The Report

A Bi-Weekly Update

The Day Session Student Co-Sponsorship Government Committee has been dissolved. Wilson Shum, chairperson of the Finance Committee, stated the space problems and inter-club communication were the primary factors leading to the committees' demise.

The newly elected DSSG lower council members are Alan Szylowski and Scott Clair. The newly elected upper council member is Robyn Henzel.

City University of New York Chancellor Joseph S. Murphy is asking labor unions to support educational programs for the poor and minorities, specifically collaborative programs with public schools, adult literacy programs, child care on campus and worker education. He said, "All of the negative effects of the Reagan revolution—homelessness, long-term unemployment, inadequate health care—have skewed disproportionately to minorities."

The New York State Higher Education Services is urging all students to apply early for TAP and PELL.

The City University of New York is establishing a Hurricane Gilbert Relief Drive to aid the victims of Hurricane Gilbert. CUNY Chancellor Joseph S. Murphy said the reports of the devastation caused by Hurricane Gilbert are particularly distressing to students, faculty and staff of the university as more than 30,000 members of the University come from the Caribbean area and are greatly concerned about their families and friends.

These signs can be seen in various locations throughout 17 Lexington Ave. The asbestos has to be removed because an air conditioning system is being installed. Certain parts of the building have been closed off to students where the asbestos is most dangerous. For full coverage, see page A10.

DSSG Vice President Resigns

By ERIC KUN

Renda Wan has unofficially resigned her position as Day Session Student Government vice president. The nomination of a replacement cannot be made until Wan submits a letter of resignation, according to DSSG President Ainsley Boisson.

Wan said she resigned because she lacked government experience. "I felt I didn't have enough previous experience to do the job. I was a little lost," she said.

"For a freshman, I think it is a lot to do," said Boisson, referring to Wan's status last May when she ran uncontested for the position on the Concerned Baruch Students' ticket. Wan who is now a sophomore, was previously the treasurer of the Asian Students' Association, and according to Johnny Tsac, Investment C Club president, "She ran that pretty well."

Wan's unofficial resignation has created problems within the DSSG and Boisson said, "It is setting us back." Associate Dean of Students

Ethnicity Plays Role

In Subcommittee Choices

By CAITLIN MOLLISON

Members of the Day Session Student Government's Finance Committee were paired up in subcommittees based on, among other things, their racial and ethnic backgrounds, according to two committee members. Miguel Nunez, lower council and a Finance Committee member said that he, a Hispanic was paired with Donet Virgo, a West Indian because, "If there should be any problem, Donet's there to check me."

Another member, Lloyd James, lower council, stated that the subcommittees were "designed to avoid favoritism. Each group had six different people from two different points of view or cultures."

Wilson Shum, the chairperson of the Finance Committee originally denied that the members' backgrounds was a factor in pairing.

Four New Members Elected

By DOUG DROHAN

The Day Session Student Government Council approved the appointment of two new officers, following the recommendation of DSSG President Ainsley Boisson. At the same time, however, two council members resigned.

The council elected Angela Williams as the lower council member and Michael Bigger as Vice President of Legislative Affairs. "Angela was a key member in my committee," said Boisson, "I have worked closely with her in the past. She's a person who will keep on top of the issues and get the job done." For Bigger, Boisson replied, "Michael is genuinely concerned for the benefit of the students. I am very pleased with the performance of his appointment."

Meanwhile the council was faced with the responsibility of filling the void created by the resignations of two of its members. Sherafzal Shaun Khan of the upper council and Edwia C. Liu of lower council are said to have left because of a clash between responsibilities at work and those at Baruch. To fill their positions, the DSSG held an open election for any student interested in becoming an active member in government affairs.

Responding to an ad placed in the Student Daily, two members were paired up in subcommittees based on, among other things, their racial and ethnic backgrounds, according to two committee members. Miguel Nunez, lower council and a Finance Committee member said that he, a Hispanic was paired with Donet Virgo, a West Indian because, "If there should be any problem, Donet's there to check me."

