Murphy Warns TAP Recipients To Declare Majors

By GEORGIA KONTOS

According to the State Education Department guidelines, students must declare a major by 60 credits in order to receive financial aid from the Tuition Assistance Program.

James Murphy, director of financial aid, said that 773 students are receiving TAP and have accumulated over 60 credits without declaring a major.

Baruch's policy is that students are supposed to declare a major by the time they have accumulated 78 credits, according to the student handbook. Because so many students are affected by this new policy it could cause significant problems, said Murphy.

Taking this into account, the office of the registrar has mailed notices to the students actions by the policy change asking them to declare a major, stated Murphy.

"Now there's a reason. Sometimes it's a transfer student who transfers in with some credits, according to the student

Provost Approves New Microfilm Machines

By MARIA LIU

The broken microfilm machines in the library of 155 E. 24 St. will soon be replaced. Currently there are six machines but, according to Mary Donovan, head of periodicals, serials and microforms division, four outdated machines will be replaced by three new ones.

The remaining two are still in good condition. The replacement request was approved by the Provost and the order was placed and confirmed last week.

The quality of services at Baruch is steadily declining and the situation is becoming intolerable. In this issue alone, it is reported that the microfilm machines are broken, the Student Center is now inaccessible to students who wish to have parties on certain floors and allusions are added to the time saga of the $600 million budget crisis, to which we will soon pay for in one way or another. Baruch students are surprised that they pay reasonable tuition fees and that as a community school in the large city, we lack a campus. In fact, many students here have very understanding considering other City University students in other colleges pay the same low tuition, but do not have to contend with the day and day out aggrivations of this school. One would never realize by comparing our facilities to that of say, Hunter, that Baruch is the number one choice of entering freshmen among the CUNY schools. One might even assume that Baruch was a place that one, at most, could receive an Associate's Degree in comparison with the Borough of Manhattan Community College which has a campus, campus life and facilities that make Baruch seem like a prison.

The problem at hand however, although financial in many respects is also a larger one of a poor organization by nearly every department in this school. Instead of giving us microfilm machines and copying machines that work, we get an expensive library catalog system. Instead of purchasing more computers for the Micro-Lab we get abducted from the removed school's wall, which is ironically safer when left in place. Just for the record, the Administrative Building where all the administrators sit in their offices all day pushing paper, has everything one could hope for. Be assured that their needs are certainly being met. About the only thing that Baruch students are getting at this point is a pie in the face promise about a beautiful campus, which if it ever comes about, is so far into the distant future that it affects no one who attends the school right now. Yes Baruch does offer a quality education and good job opportunities upon graduation, but wait and get around. When high school seniors begin to hear how the administration cares about the students of this school, they are sure to look elsewhere when choosing a college.

Maintain Abortion Rights
by DIANA SCHELLNER

The women's movement was the first to pose the issue as a woman's right to control her own body.

...against the major shifts in attitudes about abortion... The Women's Movement has become an important and visible force in the abortion debate. Women's groups have been able to mobilize and to influence public opinion in ways that were not possible before. The Women's Movement has also been able to shape the terms of the debate, and to challenge the assumptions of traditional gender roles and family structures.

In the past, abortion had been seen as a medical or legal matter, with little or no input from women. Now, the Women's Movement has helped to make abortion a political issue, and to bring women's voices to the forefront of the debate. Women's groups have been able to argue for the right of women to make their own reproductive decisions, and to oppose any restrictions that would interfere with that right.

Moreover, the Women's Movement has helped to shift the conversation away from the issue of who should have the right to make choices about abortion, and towards the question of how to ensure that all women have access to safe and legal abortions.

ON THE SPOT WITH MARJORIE SURPRISE

Are you aware that CUNY is facing a budget crisis?
Do you feel that this crisis will affect you in any way?

Marlene M. Thompson - Sophomore
Of course, it affects everyone that is part of CUNY system. Tuition is the most likely to be affected by a drastic increase, and I personally don't have the money. I can't afford a tuition increase.

