President Seagull Takes Subway

Baruch Students Question His Vast Wardrobe

By CARMEN MOTO

Jonathan Livingston Seagull, president of Baruch, has decided to begin taking the subway to school, giving up his college-provided limousine service, in an uncharacteristic wave of altruism. The money previously used for the Seagull's limo will now go towards hiring more professors to open up more business courses for students.

Seagull, "I could no longer justify living this jet-set lifestyle knowing that many poor, suffering Baruch students were getting closed out of courses because of a lack of funds. You know I've been told that some of them actually can't graduate on time because of that!"

While Seagull's decision to take the subway has given many students their first glimpse of the president, sources said with New York City's mass transit system has not been an easy adjustment for him. Said Pablo Esclais, chief academic officer and provost, "He still can't get used to the fact that a telephone and a TV set are not immediately available in a subway car."

Meanwhile, rumors are flying that Seagull's interest in public transportation has led to him calling for a new assistant to be appointed to be a metaphysical lawyer to the college's Kyle Northstar, attorney and noted spiritual healer for National Enquirer will file the charges. Northstar, one might remember, is the lawyer who won visitation rights for the deceased Peter Sellers to see his daughter. The mother Brit Ekland objected saying, "A cemetery is not the kind of place for a young girl to spend her weekends." She added, "Peer is just not a good father anymore, he's too hunched with her daughter." The case is on appeal.

The Reverend Al Sharpton has been called in to defend the case against Baruch College's treatment of Branson, by organizing another Day of Outrage. However, before he could boycott the Mr. Soffe Company to protest their selling of a disproportionate amount of vanilla ice cream, an action which as usual, has nothing to do with anything, he was told by Morton Downey Jr. that Branson was white. Sharpton, apologized prophetically in the Baruch Administration saying, "If he was white he's glad he's dead."

Baruch's main argument against Branson teaching at the college is only bureaucratic. Said Baruch president, Joel Seckhall, "We've had plenty of corpse teach at Baruch. In fact some of our best teachers have been dead. We are a fair and impartial school Teachers who are tenured can feel comfortable in the knowledge that they will still have their jobs even after death." "But," he added, "Branson went one step too far. He's not a corpse, he was cremated. We had to take his position at the school anyway because it's against the rules. If a teacher cannot be in the actual faculty picture, he loses his tenure. Branson in an urn just won't cut it."

Northstar has filed charges and hopes to get the rule expanded to include urns, pepper shakers, shoe polishers, (old coke bottles or any other human ash receptacle).

Student Government Funds Religious Cult Figures

BY K. E. PARDO

Ima Crookards, president of the Day Session Student Government, emphasized at the beginning of the week that the student government has been improperly funding religious and cult figures such as the Bhagwan Rajneesh, the Reverend Sun Yung Moon and his Unification Church, and Tammy Faye Baker.

Crookards claimed that all are presidents of clubs charted with the DSSG. Although no documentation to verify this could be produced, Crookards said, "Hey man, you can't jump to conclusions about improper funding just because my version of the truth doesn't coincide with the evidence."

According to college rules, all clubs, student organizations, and cults must be chartered by the Day Session Student Council. This charter must also include a letter of purpose and a list of at least 10 members. All must be present before a group may receive student funds.

During the initial search on March 1, 1988 for DSSG documents concerning this matter, Crookards said: "I could look for a menu for Pizzazz's Catering, on Lexington Avenue. According to MedicalILLS, overtime of the DSSG, all other documents held by the student government had been sent out for copying. Said Ima, "We sent those 10 sheets of paper along with our director of religious affairs, on Egg and Ham, out for reproduction. Ima [Crookards] says they will be back in a semester or two after he's gone."

Crookards would not comment on the absent records. Vice president Chapter-One Genesis of the DSSG did say, "I am Sam. Sam I am. Would you like some green eggs and ham? That's a great quote and it is our favorite book." A second senior denied charges that DSSG documents produced three vouchers showing payments made to the Bhagwan and Mrs. Baker. The first attempt failed on February 16. He purchased intensified air filters and beads for one of his 53 Rolls Royces. He put the red carpet down for comment in his home in Canada, the Bhagwan said, "Yes my son, but Crookards is to very, very, kind for buying me accessories like my car. The Baruch DSSG has been an easy adjustment for him."