Asbestos 101

The dangers of asbestos first became apparent in the mid-late 1970s and by 1978 its usage was no longer legal. The substance was originally used to insulate buildings that had been found to be carcinogenic or causing cancer. Still, its removal was not mandatory unless renovation work was being done on an area where it existed.

Now renovation work is being done on some of the areas where asbestos is present at Baruch and the material is being removed. While the administration’s efforts to take every precaution while the removal is going on should be applauded, their failure to advertise the removal cannot be condemned. The fact that the removal is not mandatory until renovations are initiated is no excuse for waiting so long in getting rid of so harmful a substance. A letter, addressed by the director of Campus Planning, stated that the College has known about the presence of asbestos for an “infinite” length of time. Why wasn’t something done sooner?

Additionally, the timing of the removal could not be worse. As reported in this issue, the College has been cited by the Environmental Protection Agency for a violation of the Clean Air Act, which requires all institutions that are involved in the cleaning or removal of asbestos materials to have procedures that meet the requirements of the act.

Preparation Is the Key

Why should they care? The spring elections are over and talk about service to the students will not be heard for another year. Why should any student member want to familiarize herself with the rules, regulations or even the Day Session Student Government Constitution?

Lately it has become quite apparent that DSSG council members, executive members and the members of the various allocating boards are very ill-informed about their duties and the rules that govern them. A sample from this year’s issue of the News, by no means the only example, stated that no members interviewed for the story about Vice President Renda Wan’s resignation seem to fully comprehend the proper procedure to follow if they read the DSSG constitution they would be aware of. Also, according to various students involved with the allocating boards, student members were not briefed about the time they would be voting on them; they were told on the day of the meeting that they had to vote on the rules.

Many fine people serve on our student government. We, the students, put trust in these people to make informed decisions. By allocating members of division for service to the operation of the DSSG, among other things. Denied the necessary information, though, these same very fine people aren’t performing the best job they can.

In the best interests of their student constituents, student government members should read a copy of the DSSG constitution and all bylaws at least once. Allocating board members should be briefed by the proper officials at least three days prior to a vote.

We hope student government members do care. They should also care more about preparing themselves for their responsibilities.

Quotation of the Fortnight

“I don’t think it’s a good idea. I think that does make hold the polarity between races and religions in this school. We look for you look for biases you create biases.”

Subjective

Movement blacks are better off than they were before. However, there is still much ground to be covered. In my opinion, if we fail to achieve racial equality for blacks, people of other races are not likely to give black people equal standing in society. The only way to achieve this is by maintaining a firm stand and not allowing people of other races to interfere.

After receiving the petition, the council then voted to make its decision. Some examples of these MONDAY third spot that was once voted on was given to Saint B. Clare as a lower council representative.

The method used to choose Williams and Bajgar required two rounds. First, an evaluation was held and then an approval by the council. The president is electing council members was significantly different from the style used in selecting vice president positions.

As Vice President of Campus Affairs, Williams will inform the council and Executive Board of college matters that may affect students. In 2002, the position primarily assisted the vice president to organize on-campus events, oversee the Senior Banquet and other social functions. According to Williams, the position was not attended since.

Richman also explained that he appointed three vice presidents during his term as a lower council member. Scott B. Clair as a lower council representative, Alan Szydlowski has been elected to fill Liu's position. The Ticker, the student newspaper of the Middle East, was quoted as saying, "Michael Richman is not in any position to be the real leader of the Middle East." This was Richman's response to the Middle Eastern Cultural Society's statement.

The Accreditation Agency To Review Baruch

by RITA LEAHY

Preparations are under way for the September 1988 visits of the Middle States Association, an annual accreditation visit to Baruch College. An annual accreditation visit is required for all four-year colleges in the Middle States Association to ensure that they are meeting the standards set by the Association.

In order to be considered for accreditation, the College is required to submit a comprehensive self-study report to the Association. The self-study report includes a detailed description of the College's mission and goals, the educational programs, and the finances of the College. The report is then reviewed by a team of assessors who visit the College to conduct a comprehensive review of the institution. The assessors evaluate the College's compliance with the standards set by the Association.