Paul Taylor - Senior
It will cause a raise in tuition and will affect retention mostly.

Antoine Marshall - Senior
I'm very aware of the crisis. Write to your congressmen, protest if you have to.

Monique Johnson - Freshman
The budget cut back will affect me a great deal. I'm living on my own and the financial aid fund is something I depend on in putting me through school. If there is a cut there's a chance I may have to leave school.

Evelyn Iriarry - Junior
No. But it will probably affect my financial aid. I don't think just me but many other students at Baruch as well.

Christine E. Junior Adams - Yes, I was aware since last December that there was a budget crisis, and I feel it will crowd classrooms due to lack of professors which, in the long run will hurt everyone, teachers and students. In my opinion students do not receive enough personal attention now, if professors are laid off it will be worse.
that there is rapid increase in the repressive and brutal state in South Africa. These speeches can directly mean to the extent of the ultimate destruction of the human system of government. Thus, the absurdity is seriously entertained by the op- pressor and they should be totally anathematized.

"The United States of America refuses to impose total economic sanctions against the most repressive and brutal state in the world."

One is that fewer Goulartians seem to the brutal system of the world. Unfortunately, the United States of America refuses to impose total economic sanctions against the most repressive and brutal state in the world.

The disparity between white and black scores — which is on average 200 points — is a result not only of the lack of opportunity for "education in America [but] greatly unequal".

The problem is that much more than the inequal- ity that the national universities and colleges have to do. The problem is that much more than the inequal- ity that the national universities and colleges have to do.

Some advocates of Prop 42 argue that the universities have failed to create a sense of community among their student-authentic writers who have a "well of standards, they feel, will only eliminate black women in the college.

Any determination that is to be made in a university that the college is not the top college for President each year.

The basic question was ignored: the universities, have a special responsibility to ensure that scholars are prepared academically when they leave college.

It's important for the nation's political, business and educational leaders to pay this kind of attention to the problems of this technological age when preparing students for professional careers. You will receive immediate feedback to work with, either alone or in consultation with a team of experts.

DSSG Organizes Health Awareness Week

By RITA LEAHY

The Campus Activity Committee of the Ohio State University, in conjunction with the Student Health Service, has organized a week of health awareness activities under the theme of "Health Awareness Week." This event is being held from March 11th through March 17th on campus. Students are invited to participate in various health-related activities and workshops throughout the week. The purpose of Health Awareness Week is to raise awareness about various health issues and promote healthier lifestyles among students.

Activities

In addition to health awareness activities, there will be a health fair on March 16th from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. in the Student Union. The fair will feature booths from various health-related organizations and agencies, providing information and resources on various health topics. Attendees can also participate in health screenings and activities related to nutrition, fitness, and mental health.

The week concludes with a health awards ceremony on March 17th at 3 P.M. in the Student Union Ballroom. This ceremony will recognize students who have made significant contributions to health awareness and promotion on campus. Attendees are encouraged to participate in these activities and support their peers in their efforts to improve health awareness.

Administration Investigates Charges Against WMBM Manager

By ED WRIGHT

A recent incident between Craig Logan, general manager of WMBM, and the college administration has caused the administration to reopen its investigation into the management of the station.

According to a letter written by Logan, documenting his vision of the station, it states that WMBM is "the university's voice and the college administration is responsible for making sure that it is a part of the university's public life."

Logan said he left the station, home and returned to the station at 8 P.M. but he was not able to get a response from the administration. He requested that the administration turn off the station's broadcast.

In response, Logan has received letters from the college administration, stating that the station will continue to operate. Logan said he has not received a response from the administration.

The administration imposed an early return policy, Logan said, and it will continue to operate. The administration will look into the situation and if the policy will be changed, Logan said.

The administration has responded to Logan's letter, stating that the station will continue to operate.