The Bhagwan fled this country early last year when faced with charges of tax evasion.

The second two vouchers, dated February 18, were used to purchase three pounds of rouge, fifteen bottles of mascara and three chokers for Tammy Faye Baker. Also, a book, Lily Munster's Guide to Ghoulishly Good Health and Beauty, was bought. We were unable to reach her for comment. But, The Teckler did receive a mascara-and-tear stained letter thanking the DSSG for its continued generosity towards lost causes.

Pleased with the documents, Mushat Noumeau, chairperson of the student council, said she could not understand why the Baruch administration didn't vote to charter these two figures as cults or clubs. But, if Ima [Crookards] says we didn't have to vote, there must have, even if there are no minutes of the meeting," Noumeau said, "We all kind of worship him around here, you know."

The normally unresponsive Crookards made one final comment. These charges are a concept solely for your imagination, I don't even know Tammy personally. And as for the Bhagwan, I would never get mad. I mean the students, money to a man who doesn't know the difference between 'bushel' and 'measure' unless he was chartered with the DSSG, "he said. "I paid would be laugh us off the world you know."

Crookards challenged the press team looking for comment on this. But, these were not chartered clubs or cults.

"Since there are no documents that say otherwise, then I am right," said Crookards.

Crookards is a senior at Baruch and was twice as assistant national chairperson for the presidential campaign of Gary Hart, this last year.

TAKING EDUCATION TO NEW HEIGHTS

By BIBI MAMMOID

Under pressure from students, faculty and vahants residing in nearby welfare hotels, a crack-team of space analysts hired by Baruch College has developed what they have dubbed a "futuristic resolution" to the dilemma of overcrowded classrooms. In the proposal written by team leader and "seating coordinator" Arnold Longform, the answer to the problem lies in a highly futuristic learning center. The classes are Contemporary Problems of Urban Posture, Advanced Consonant with a short overview on the history of gymnastics and a seminar on Learning Beyond Boundaries. A model classroom created by the maestro, President and Longform, positioned between the Baruch College. The model has been applied in over eight New York junior high schools and is becoming increasingly popular in over-populated Third World countries. He featured last month on the cover of Memoboucners Digest in a story entitled "Students on the Rise: A Surefire Way to Raise Intellect."

There are still a few problems with the plan that has already cost Baruch over a $10 million when compared to the cost of renting extra building space. Longform's assistant, Dr. Elies Pencilhead, has commented on the various "kinks" in the system. "Well, you see, to increase the efficiency of this plan, nine credits would be offered to students as a requirement for admission into these highly futuristic learning centers."

No More Student Rosters

Hulk Hogan was disqualified from Wrestlemania IV and the World Wrestling Federation title. Although Wrestlemania may miss the Hulkster, Baruch College won’t. Hogan will take over as Supreme Head Officer of Campus Security. His major concerns, aside from the usual vandalism, petty larceny and students without I.D. cards, are Campus terrorism, corrupt DSSG officers, Poopla Sam’s onion rings and Joel Seek Bull’s wardrobe. Hogan’s first change as head of security will be to “fire all the security guards. Listen brother, I’m gonna hire 100,000 screaming Hulkranniacs as security guards. Just let those Baruchians try to get past me without I.D. Cards. I got a couple of 24” pythons rating for action.” The Tickler supports Hogan’s plans, but more needs to be done. With seek Bull’s wardrobe in a state of despair and DSSG officers running amok, the Hulkster has his work cut out for him. “Well, let me tell you, brother, Seei Bull’s wardrobe’s gotta go. He walks in these jeans one more time, these 24” pythons are gonna fly. And the next time, brother, DSSG President Juan Ricardo writes idiotic letters to The Tickler, these 24” pythons are gonna let loose on his head. I’m gonna crush him, brother, crush him.” While The Tickler feels these are good ideas, stronger measures must be taken to insure the security and well-being of Baruch students. However, Hogan’s ideas are excellent and should have been implemented long ago. The Tickler looks forward to Hogan’s leadership and his unwavering concern for the Baruch community.

