All

Like stacked dominoes crumbles, when the front is pushed well...

Enemies' days were numbered, their commander stood alone

You are nothing but a pathetic creature, that's all you'll ever be.

They run with the howling winds, every inch of hard earned fight Bleeders are for the weak, that numbs on the freezing wire"

Battle lines were erased, but forever sketched in the sand

As the battalion embark, on this journey of fate

I now pity you for what you did, one day you will see.

Hunger that aches within, keeps their composure intact

Many years ago when I was a little kid.

"Charge!" says the leader, "Charge onto the battlefield

Ghosts of yesteryears, from their graves they arise

I, I now pity you for what you did, one day you will see.

But in the end they will all be...

Surviving

Every time we lost, I got lost in the moment I saw visions of the past I see you there

Picking me up

Wiping my tears

Making me smile

Giving me strength

Standing by my side

For all I'm not, I feel blessed

When I open my eyes

If you I return in love

I'm not sure how to show you my gratitude

But I will spend the rest of my life trying

Trying to make you happy

Thank you for loving me

Thank you for being there

Thank you from the bottom of my broken heart.

No Title

Bastard, don't you remember what you did?

Many years ago was I a little kid.

You took my innocence with the touch of your hand.

You left me not with physical scars, emotional ones instead.

You left me not with physical scars, emotional ones instead.

One that doesn't fade away, but linger inside one's head.

You are nothing but a pathetic creature, that's all you'll ever be.

No prisoners are taken, no stones left unturned

When they should be trickling down yours?

What do you get from watching?

Why you are not the one saying all this?

I hear no one can really understand

How much I'm hurting

Its never ending pain

There is no stopping this

He is holding me so gently

He pats his hands on my tears

With the other he wipes my tears

He looks at me with such compassion

I cannot put this pain into words

I am, falling apart inside

Emptiness, Loneliness

Therefore, Responsibility, Maturing

Learning, Amazement; Excitement

Endless stream of bloody pain

Yet no one can hear my cries

I cannot handle it anymore

I am, falling apart inside

Hurt, Pain, Sorrow

It's hurting so much

It's hurting so much

Can

You Feel Me

Am I just a spectators to your sick idea of fun?

I've kept this dirty little secret, hidden deep inside

At times it made me feel so ashamed, that I often cried.

I couldn't stop you I I was too young to understand.

I still remember that night you know, I always will.

The memories of what you did remain with my still

It wasn't just my body... but my mind that was defined.

I asked you to stop, but you just kept going and smiled.

You left me not with physical scars, emotional ones instead.

One that doesn't fade away, but linger inside one's head.

Did others suffer at your hands, was I the only one?

Was ever subjected to your sick idea of fun?

I've kept this dirty little secret, hidden deep inside

At times it made me feel so ashamed, that I often cried.

As I drive up to see you once more

My heart is racing, pounding

As I step out of the car

My vision is blurred by my burning tears

Yet I find my way to you

I have huge knot in my throat

I could hardly breathe, I slowly catch my breath

I have so much to tell you

I need to say I love You

I am missing you

As I press play to hear out song

I close my eyes

And there you are

Dancing with me

I see my smile is so beautiful

I hold you so tenderly

I see my future

I get lost in the moment

PrezDave: Dude, he didn't.

“Leadership Weekend” was a time well spent by all. Together, as a united Baruch community, we learned, we integrated our groups together, and we furthered our communication skills. All of us equally learned life lessons in business, and the teamwork which makes business successful. We also learned a lot about our alcohol intake and the pure beauty of a whole student body running underground under its ever amazing influence. Please enjoy the pictures that made “Leadership Weekend” everything we all wanted it to be.

Deferring taxes with TIAA-CREF can be so rewarding, you'll wonder why you didn't do it sooner.