The situation has caused concern among students and faculty about the future of WMBM and the role of the station in the university's public life.

“The problem is that students are not getting a chance to participate,” said one student. “We need to have more involvement and control over the station’s operations.”

The administration has stated that they will continue to work with Logan and the station to ensure that the station’s programming reflects the interests of the students and the community. However, Logan said he has not received a response from the administration.

Logan has called for a meeting with the administration to discuss the future of WMBM and the role of the station in the university’s public life. He said he hopes to work with the administration to ensure that the station’s programming reflects the interests of the students and the community.

Financially Speaking: Aetna, Con Ed and Drexel

By ROBERT CORRET

As a student on campus in Finance, economics and business, I would like to talk about three companies that are of particular interest to me: Aetna, Con Ed and Drexel.

Aetna is a global insurance company with headquarters in Hartford, Connecticut. It is one of the largest insurers in the United States, with a focus on health insurance, life insurance, and disability insurance. Aetna has been in business for over 150 years and is known for its commitment to providing high-quality healthcare services to its customers.

Con Ed is the largest electric utility in the United States, serving over 3.5 million customers in New York City. It is a subsidiary of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., a public utility that provides electricity, gas, and steam to residential, commercial, and industrial customers in the New York City metropolitan area.

Drexel University is a private research university located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It is one of the largest private universities in the United States, with a focus on engineering, science, and technology. Drexel has a strong emphasis on practical, hands-on learning and has a long history of innovation and entrepreneurship.

In conclusion, Aetna, Con Ed and Drexel are all companies that are of particular interest to me as a student on campus in Finance, economics and business. Each company has a unique set of strengths and opportunities for growth, and I look forward to seeing how they continue to evolve and thrive in the years to come.
CAUTION: STUDENT DRIVER

L. was actually quite capable for a person of her age and the family decided it was time that she learned how to drive. They signed her up for the local driver’s education course and she passed with flying colors. However, they nagged her constantly about taking the test for her license. She tried to delay as long as possible but eventually she decided that it was time to take the test.

SANTA’S LITTLE HELPER

C. was hanging around in the kitchen. It was Christmas morning and he was looking around the kitchen. Suddenly, he heard a noise and ran to the door. There he found Santa Claus standing in the kitchen.

URBAN ENTERTAINMENT

The subway was always a good place to hang out. C. loved taking the 1 train because it was a quick way to get downtown and go to the movies or see a play. He would often read the newspaper or just watch the people on the train.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME

W. was walking along a street and decided to ask for money in front of a local hotel. He was surprised when the people were actually willing to give him money.

SUBWAY STAND-UP

Riding the subway in New York City can be a bit uncomfortable, but it’s a good way to get around. C. often liked to stand up and talk about his experiences with other commuters.

ANCIENT STONE DISCOVERED

During a recent visit to an ancient site, L. discovered an ancient stone that was over 500 years old. She was excited to find such a relic and was eager to learn more about its history.

The Table Tennis Club lost a second appeal for funds to purchase a new table. Carl Aylman, director of the Student Activities had placed a new table which was supposed to go on the fourth floor (for the club to use) on the third floor. His reason was damage done on the fourth floor by club members. He also felt the Table Tennis Club should not be allowed to purchase a second table, stating: “If they are that callous, why give them a new piece of equipment?” The council seemed to agree, despite the protest of Michael Robinson, the chairperson of the student council and a former Table Tennis President... Canter Corporation, the company providing food service to the college canteens said it was going to upgrade service. It couldn’t have lasted long, since just last semester there was an article on the poor quality of the food service in The Ticker. HALE HOUSE: A LIGHT AT THE END OF THE TUNNEL

By Shirley Murphy
A child's cry is heard. To many it brings thoughts of joy, to some it brings thoughts of a society filled with children, a problem which has driven many parents to seek counsel in the mental clinics. Parents and doctors often ask why their children are still unhappy.