ID MISFIT KILLED

To The Editor:

I am still upset over the loss of my closest and dearest friend who was killed last week by Baruch Security. EERIE DANZIG, the friend I had known since I was able to speak is now dead at age twenty-one and only three credits away from his degree in perfecting insider trading. It was the morning of March 15, 1988 when we approached the front desk of the 18th street lobby. Eerie realized he forgot his I.D. card and told this to the Security guard. After looking through his records he exclaimed, “Sorry Eerie! This is your third and last time without an I.D., step this way.” He followed the guard who led him to the open elevator doors where Eerie was pushed into the empty shaft.

The purpose of this letter is to tell everyone to carry their I.D. I’m also trying to intensify my own legal battle against Baruch Security. They continue to laugh at me and say they have never heard of EERIE DANZIG.

The Report
A BI-WEEKLY UPDATE

THE United States for Action party will be meeting in convention today, Tuesday, March 29. Attendance is mandatory for all who are running for the USA ticket in this May’s student government elections.

The agenda includes a discussion of a platform and the responsibilities of each member towards the campaign. Look for the party to campaign for the two proposed day student referenda if they get enough signatures to put them on the ballot.

The meeting will be held in the Glebas Lounge in the 135 E. 24th St. at 2 p.m.

Joining the Concerned Baruch Students party ticket for this spring’s student government election will be: Mitchell Cooper, Robert Fiordaliso and Stuart Richman for the Upper Council; Todd Saayoff and John Haugh for the Board of Directors; and Eugene Scanlon for the Athletic Board.

According to Edward Mills, treasurer of the DSSG, many clubs have changed their officers but have yet to update their signature cards.

Mills encourages all clubs to check that their signature cards are properly filed.

The DSSG needs a new design for its stationary letterhead so it is holding an open competition which will allow students to submit their own designs. The winner will receive a cash award of $150. According to the DSSG, the winning entry will convey a sense of solidarity and should also capture the corporate image befitting a business school.

As reported in The Report last issue the Council approved an appeal request for 1980, allowing several clubs to participate in Awareness Week. To be added to this list of clubs should be: the Art Society, the Foreign Trade Society and the West Indian Culture Club.

On March 10, 1988, the City Council of New York passed a resolution calling on the New York State Legislature to restore senior college status to Medgar Evers College.

Oversight to Evers College of the City Council of New York passed a resolution calling on the New York State Legislature to restore senior college status to Medgar Evers College.

A resolution calling on the New York State Legislature to restore senior college status to Medgar Evers College was changed to that of a community college.

The resolution does not assure that it is an official sponsor or connected in any official way with the Student for Jesse Committee.

According to flyers distributed around Baruch College bulletin boards, the Student for Jesse Committee was formed to organize student campaigners for the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a candidate for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination. This committee is to be similar to others formed for this purpose at many colleges.

Varsity Lockers Vandalized Twice

By SALVATORE F. BELLUOMO

For the second time this semester the Seventh floor varsity locker room in 17 Lexington Ave. has been vandalized.

According to student and DSSG member John Paul Patelli, "About four weeks ago, 12 to 15 lockers were busted open." This statement was confirmed by Vincent Iannaccone associate director of security, who said that "the incident occurred between 9 p.m. on Friday, February 26 and 8 a.m. on Monday, February 29.

Apparently nothing of any value was stolen. According to Ralph A. Satriani, equipment manager for Baruch College athletic teams, "Mostly clothes were stolen, not much of anything else." According to Iannaccone the incident report stated that "it was a case of criminal mischief, rather than larceny."

It seems that this case is not a simple case of criminals breaking into the lockers in order to steal valuable equipment. Rather, according to the DSSG, this was an attempt to disrupt the normal functioning of the locker room.

