Segall Discusses
Baruch College
Issues

By DIANE LEPEK

The following interview was conducted with President Joel Segall concerning Baruch College issues: The Ticker: Do you and the administration have any plans to motivate students so they will become more involved in school activities?

Joel Segall: I think we do what is possible for us to do given our resources and given the level of our physical facilities. As you know, we are using private contributions to put on concerts and quartet residents and speakers. We've put on a couple of stage productions that the audience was in shape to do that and many other things. We have almost events which students tend not to go to. They tend also not to go to the provocative speakers, so in that sense we are trying to get the students involved. My own feeling is that the students work very hard, even the full-time students, and they don't have a lot of free time and the extent to which they are willing to be involved is really very low, so we do what we can and as we think of other things we will do them.

TT: Why do the seniors have to face graduation, as with all other students we close classes early because we don't have enough resources, enough classrooms or enough faculty to do all the offerings that we would like to.

TT: What about petitioning classes?

JS: You can ask for over-registration for example and for some classes that may be permitted but that is the instructor's decision. As the semester goes on classes shrink to over-registration is feasible sometimes. It is not a good policy; though, we cannot have students standing in the back of a classroom. There are safety laws which prohibit us to do that. Once in a while when we think it is safe we will over-register.

TT: How come there are no late services for evening students such as the bursar and registrar?

JS: There certainly are evening services for evening students, in fact the Bursar's Office is open as long as there are students who wish to see a bursar representative still almost any hour of the evening. We have taken great pains to make certain that even with limited resources, services are open in the evening.

TT: What do you think about the students protesting last semester?

JS: In my opinion, a demonstration is legal, I have no problem with that.

In fact, before the protest started, I spoke with the student leaders and asked them not to interfere with any student who wanted to attend class, certainly not block doors or be deconstructive or use intimidation. I told them that if they agreed with that then I would not take any action, but the student leaders apparently lost control of the demonstration from time to time. Doorways were in fact blocked, there was some vandalism, things were thrown out the windows and there was some damage but not a lot. When I called the student leaders in and suggested that it was

College Fails to Provide Space for Evening Clubs

By TONI COLAVITO

The number of evening student clubs has been increasing over the past semester, but the space to hold evening club meetings is not available, according to Mark Spergel, director of evening student activities. Spergel said that evening students can only hold meetings on Friday nights but the college buildings officially close at 5:30 p.m. Also the Student Center is not available because other clubs meet there at the same time.

"It is really inexusable that all these buildings are empty on Friday nights but the college administration doesn't see them as an active office," said Debra Mikulsky, director of Campus Planning. The Ticker left several messages for Marilyn Mikulsky, director of Campus Planning, but the calls were not returned.

Spergel went on to say that evening students are involved in school activities as much as they can be and should not have any obstacles in their way. "My job," said Spergel, "is to open things up and for day and evening students to have equal access." Spergel said that the obstacle he has run into has been the Office of Campus Planning. The Ticker left several messages for Marilyn Mikulsky, director of Campus Planning, but the calls were not returned.

Spergel has been at Baruch since the Fall semester of 1983 when he was a Speech professor. He has recently been appointed acting director of evening student activities after Carol Robbins left on maternity leave. Spergel's plans for the upcoming semester are to maintain evening services and to add evening tutorial services.

Budget Cuts Hit Baruch

By DIANNE YARDON

The 1989/90 budget cuts have equally affected every department in each of the three Baruch College schools, according to Stephen Wertheimer, vice president for development.

The cuts have meant fewer courses offered and less money for school supplies. Although no professors were actually dismissed, according to Wertheimer, the School of Business and Public Administration, the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the School of Education and Educational Services have lost the ability to hire between 30-40 faculty members.

In the Spring of 1989, Governor Mario Cuomo and the New York Legislature passed a state budget that increased the City University of New York tuition fees. This prompted CUNY students to protest resulting in no tuition hike, but many budget cuts. Wertheimer said, "The students' support for adequate funding of the university or college is extremely important. The governor and Legislature are especially responsive to student concerns, and I hope students work closely with the City University Legislative Action Committee to lobby in Albany next semester for the next budget." Wertheimer who is also the chairperson of CLAC, said he would be more than happy to meet with students and student leaders to work with them in their lobbying efforts.

Estelle Ross, Cultural Coordinator, Dies At 78

By TONI COLAVITO

Estelle Ross, cultural coordinator at the Student Center at Baruch, died on August 8, 1989 at the age of 78. Mrs. Ross suffered from inoperable Colon cancer.

She began working fulltime at Baruch in September 1965 and for the past decade was working part time. Among her duties were obtaining and distributing theater tickets for Broadway productions, and organizing receptions and conventions for students.