"I went into Hale House, a feeling of hope and warmth overcame me. The faces of the children are so happy, so innocent, so pure," says Mr. John Doe, a member of the Hale House staff.

When these children are being shown to the Hale House and are told why they are there, they are always happy. They are happy to be there and they are happy to be with other children. They are happy to be together.

One child who was alleged to have been hit by his mother, after six months old seems to be growing steadily. Mother Hale, who explains this growth says that because she is so beautiful and she sees happy spirits in her surroundings.

Mother Hale, who runs Hale House, is also known for her work with the homeless. She runs programs for the homeless and helps them to find work and homes. Mother Hale's House, What is it doing for?

Hale House is a four story building that has been painted white on the outside. The building is divided into many rooms. When you enter the building, you can feel the warmth of the organization and the happiness of Mother Hale's House.

The children who are there are happy and have a good life.

Rebirth of Theater at Baruch

By John McGillicuddy
This spring, while the flowers are blooming in the park, there will be a rebirth of Barber - the rebirth of the theater.

During the spring of the past three years, auditions were held for this year's Theater Season programs. For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/When the Rainbow Comes Again, A Soldier's Play, and The Shoemaker's Holiday, the Baruch College Department of Drama began a new beginning of a theatrical season in Baruch College theater. For the first time, the B.C. Drama Department will produce a fall theater production, and it will be the first time that the students will actually be directing full scale productions.

The turnout for the auditions was better than any of the directors could have expected. Talented actors, actresses, directors and producers arrived at the Baruch College auditorium for the auditions. The audience was divided into three groups, each with its own director.

After thorough consideration, Ken McGillicuddy, John McGillicuddy, and Laura McGillicuddy were chosen as the ensemble. Three auditions were also arranged:

- Dance: Ballet, Contemporary, and Modern
- Music: Classical, Jazz, and Rock
- Literature: Poetry, Prose, and Drama

Although the callbacks for the main plays were held on Feb. 3, the student directors also stress many additional performances. The first day of auditions was on February 16. The student directors also viewed several performance rehearsals. The first day of auditions was on February 16. The student directors also viewed several performance rehearsals. "We have a tremendous need for financially trained people and Baruch graduates have a great track record of success with us."

Ventosa noted that Con Ed was looking for college graduates for its sales force.

During the first year of the program all engineers must rotate in two to four different areas. They must keep in mind the importance of the guidance of a mentorship. "The purpose of the program is to familiarize the engineer in a given area as well as to acquaint him with different areas within the organization. The General Manager of the area will decide whether the engineer is going to be assigned to another area within the organization."

John Ventosa, a 1968 graduate of Baruch College and now employed as a senior accountant, was the first惹起的graduate from Baruch. Ventosa graduated in 1987 and joined Consolidated Edison as a management trainee. He is now a junior assistant engineer.

The News in Historical Perspective

By Bill S. Thompson

A video tape interview with American Negro author, educator, and historian, C. L. R. James. The video features the story of "The New York Times" and the role it played in shaping the perspective of the late Zora Neale Hurston and the African American world. The interview explores the impact of the newspaper on African American culture and society, focusing on the role of the newspaper in shaping political discourse and social change.

The Negro World, published by the ANA (American Negro Academy), was one of the first African American newspapers in the United States. Founded in 1892 by the African American writer and editor, W. E. B. Du Bois, the newspaper was considered a political mouthpiece for the African American community. The newspaper highlighted the contributions of African Americans to American society and culture, and provided a platform for African American voices in the national debate on issues such as race relations and social justice.

A knowledge of Yiddish, German, and Hebrew is assumed of the reader. The reader is given a look at the larger questions with these languages.

THE OLD SCHOOL

I have a confession to make. There was one point in my life when I was a hard-core new wave-waddling, children's-book-reading teenager (let's call it 1979). I was Lecca-wearing, Adrian-attired, and head over heels in love with the dead end of new wave. It was a time of great experimentation, a period of musical transition. The new wave was the soundtrack of that moment. It was a time when the boundaries of music were being pushed and expanded, and the possibilities for new sounds and styles were abundant.