Two Referenda Considered For Ballot

Should DSSG Council Elect Its Chairperson?

By ROBERT COTTER

The Day Session Student Government has begun petitioning for two referenda concerning the appointment of the Day Session Student Council chairperson and the possibility of council members meeting during the summer session in order to propose club budgets.

According to Fran Genis (USA), vice president of the DSSG, executive members decided on changing the current policy of selecting a chairperson. Currently in the DSSG constitution, the candidate who receives the most student votes becomes chairperson of the Council.

"This method does not assure that the most qualified person will get the job," she said. Genis added that "it takes knowledge and experience to understand how the DSSG works - if a freshman just pops up, he'd be popular enough to get the most votes and it's not mean that he is the most qualified!"

If the referendum vote is passed, the chairperson is to be selected from among the members of the DSSG. According to John Paul Patelli, "We're doing this in order to have a chairperson selected by the Council's members."

"We're trying to get rid of people who have the position, just because they are popular." The second issue being petitioned, is another constitutional amendment to allow the council to assemble during summer break and winter inter-session, to plan the student activity budget. Genis said, "This system would be more efficient, because the club budgets would already be in effect in the beginning of September, so we can address other issues during the school term." Patelli added, "Efficiency is the reason for the second issue."

In order to get this referendum on the ballot during the May 2-4 elections, the DSSG needs 800 signatures (10% of the day session student body). The government has collected 300 as of the weekend of March 24-25.

A NEAR REPUTATION RISK

Recently, controversy has run rampant to the Day Session Student Government. Supported United States presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. Flyers posted around Baruch have caught the attention of many students, as they claim that a “Students For Jesse Committee” is DSSG approved. The flyers go so far as to say that those interested in receiving this information should consult the student government office and “get involved in the historical movement.”

As it turns out, the flyers were the result of a mistake made by Juan Martinez, the chairman of the Students for Jesse Committee, as well as a DSSG upper-corporate member. Although it is a great relief to find that our student government is not using its office to support any political candidate, it is disconcerting to find that mistakes have been made in the first place. It is in fact indicative of a problem within the DSSG.

The student government counts among its members several student government representatives. The assumption by a member of government that he can automatically use his time to support the campaigns of certain candidates only reflects the apparent and at times showing of power determined by government members.

Fortunately, this grave error turned out to be a non-chargeable one as the signatures were taken down and replaced with appropriate ones. However, such a situation should never occur again.

BETTER PR FOR THE DSSG

It has been a long time since the Day Session Student Government has come up with an idea that promotes greater student involvement and attempts to reach out to a large part of the student community. The government is building an open competition for students to design the new DSSG newsletter. The winner will receive $250, but all participants will enjoy the project part Baruch pride.

This competition provides a way to help enhance Baruch’s image while simultaneously encouraging creativity and talent. Although, a seemingly antimonopoly event, it will also help students to become more interested in the workings of the student government. Students are tired of being reminded to deliver the newsletter and be heard. They want something for their money now. This contest is a perfect way for the DSSG to start gaining back the respect students to become more interested in the workings of the student government. Students are

D ogmatic S.eceutive S.elf-serving G.overnment

I recently found out the “Students for Jesse Committee” is a DSSG approved group. One can easily find their resolutions in the government office and they have a newsletter being distributed around campus by the DSSG.

I learned this after an anonymous complaint about the DSSG’s self-serving nature to the President of the Student Government. I then became a member of the Students for Jesse Committee.

The Students for Jesse Committee is a group that was formed to promote Jesse Jackson’s candidacy for the presidency of the United States. The group is composed of students from Baruch College and was established in response to an attack on the group’s efforts to promote Jackson’s candidacy.

The group was formed in order to provide a voice for those who support Jackson’s candidacy and to help him gain support for his campaign. The group’s efforts have included distributing campaign literature and holding rallies in support of Jackson.

The group was initially established as a DSSG approved group in order to receive funding from the government. However, the group’s self-serving nature has been questioned by some members of the student government.