The assessors also conduct a follow-up visit one year after the initial visit to ensure that the College is making progress in addressing any areas of concern identified during the initial visit. The College is required to submit an action plan detailing the steps it will take to address any identified areas of concern.

Baruch College is scheduled to be reviewed by the Middle States Association in the fall of 1988. The College has been preparing for this review for several months. The College has conducted a self-study and has submitted a comprehensive report to the Association. The assessors will conduct a comprehensive review of the College and will submit a report to the Association. The College is required to implement any recommendations made by the assessors.

Baruch Removes Asbestos From 17 Lexington Ave.

By BARBARA MEISSNER

Baruch College has been forced, during the past few weeks, to begin removing toxic asbestos, a hazardous material that can cause cancer and other life-threatening diseases. The asbestos removal is taking place near the eighth-floor laboratories, according to Assistant T. Zacaron, assistant director of rehabilitation services, who is overseeing the asbestos removal supervised by Terrawell Laboratories Inc.

Asbestos removal is a dangerous process, which can cause a health hazard. Proper signs, designating areas of endangered harm, were of the danger and risk of this area. Any students or faculty in these areas are forbidden to enter. "Do not go into any room unless you were told to," said Zacaron. "It is dangerous." Warned Zacaron, students or faculty being taken to see one of these rooms may not be able to return. If any area is blocked or covered areas are caused with two layers of plastic to prevent any asbestos particles from escaping from the area. If the area is not covered, it is considered a health risk. Zacaron said.

"There are asbestos varieties that you must be aware of," Zacaron said. "There is one kind, being redoing of a building, a building or a teaching and in the process of the removal. This asbestos is usually in the walls or ceilings." Zacaron said.

Professionals Give "Inside Information" About Careers In Finance

By MABA ELLI

The Baruch Faculty Lounge at 301 Fifth Ave. is standing ready on Sept. 28. Approximately 200 hundred executives turned out for a symposium on Business, Investment, and Banking.

Representatives from Citibank, the New York Stock Exchange, Sanford Bernstein & Co., and the Financial Planning and Linda Rechtenbaugh, Associate Manager of Human Resources at The New York Stock Exchange, will be offering a workshop from Sanford and a seminar on career counseling.

The symposium on Careers in Banking is known chiefly as a New York based corporation. It is actually a national and international corporation which empowers a host of employee worldlads.

Important resources include:

- hard work, strong interpersonal skills, and the humility to accept criticism.

Kew Reeser is the Director of Human Resources at the New York Stock Exchange and he believes the "insider" is of inestimable value. He should complement your career and business education.

He is willing to "look for something you may not have discovered."

His colleague, John Piterman agrees with Reeser, "Look for something that you can work on!"" He suggests that you think of the "three steps to success."

1. The first step is to choose a career. The second step is to choose a company. The third step is to choose a position.

ABSTRACTION AND REALITY: THE ART OF SUZANE OSTERWEIL

By IRWIN SACKS

"The Red Goldfish," a work of art by Suzanne Osterweil, is part of the exhibition "Abstraction and Reality," which opened at the President's Building of Baruch College. The exhibition, which features the works of 10 artists, is being held to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the college.

Osterweil's work, "The Red Goldfish," is a striking piece that combines abstract and realistic elements. The artist uses vivid colors and geometric shapes to create a sense of depth and movement. The work is a commentary on the relationship between abstraction and reality, and it challenges the viewer to see the world in a new light.

The exhibition is open to the public and includes works by other prominent artists such as Jasper Johns, Robert Motherwell, and Mark Rothko. The show runs through the end of the month and is free to attend.

THE BARUCH COLLEGE MASTER PLAN

A Preview Of Future Changes

By ROBERT COFFER

Crowded elevators, filthy classrooms, and tremendous distances between classes have made life at Baruch very stressful for many students. The Baruch College Master Plan, which is currently in its planning stages, aims to address these issues and improve the overall quality of campus life.