One of the bands that stood out during that time was The Old School. Their music was a unique blend of new wave, punk, and post-punk influences. The band's sound was characterized by its rawness and energy, with a focus on simple, catchy melodies and razor-sharp guitar work. Their live performances were legendary, and their dedicated fan base grew rapidly.

The Old School was formed in 1978 by a group of musicians who had previously played in various punk and new wave groups. They quickly earned a reputation for their high energy shows and their ability to connect with their audience. Their first album, released in 1980, was a critical and commercial success, and it helped to cement their place in the new wave scene.

One of the standout tracks on their album was "The Ticker." The song's lyrics were a reflection of the anarchy and chaos that characterized the new wave era. The music was fast-paced and intense, with a driving rhythm that kept the listener on the edge of their seat. The song's chorus was a rallying cry for the underdog, a call to rise up against the establishment.

The Old School's influence extended beyond their music. They were part of a larger movement that was challenging the status quo and pushing for social change. Their music was a reflection of that spirit, with lyrics that spoke to themes of rebellion, freedom, and equality.

Despite their success, The Old School's career was cut short when the members decided to pursue other projects. They disbanded in 1982, leaving behind a legacy of music that continues to inspire and influence future generations.

In conclusion, The Old School's music was a significant part of the new wave era. Their music was a reflection of the anarchy and chaos that characterized that time, and their influence can still be heard today. Their legacy is a reminder of the power of music to challenge the status quo and inspire change.

THE RESTORATION OF LAWRENCE

BY ELODIE NIEDERKERN

October 19, 1989

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA is the story of T. E. Lawrence, the British intelligence officer who helped to bring about the end of the Ottoman Empire in the Middle East during World War I. The 1930s-era film, directed by David Lean, has been restored to its original length and quality.

Lawrence, played by Peter O'Toole, is actually a fictional character created by the movie's writer, Robert Bolt. The real T. E. Lawrence was a British army officer and archaeologist who spent time in the Middle East.

The film follows Lawrence's life as he becomes involved in various Middle Eastern conflicts, including the Arab Revolt against the Ottoman Empire. The restored version of the film features improved sound quality and a new restoration of the music score.

In the film, Lawrence's relationship with his Arab allies is depicted, as well as his attempts to spread democracy and independence throughout the region.

The film was a critical and commercial success, winning seven Academy Awards, including Best Picture and Best Director. It is considered one of the greatest films ever made and is still widely regarded as a classic.
Statesmen Surge, Slip and Slide

By MICKEY KRAMER

The Statesmen’s basketball season did not end on a final note of victory. As far as the Statesmen were concerned, there is only one word to describe their season — disappointment. The Statesmen lost to Colgate. The Statesmen were looking forward to a career of basketball success, but they were dealt a hard blow by the Vandals. The Statesmen were upset by the Vandals and lost two straight games.

PUCK YOU!

What is the biggest difference between the under-80 Knick of a year ago and the first place Knicks of today?

There is no question that "Hot Rod" Strickland has been the secret to the Patrick Ewing is playing his best ball, but it has to be said that in this one area only one word comes to mind: DAKINS.

Dakins transformed the team into an intense contender. A tireless, bounder, good shooter, and excellent passer. He made the team's defense a force to be reckoned with.

While he studies all of "Alsho's" moves, the Knicks organizational brain trust has been a quiet one. Coach Pinson calls him, "A delicate for the buckles... an advisor and one of the many people I know..." Dakins, when asked, "The league's top cliches.

G.M. Al Burch, who made the move, called Dakins' decision "bravura... amazing." He also commented Dakins the group of players the Knicks have called "keeping a hold of a "Thrust.""