VANDALISM

I don't know the truth, and I'm not sure if I ever will. I just know that someone, somewhere, has decided that what I'm doing is wrong. And that's not right.

- "because it's just not fair."

Student loan obligations can be a scary thing. In a world where the cost of education is constantly rising, it's easy to feel overwhelmed by the thought of taking on that kind of financial burden. But it doesn't have to be that way. There are resources available to help students manage their debt and achieve their goals.

The New York State Educational Opportunity Loan provides low-interest loans to eligible students to help cover the cost of tuition, fees, and other educational expenses. To qualify, students must meet certain eligibility requirements and demonstrate financial need. Loan funds can be used for tuition, fees, books, and other educational expenses.

In addition to the Educational Opportunity Loan, there are a variety of other options available for students who need help paying for college. Scholarships, grants, and work-study programs can all help减轻 the financial burden of higher education. It's important for students to research all of their options and work closely with their financial aid advisors to determine the best course of action.

Baruch and the Physical Education Department have reviewed security and surveillance procedures and made updates to better protect students and faculty.

In the wake of recent incidents, the Baruch community is coming together to discuss safety and security on campus.

TICKER TAKES

A sense of security is a priority among undergraduate students who are members of the DSOG. The Student Council has taken steps to ensure that students feel safe on campus, and has worked with the administration to develop new policies and procedures to prevent incidents like the one that occurred on campus.

The DSOG has formed a Committee of the club to investigate the incident and determine the best course of action. The committee will meet regularly to discuss the situation and make recommendations to the Student Council and the administration.

The DSOG is committed to ensuring the safety and security of its members, and will continue to work with the administration to address any concerns or issues that arise.

In addition to the DSOG, the Student Council has also been working to improve security on campus. The council has conducted a needs assessment survey, and is currently in the process of developing a Comprehensive Campus Safety Plan.

The plan will include strategies for enhancing physical security, improving the communication of information, and creating a culture of safety and security on campus.

We are committed to ensuring the safety and well-being of all members of the Baruch community, and will continue to work with the administration to make our campus a safer place.

This evening has been specially coordinated so you can network and mingle with colleagues from universities and colleges in the metropolitan area.

want to support. Jesse as individuals, not in an organized form. If any member of the DSSG supports Jesse, as an individual citizen that should be respected. It is the right of every American to support whoever they choose to support. However, the DSSG went too far.

They are not supporting Jesse as individuals. They are using the Student Government of Baruch College, a supposed democratic entity, to support Jesse Jackson. Misuse of the government, and its responsibility of representation, "by the people, for the people," is this way undemocratic. It tells lie, it says, "All students support the Jackson Campaign." It's not true. All the people do not want to vote for Jesse. All Baruch students have the right to support, or not support, the candidates of the DSSG. The students want more services, the students want more speakers, they want more events.

Forget the fact, such promises have not been delivered. John Richards has decided along with his cronies that all the students want Jesse Jackson. "Wait On Line" Rule Not For All At Baruch

By JACQUELINE MULHEARN

Several incidents involving students who were waiting upstairs for the evening student activity fee. "There were so many people waiting in line that we had to move the line to the second floor," said Blachorsky.

About three-quarters of the students who were waiting for the activity fee were upperclassmen. "It's a lot easier for us to get up there than it is for them," said Blachorsky.

According to Blachorsky, "The students who were waiting upstairs were not being handicapped in any way. They were just choosing to stay up there in order to avoid the long lines downstairs." However, many students who were waiting downstairs said that they were not being handicapped.

"I think it's a good idea," said one student who was waiting downstairs. "I don't see why anyone would want to be upstairs." However, another student who was waiting downstairs said, "I think it's stupid. They should have just let everyone wait in line upstairs."

Baruch Goes West... But Why Wyoming?

CBS Evening News anchorman Dan Rather has done it again!! No sooner does he get back from Anchorage, Alaska, reporting on the new airport than former New York Gov.