The Master Plan, which was unveiled last year, outlines a comprehensive vision for the future of Baruch. It includes proposals for new buildings, expanded facilities, and improved transportation systems. The plan also focuses on creating more green spaces and enhancing the campus environment.

"Crowded elevators, filthy classrooms and tremendous distances between classes may totally disappear," said a representative from the Baruch administration.

On the first floor of the main building, the plan includes a new, larger library, a larger and more modern cafeteria, and improved facilities for computer labs and other academic support services.

"We are proud to announce that our Master Plan is taking shape," said President Joel Segall. "We are committed to providing our students and faculty with the best possible facilities and resources to support their academic and professional goals."

HOW TO WRITE A RESUME

By GRACE PALAZZO

What is the purpose of a resume? A resume is a summary of education, experience and other interests of the applicant. It is the first step in finding a job. The resume should contain:

1. Identification: personal data: name, address, telephone number
2. Career objective: what type of career goal one wishes to achieve
3. Educational background: list only your capabilities and achievements. Any major public accounting firm.
4. Experience: list the order in which you were employed. You can use a chronological order or a reverse chronological order. You should list the position you held and what you are looking for
5. Skills and accomplishments: list the skills and skills you developed. Your skills should be described in terms of the position you are applying for
6. Reference: list the persons who have received the resume

There are three types of resume formats:
1. Chronological: the order in which you present the information in your resume
2. Functional: for your skills and accomplishments
3. Targeted: this format when you have a specific job target in mind

The resume has great importance in getting a person's job related qualifications to paper. It gives the potential employer actual information about the employer why you are interested in the position, the nature of the position, advancement opportunity and location. A resume is a summary of education, experience and other interests compiled by the applicant.

The resume should be one page in length but no more than two pages. It should be typed double space in two margins. There should be a heading on each page that contains the applicant's name and address and the position for which you are applying

The layout of a resume:
1. Use of paragraphs and indentions
2. Avoid cluttering the paper and double space in between paragraphs
3. Emphasize important information by using bold and underlining
4. Emphasize work experience by using a style of paragraphs
5. Make sure your resume is correct, and that there are no typos

HOW TO WRITE A COVER LETTER

When sending resumes through the mail to prospective employers without previous contact with them, a cover letter must accompany the resume. The cover letter's main purpose is to introduce yourself and your resume to the prospective employer.

The format of a cover letter:
1. It should contain four paragraphs
2- Format of the Cover Letter: 2 TYPES

FIRST PARAGRAPH: state the reasons for your letter, identify the position you are applying for and how you heard about the position

SECOND PARAGRAPH: tell the employer why you are interested in the position, the nature of the position, advancement opportunity and location

THIRD PARAGRAPH: refer the employer to your resume

FOURTH PARAGRAPH: express your desire for an interview at a convenient time

Second sentence: "We do it all: journalism, sales, advertising, accounting, marketing, promotion, public relations, management and have "fun" doing it!"

PUBLIC SECTOR VS PRIVATE SECTOR

By BARBARA MEISSNER

The public sector is a term used to describe the areas in which the government has a critical role. It includes the various levels of government that provide public services. The private sector, on the other hand, is comprised of businesses and individuals who are responsible for providing services and goods that are not typically provided by the government.

The public sector can be seen as a large bureaucracy that provides services such as education, health care, and transportation. The private sector, on the other hand, is made up of businesses that are driven by profit and competition.

The public sector is generally funded by taxes, while the private sector is funded by profits from the sale of goods and services. The public sector is also subject to oversight and regulation, while the private sector is subject to the forces of supply and demand.

The two sectors are often at odds, as the public sector seeks to provide services that the private sector is not willing to provide. However, in recent years, there has been a trend towards privatization, in which public sector services are being handed over to private companies. This has led to some controversy, as some people believe that privatization leads to a decrease in quality, while others believe that it leads to a more efficient use of resources.