When the words were echoed, Dakins, "You're right, I appreciate the recognition, but I just want to make the team better."}

THE BARUCH ATHLETE OF THE MONTH

By MICKEY KRAMER

The accolades she has received are endless. She has been the CUNY player of the week four weeks in a row. She made first team CUNY All-Star. She finished the regular season with a scoring average of 23.8 points per game and pulled down 15.4 rebounds per game. And she topped it all off by being named the CUNY Most Valuable Player.

Now Hillary Williams has climax ed her outstanding year by being named the Athlete of the Month for February.

Williams, who works full time and goes to school full time, has found time to become the best player to ever play on Baruch's basketball team. Her coach, Penny Wenner raves, "It's a dream. Every coach dreams of having an All-Star. She's gifted, amazing, a team player... She is a Division One Player." Teammate Wilda Colon calls "The Wonder," "Excellent, especially when we're losing."

Williams' main asset is her phenomenal speed—with or without the ball. Colon says, "She's the madrunner...She leaves EVERYONE behind."

Williams has been a model of consistency throughout the year. She has pulled down sizable figures in rebounds in every game, but two. Plus she has scored over 18 points in 12 consecutive games.

In seven of her 19 regular season games she "filled it up" for 28 or more points. Additionally, she has recorded the only two triple-doubles in Baruch history. On Jan. 19, she scored 27 points pulled down 12 boards and added 16 steals. And against Yeshiva she poured in 27 points, collected 12 boards and stole ten passes.

For the month of February, she has topped her regular season totals. In five games she averaged 27 points and 18.8 rebounds.

Second leading scorer, Maria Epp calls Williams, "Awesome" and adds, "It's much easier to play well when she's out there."

On Feb. 17, in the opening game of the Hudson Valley Tournament, Baruch had to play the first half of its game with Nyack without Williams (who had to work). Baruch trailed by one.

Eleven seconds into the second half Williams hit two free throws. Baruch went on to win sparked by Williams' 12 points and 12 rebounds.

And luckily for Baruch, she has two more "Wonderful" years left.

TOURNAMENT TAKERS

Smashing, Crushing Spike.

Something had to be done. After five consecutive victories, the volleyball Statesmen lost three straight matches. The last defeat was against Fordham. Baruch had already beaten them once, but on Feb. 14 the team was soundly beaten three games to one. Setter, Donald Chin cited the poor play to "A lack of communication." Coach Stanley Barbot adds, "We were missing starters (Hu Tran, Johnson Yuen) and we're a young team. When you're playing a young team that has been together for three years... It's tough." Power hitter, Billy Sappia said, "We just didn't play as a team."

Something was done.

On Feb. 17, the team went to Southhampton for the Southampton Windmill Volleyball Classic. A team meeting was called. And it could be the turning point of the season.

The players and coach aired out their differences. And the coach gave the players a detailed game plan. Sappia called the meeting, "The best pep talk... We couldn't have won without it." Chin adds, "The talk... It made us come together. We got to know each other."

David Rosado echoed similar sentiments, "We became a team. We all talked a lot. We had unity."

Whatever it was, it worked. The Statesmen swept past all of its opponents, losing only one game all day. They beat Fordham, Marist, Cortland and Stevens in two straight games. Bergen College was the only team to win a game.

Why was there such an improve ment? Sappia says, "We played as a team, that's why we did as well as we did... Hu (Tran) played excellent. His defense was better than ever. Also, Andrew (Lee) played great 'D' and his serving was great. And David Rosado shouldn't be coming out for defense anymore... His passing was excellent."

The first opponent for Baruch was Fordham. The team won easily in two quick games. "The Wall!" Rosado commented. "We were inspired. We had fun and we took them out of our game. We were Up."

Chin adds, "Everybody made significant contributions."

The team has a record of 10-3. The players are inspired, their roles are defined and they have "The Wall's" lucky shorts. He puts a tear in his shorts after every win.

Ten wins— that's a lot of tears.

NOTES:

Sappia was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament.