George Bush and Rather rip into his "sweaters." Former Gov. George Bush, who is currently considering running for the presidency, has been criticized in the past for his "sweater" wearing style.

Baruch students often complain that "speedy delivery" a household one. Of course when a mailman makes a mistake in his paper delivery, the customer is expected to be grateful. We all know what happens when a mailman makes a mistake in his paper delivery.

Dan Rather has done it again!! No sooner does he get back from Anchorage, Alaska, reporting on the new airport than former New York Gov.

"Take what that idiot says with a grain of salt. Who's mayor anyway, rather than the mayor."

Rather than rip into the forecasts about the country’s economy, Rather focused on the Chipmunks in their latest movie, "A Chipmunk Christmas." The Chipmunks are a group of three pet mice who are voiced by Simon, Rikker, and Theodore, the latter of whom is played by Dan Rather.

The movie follows the Chipmunks as they prepare for the Chipmunk Christmas, a tradition that has been going on for generations. During the movie, the Chipmunks must overcome various obstacles to deliver presents to their neighbors.

The movie was released in the spring of 2009 and was met with critical acclaim. It grossed over $100 million at the box office and became a holiday classic. The Chipmunks have since starred in several other movies, including "A Chipmunk Christmas I & II" and "A Chipmunk Christmas III: The Chipmunk Who Saved Christmas!"

In the latest movie, "A Chipmunk Christmas III: The Chipmunk Who Saved Christmas!", the Chipmunks must save the day when the city is threatened by a snowstorm. With the help of their friends, the Chipmunks work together to keep the city running and ensure that everyone has a happy holiday season.

The Chipmunks have also appeared in several television specials, such as "A Chipmunk Christmas II: The Chipmunk Who Saved Christmas!", which aired on CBS in 2010.

The Chipmunks have become a beloved part of American culture, and their popularity continues to grow. Whether appearing in movies, specials, or on television, the Chipmunks are sure to bring joy and laughter to audiences of all ages.
Well sport fans of Baruch, it's that time of year again, when the academic year begins and we all gear up for the fall season. Old Teachers are in season once again. Each year, our walls are adorned with the hustle and bustle of students. The teachers are here again, and we are ready to learn together!!!

TEACHER SEASON NOW OPEN

Boringus, is the preferred prey of the most dangerous...100...Dangerous..." Belford devoted almost an entire symposium on the subject to the study of Boringus. He discussed its behavior in the wild, its feeding habits, and the most effective methods of hunting Boringus. It's a fascinating sport that has gained popularity among the students of Baruch. But you think to yourself, is it worth it? Will the time and effort pay off? Maybe. Maybe not. Only time will tell.

Winfield Arrested

The well-known New York Yankee, Derek Winfield, was arrested for a traffic violation in the early hours of the morning. The first time he's caught having too much fun in New York City.-winfield was stopped by "hanging around in St. Louis, Missouri," one police officer said. "We were driving down the street when we saw him."

Researcherین Professor Hull is concerned about the rising number of behavioral problems among third graders. "When the first grade students are in school, the third graders are in trouble," Hull said. "We need to do something about it." Hull is working on a new study that will investigate the link between school violence and student behavior.

Villechaize

Villechaize, who played the role of the hunter, Robert Burns, whose living I've already mentioned in my class, was featured in a recent episode of the popular television show, "Fantasy Island." He tells me that his role in the show is to help visitors get back to nature and reconnect with their roots. Villechaize is a great actor and a wonderful addition to the cast of "Fantasy Island.

Baruch Career Centre

The Baruch Career Centre offers a variety of services to help students with their job search. These services include resume writing, interviewing skills, and job search strategies. The centre also provides opportunities to investigate careers in business and related fields. Students can take advantage of the centre's resources by visiting the office located in room 137 E. 22nd St. from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. That is a good place to begin your job search and get advice on how to make your resume stand out.

SPRING BREAK IN NEW YORK

A GUIDE FOR A POOR MAN'S VACATION

By DIANE LEPPE

Spring Break is here! And you thought because you are stuck in college you couldn't have fun in spring break. Well, think again.