In conclusion, the public sector and private sector serve different purposes and have different roles to play in society. It is important to understand the strengths and weaknesses of each sector in order to make informed decisions about how to best provide services to the public.
In order to become an effective dance music disc jockey, one must possess a thorough appreciation of the history of the music. A well-read and well-informed disc jockey is a valuable asset to almost any dance music setup, for he or she will be able to offer the audience both the familiar and the new, all of which will help to keep the dance floor bouncing.

THE BOXER AND THE DEATH

A Competing Czech Concentration Camp Reception at the American Theatrical Foundation

Film forum is pleased to present the opening of the 1982 Czech feature THE BOXER AND THE DEATH. Due to the recent release of the film, which was shot in Czechoslovakia in 1983, and released in the United States in 1985, box office success has been very difficult. The film's subject, the death of a Jewish girl in a concentration camp, a boyhood friend of the director, is one that, in this country, is not as well known as it should be.

In order to help publicize the film, we have invited the director, Vojtech Jasny, to present the film at the opening. The film has been subtitled in English, and will be screened with an audience in attendance.

SURFACE-TO-AIR SPEAKERS

It was $399 and McWetet Wells, who used to be the editor of Car magazine, had just tried one. "That was a real eye-opener," she said, "but the sweet sound of the speaker was well worth it."

Almost immediately, he was trying to improve the speakers. All radio in his mother's garage Dodge Dart with the speakers, he said, "was nothing but a wall of speakers." He added, "If you put together a pair of speakers and a pair of subwoofers, you can get a very nice sound." The most important thing to remember is that you can get all the kind of monitor speakers you want to the sound system, but the sound system will always be limited by the quality of the speakers. The worst speakers can be made to sound like the best speakers, and the best speakers can be made to sound like the worst speakers.

PUBLIC ENEMY!!!

By MARTIN STARKEY

PUBLIC ENEMY will certainly raise a lot of feathers with this one. A fact that may surprise some fans is the fact Chuck-D and company are running for public office. It's uh, pretty much the Chinese who use "public officials" for all kinds of things, but it seems they're doing it for real!

Chuck-D and the crew are running for public office as "Public Enemy.
Nation of Millions To Hold Us Back" and they're getting some serious support from the political world. But what about the music? Even though they do have a political message, they still have to make a good album.

I have to say, they've done a fantastic job. "It Takes A Nation Of Millions To Hold Us Back" is a fantastic album. The songs are well written, the production is great, and the overall sound is fantastic.

One of the best songs on the album is "Public Enemy," the title track.
It's a fantastic song that really captures the essence of the band.

There are also some great political songs on the album, such as "Run
And Haters Never Sleep." These songs really hit home and make you think about the issues of the day.

The album is definitely worth listening to. It's a fantastic album that really captures the spirit of the band.

THE LION HAS "PRIDE"!

White Lion: "PRIDE"

White Lion is a band that has been around for a while, but they've really come into their own with their latest album. "PRIDE" is a fantastic album that really captures the essence of the band.

One of the best songs on the album is "Fight To Survive," a fantastic song that really captures the spirit of the band.

The album is definitely worth listening to. It's a fantastic album that really captures the spirit of the band.

1. Buy a new book every week
2. Use a timer to study

Fun file on "A Nation Of Millions To Hold Us Back"

1. The album features a variety of styles, including rap, rock, and even some spiritual elements.
   2. The political messages are strong, but the music is still enjoyable.
   3. The album is a must-listen for fans of hip-hop and rock.

Homeless Team Makes A Racquet

By STEVEN SCHEER

The Baruch College Women's Tennis team doesn't have an official home, but that hasn't deterred them from scoring a 4-0 record.

After a forfeit win against New Rochelle, the Lady Baruchsters ripped Manhattan College 8-1 on Saturday Sept. 24.

Number 1 seed Catherine Assimacopoulos cruised against Manhattan's #1 seed, winning 6-2, 6-1. #2 seed Orpini Loesvidhya also had an easy time, winning 6-1, 6-2; #6 seed Joy Martin "barely broke a sweat" in her opponent 6-1, 6-0; and #5 Anna Daniels, who started off a little slow, finished strong, winning 6-4, 6-2.