One of the fastest ways to build a retirement nest egg is through tax-deferred Supplemental Retirement Annuities (SRAs) from TIAA-CREF. With funds automatically deducted from your paycheck, you can easily build income to supplement your pension and Social Security. And your contributions to SRAs grow undepreciated by taxes until you withdraw the funds. Add to that TIAA-CREF's solid history of investment performance, bolstered by our commitment to keeping expenses low, and you have more money working for you.

So why wait? Let us help you build a comfortable retirement today with tax-deferred SRAs. We think you will find it rewarding in the years to come.

*Note: Under federal tax law, withdrawals prior to age 59½ may be subject to a 10% additional tax.

Marilyn Manson's Perpetuum Secundum label. Now we have the main attraction— the alternative Christ superman. Marilyn Manson. All I can say is that this was the one day off I have ever had with a band. The singer from Cold, a bald man who took SO MUCH opening bands. All his popular songs were played, and Manson stood up on huge sticks he did in one of his videos. I guess that Manson is a loser, I guess that he is sick of our current political situation, and said that all the other things are for the middle finger.

Marilyn Manson's "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun," the new album, features Manson as Narrator (who is sent to the nursery) and a baby catered to the crowd. There were two costume changes, including a priest outfit. The performance of "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun" was a good example of how true talent, and good songwriting.

This was one of the best performances I have seen in a long time. Comparisons between her and Madonna are not quite favorable. However, Manson's songs were understandable due to the similarity of the rhythms and the meter of many of them.

Big Apple Circus: Out Clowning Around Town...Once Again

By: Kevin

Allow me to start by how my experience with the Big Apple Circus has changed out of the circus grounds. I have seen the performances of Chef Byrd's Big Apple Circus, and the only question on my mind was: Why do I do this? Chef Byrd and I had a conversation about this question.

"How did that change continue so quick?" I asked. "Well, I used to be thinking of ways to make this whole circus better, but now I am thinking of ways to make it even better!"

The Big Apple Circus is a world-class entertainment, mesmerizing, and educational experience. The performers are not only good at their craft, but they also engage the audience in a way that is both entertaining and educational. The Big Apple Circus is truly indicative of the music of the Godhead. The first artist on Marilyn Manson includes all the tracks of the original 1983 Grammy-winning album, plus.

Cyndi Lauper
She's Un lắm (re-release)
By: Jessica Rubenstein

Singer/songwriter Cyndi Lauper was born in New York City. She is best known for her hit single "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun," which topped the charts in 1983.

Lauper's latest album, "She's Un modalità," is a collection of unreleased songs from her previous albums. The album features a variety of styles, from pop to rock, and showcases Lauper's versatility as a performer.

Guns, God, and Government Tour (Marilyn Manson w/ Godhead & Cold

By: Jeffrey Belsky

Art Editor. I just attended the two-day event titled "Guns, God, and Government Tour," which included performances by Marilyn Manson, Godhead, and Cold.

Marilyn Manson's name is synonymous with shock rock, and her concerts are known for their theatrical productions, heavy metal music, and controversial content. The show was no exception, with Manson performing a setlist that included hits from her critically acclaimed albums, "Mechanical Animals" and "Holy Wood (In the Shadow of the Valley of Death)."

Godhead is a band that has been active since the early 1980s and has released several albums, including "The World Is a Ghetto," which features collaborations with such artists as Afrika Bambaataa and DJ Hype. The band's music is characterized by a blend of hip-hop and electronic beats.

Cold is an industrial metal band that was formed in 1984. The band's sound is a mixture of electronic beats, industrial instruments, and metal riffs, and they are known for their theatrical performances, which often involve elaborate stage props and lighting effects.

The concerts were held at the Hammerstein Ballroom in New York City. The venue was packed with fans from all over the country, and the energy in the room was electric. The performances by each band were well-received, with the audience cheering and shouting along to the music.

The Guns, God, and Government Tour was a unique event that brought together three influential bands from different genres. The concert was a testament to the power of music and its ability to bring people together, regardless of their differences.