If you are going to New York, here's what you can do:

Dyckman House Museum

Dyckman House Museum is located in the 18th century Dutch Colonial style farmhouse. The building is surrounded by the only remaining farmstead in Manhattan.

Frick Collection

A collection of European European paintings, sculptures and decorative arts. The museum is located at 1 East 70th Street.

General Grant National Memorial

This tribute to James Garfield and his wife, the monument also includes exhibits relevant to Grant's life as both general and president.

International Center of Photography

This museum is dedicated to the history and aesthetics of the world of photography.

The Cloisters

This branch of the Metropolitan Museum of Art is devoted to the medieval art of Europe mainly from the Spanish and French areas.

Central Park

Covering 843 acres, this is one of the main attractions in Manhattan. You can enjoy the lake, play baseball or football. The city is filled with restaurants and bars. You can also go ice skating, or boating, or, if you are a nature lover, you can walk along the lakes or in the woods. The Cloisters, The Belvedere Castle, the Architectural Center, the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Art Center, the Barndale Theater, the Children’s Zoo, would all be good places to visit.

Cooper-Hewitt Museum

This museum is devoted to decorative arts collections in the country. This museum is located at the Cooper-Hewitt National Museum of Design.

Guggenheim Museum

Designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, this museum contains modern art and architecture.

Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts

The center is home to Avery Fisher Hall and the New York Philharmonic, Alice Tully Hall and the Juilliard School of Music, the New York State Theater, the New York City Opera and the New York City Ballet, and the Allen Room and the Beaumont Theater and the Steinway Hall.

St. Patrick’s Cathedral

This cathedral, one of the few examples of Gothic architecture in the country, is also the seat of the Archbishop of New York.

Times Square

The theatrical center of the city, Times Square includes Broadway theaters, nightclubs, shops, and restaurants.

Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, 1565 Broadway, A1, 212-875-7777

The Belvedere

Located in Central Park, this castle serves as a housing center for children and adults.

Le Louvre

Avaliable rent: include 250 bedrooms, 3000 furnished rooms, and 1000 apartments on the 8th floor.

Metropolitan Museum of Art

Exhibits on the history and culture of the ancient world. The Metropolitan Museum of Art is located on 82nd Street.

THE THROUGH THE CAMERA'S LENS

It is possible to miss an essay from a realist in the city. Naturally, all periods of rapid urbanization inevitably contain problems. Some manage to gradually adapt, but many fail. All the more so because this age of technological development, which has been called the 'information age', has completely changed the city and its history. In the 21st century, the city is more than ever a challenge and is changing at a rapid pace. That is why it is important to look at the city from a realist perspective, to understand the city's history, and to be aware of the changes that are taking place. The city is not just a physical place, but a social and cultural one as well. It is a place where people live, work, and interact with each other. It is a place where history is made and where the future is shaped. The city is a reflection of society and culture, and it is a place where we can learn from the past and shape the future.

Yar Leads Generation

Those of you who are fans of Star Trek: The Next Generation better start cranking up the VCR tape machines because if you want to see Chief Security Officer Tasha Yar you’d better tune into CBS, which has decided that the character she plays in the show will spin off into a series of her own. The series, which will be called “Tasha Yar: Chronicle,” will air on the Showtime cable network in the fall. Yar, played by Ereka Vardoulakis, is the only character from the show who will be in both the series and the movie “Star Trek: Generations,” which is due out this summer. Yar is leaving the show on May 7 because the character is no longer needed. The character of Tasha Yar, a member of the Starfleet, has been a mainstay of the series since its beginning in 1987.

Cable Movies

If you have cable television, you might be wondering what feature films are scheduled to premiere on cable in the coming months. The answer is: a lot! Many of the major studios are now releasing their new films on cable, which can be a good thing for cable viewers. For example, the film “Back to the Future Part II” will be released on cable in October. The film, which was released in theaters in 1989, is a science fiction adventure film that follows the character of Marty McFly as he travels back in time to the year 2015. The film has been critically acclaimed and has become a classic, so it’s a great opportunity for cable viewers to see it.