Not everyone can win by a big margin. Number 3 seed Karyn Cohen struggled in her match, losing the first set (the first set a singles player has lost all season) but came back to win the match 5-7, 7-6(4), 6-4. On her tough match Cohen commented, "I knew I was playing against a very good player and I just had to push harder to become a winner."

Some anxious moments were had by all when co-captain Jackie Secaria, leading 5-1 in the second set sprained her knee. Jackie did continue in the match. She said later, "I couldn't put any weight on my knee and I couldn't serve well either. I also didn't think I'd be able to win the set." Jackie's opponent took advantage of the injury and cut the lead in the set to 5-4, but Jackie won the final game winning the match 6-3, 6-4, completing a six game singles sweep.

In doubles action, Assimacopoulos and Loesvidhya teamed up to win 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 and Janet Gurry and Elizabeth Leijman beat Manhattan's #1 and #6 players in a shortened match 10-7.

Baruch's only loss came when Daniels and Alexis Aland were defeated 6-1, 6-0, 6-1 by Manhattan College's #4 and #5 players.

Coach Bill Eng was pleased with the win and with his team. "It's a good and competitive match. The squad is very consistent and has a lot of depth."

Last season when Baruch played John Jay, it was no contest; Baruch won 9-0. This season was no different. On Wednesday, Sept. 28 playing at the United States Tennis Association Center in Flushing, Queens — it was a good 6-3, 6-0. Cohen and the rest of the team proved themselves and were on their way to a fourth straight win against so defeats.

In the doubles matches, Assimacopoulos and Loesvidhya trounced their opponents 6-0, 6-2; Brooks and Daniels whipped their opponents 6-1, 6-2; and Guantanamo and Irma Siddiqui routed Manhattan's #5 and #6 seeds 6-1, 6-2.

Secaria, who was sidelined with the injured knee helped out as a cheerleader and helped the team stay "up," but was up on not being able to play. "It was an awful feeling not being able to play, but I'm going to wrap up my knee and play on Friday (September 30th)."

Coach Eng likes what he sees. "It was a big win. The fundamentals are there and the team is playing with confidence; but the biggest test will be next weekend when we play three games in three days."

Baruch played Brooklyn College on October 8th, SUNY-Purchase on October 9th, and Sarah Lawrence on October 10th.

Coach Eng is both confident and optimistic, "The way we've been playing now, I don't anticipate LIU and CCNY to be that tough of matches because we haven't lost to them in a few years."

Last year, Baruch beat LIU 9-0, CCNY 6-0, and SUNY-Purchase 6-3. The coach added, "We have to play well against these teams because it will determine the seeding in the Hudson Valley Tournament on October 14th and 15th."

The team without a home has found a home for now — at the top of the conference. The talent is there and the confidence is there — two ingredients in a winning team. This team definitely deserves more limousine rides to their "road" games.

She's a top member of the highly ranked Baruch Women's Tennis Team and a full-time evening student who also holds down a full-time job with the U.S. Postal Service. She's still not satisfied. She is Anna Daniels and, oh yeah, she's in her 40s. This woman with her goals and determination is an example for all of us.

Daniels, a jubilant, energetic transfer student, hails from Brooklyn, but now resides in Rego Park, Queens. She graduated from LaGuardia Community College with honors and holds a degree in computer information systems. Daniels has always held an affection for tennis, getting her start at the age of eight. She then trained under noted tennis coach Phil Rubel and played at Wingate H.S. Daniels won first place at the 1960 American Tennis Association tournament for 18 yr. olds and under. She has played off and on since then.

Daniels, a serve and volley player, has played excellently in all of her matches this year and continues to aid the team with advice as well as victories.

Daniels came to Baruch with an event goal of gaining her doctorate and says that being able to play tennis is a fantastic bonus. She is a self-stated "aggressive player."