The Godfather

The Godfather is a classic film that was released in 1972. It is the story of a Sicilian-American mob boss named Vito Corleone, played by Marlon Brando. The film follows the rise of the Corleone family, as well as the conflicts that arise between the family and the government. The Godfather is known for its powerful performances, its well-written script, and its atmospheric direction. It is considered one of the greatest films ever made, and it has won numerous awards, including nine Oscars.

Summer's breath sighed softly in the air
For the sweet smell of rain had not yet left.
The carnival of life had just started to turn
As youth sprung from the seed of innocence.
That time of year, nature in transit,
Was the perfect season for falling in love...

Baseball's Back In Season

By MARK CALLAHAN

When you walk outside this time of the season, you begin to notice a few things. The weather is getting warmer; the trees are starting to bloom; the flowers are beginning to blossom; winter is leaving and spring is here. Not only spring the season, but spring training. Baseball season is here and the Baruch team is ready.

Baruch is coming off a 9-12 impressive season last year when they advanced to the playoffs. "It has been approximately 12 years since the last time that Baruch was in a playoff game," said coach John Krochak. "I've been here 10 years in all: 10 as a player and 6 as a coach. We hadn't won then nor 2 years before that," he stated.

When one looks at the improvement of performance, like E.R.A., of this Baruch team, one can see that they have come a long way. "Three years ago, the E.R.A. of the team was as high as 12.00, and two years ago it was 7.00. Last year we had it down to under 4.00, and this year I expect it to be even lower," Krochak said. It makes sense that the team should do better than past years because of the familiarity of the teammates. Out of the 18 players on the team this year, 14 of them played last year.

The most positive aspect that the team has to look back on while going into this season is a game they played in Florida. Last summer, Baruch played Vape, a professional, that's right, professional Italian team. Two of those players were even playing for major league teams. Baruch played an outstanding game, even though they lost in the ninth inning by one run--9-8. "This is the year to win if any year is," Krochak said. "We have a good bunch of players. If Florida is any indication of what is to come, we definitely should be the surprise team, the sleeper," said Ed DeCastro, the starting shortstop.

"I'll not eat anything that morning because I'll eat John Jay for breakfast," responded Reggie Benson, the centerfielder. The team is fired up for this first game, as you can see. Comments on the team continued with Rob Sammon saying, "We have a lot of good individual players. We have to stay together to be good."

"This year's team is more coherent. More people get along as a family. We have a good chance for the C.U.N.Y., but we have to keep our heads straight and in a good frame of mind," added Ed Vazquez. The players are ready; the coach is ready; now bring on the season.

Even though the players are confident, they have a long road ahead of them as far as the teams that they must face. The hardest victory this year will have to be against Lehman. Lehman was unstoppable last year and went on to win the Nickerbocker conference, New York Conference, and the E.C.A.C. (the East Coast Athletic Conference). Outside of all this, they have won their last 19 games. They will be the team to beat.

Baruch's first game will be against John Jay. The players are ready for this game. "I'll not eat anything that morning because I'll eat John Jay for breakfast," responded Reggie Benson, the centerfielder. The team is fired up for this first game, as you can see. Comments on the team continued with Rob Sammon saying, "We have a lot of good individual players. We have to stay together to be good."

The team is made up of good individual players who must play as a team to win. Players such as: Reggie Benson, outfield; Mo Betancourt, catcher; Ed DeCastro, shortstop; Rob Fernandez, pitcher; Frank Gonzalez, outfield; Luis Guerrero, second base/first base; Ron Leader, outfield; Matt Lipp, first base/DH; Joe Macchiariola, second base/pitcher; Ceasar Medina, second base; Amado Montilla, outfield; Mark Johnson, catcher; Moon Kim, outfield; Rich Triolo, outfield; and Ed Vazquez, pitcher/outfield.

The season will not be an easy one, for the players or the coach.