"She really brought class to the entire organization," said Debra Bick-Duggan, assistant director of student activities.

Mrs. Ross was very conscious of what Baruch students could afford to pay for theater tickets and spent a great deal of time developing contacts all over New York City. She wanted to expose students to the arts and broaden their view of the world.

"She enjoyed what she was doing," reminisces Carl Aylwan, director of student activities, "she liked working with students." Mrs. Ross' colleagues fondly thought of her as a mother-figure to Baruch students. They thought of her as a mother-figure for the entire Student Center community. "She was a really beautiful person," said Aylwan.

Mrs. Ross is survived by her husband and two children.

Centerfold: Baruch on Bensonhurst
PATIENCE = POWER

There is an old fable about a man who was offered $10 for that one day, but was promised $100 if he could wait until the next week. The man opted for the $10. The moral? Patience and foresight often pay off. However, if one only wants to grasp what can be obtained immediately, then future benefits may be missed.

Letter to the Editor: This lesson is not lost. Right now. Last night. This week. Next week. This semester. Next semester. This year. Next year. Every student in City University of New York was faced with the possibility of tuition increase for this academic year. Nearly every CUNY college staged a demonstration to protest the proposed hike. These public displays of outrage resulted in a reorganization of the budget by Governor Mario Cuomo to temporally assuage and pacify City University students. Those students who thought that the end would be the problem, however, showed a degree of naiveté.

What Baruch is currently facing is far worse than the minimal tuition increase that would have occurred. Each department in each of the college's three schools has been affected by the cuts, which amounts to fewer classes and supplies. Our school has also lost the financial ability to hire between 30-40 new faculty members. Ironically, despite the vocal protests last spring, the tuition will undoubtedly have to be raised in the near future. We as students will be paying in two ways: now in terms of cuts and later in actual tuition payments. Had CUNY students let the tuition increase go through, we would have more leverage when the time came to make budget cuts. As it stands now, we won the first battle and the legislature may very well feel that's all they owe us.

Next semester, the governor will be making up a new budget that will directly affect the 1990-91 Academic Year. Hopefully, students will not simply think of the "here and now," and will put some thought into the future consequences of their actions. As we are now finding out, last semester's apparent victory was nothing more than a loss in disguise.

AFTER FIVE

The Baruch administrators are hypocrites. They encourage the evening students to participate in school activities, yet they will not provide them with the rooms that are necessary to hold club meetings. They have not been as busy as the day students, but this does not give the administration the right to exile evening students. Either they will not provide them the rooms that are necessary to participate in school activities, yet they will not provide them the rooms that are necessary to participate in school activities.

So how does this school realize a profit on all student activities? At last, I've never sat in one. As The Four Times article stated, left-handers tend to have higher IQ's than right-handers, a fact I'm sure I've known since birth. The administration's official stance is to minimize the left-hander's participation in school activities. Because of this, they are raising the tuition. Baruch is robbing Peter and plundering Paul. Perhaps 99 percent of the university's classes and activities are right-handed. If the administration is so motivated to improve student efficiency, why don't they let left-handers also use the computer center? They should also alter the study halls. As someone once pointed out, the study halls are never used by the administration because the left-handed students don't need them. So why not let left-handed students use them, while right-handed students use the study halls? I think it's a good idea.

There are arguably two basic types of politicians who enter public service in this country, the idealists and the pragmatists. The idealists have utopian tendencies and believe that they can change the world. The pragmatists believe in compromise. There is also a third type of politician, the "do-nothing" politician. This politician does not care what the popular vote says. The do-nothing politician is a failure. I still can't believe that Dinkins is a politician. This man is a failure. He is not a political leader but a shameless politician. Perhaps the only thing he is interested in is his own political career. Dinkins has not offered anything to New Yorkers. He has failed to make a difference in the city. Since he has taken office, crime has increased. The city is not safe anymore. The only thing that Dinkins has accomplished is to increase the crime rate.

By Kenneth E. Brown

I enjoyed the article on our Academic Year. Students are not the only ones who should be given the opportunity to participate in school activities. The administration is obviously attempting to minimize the left-hander's participation in school activities. Because of this, they are raising the tuition. Baruch is robbing Peter and plundering Paul. Perhaps 99 percent of the university's classes and activities are right-handed. If the administration is so motivated to improve student efficiency, why don't they let left-handers also use the computer center? They should also alter the study halls. As someone once pointed out, the study halls are never used by the administration because the left-handed students don't need them. So why not let left-handed students use them, while right-handed students use the study halls? I think it's a good idea.

As a newcomer to New York, I found myself shopping some of the more trendy and interesting stores yet still be able to keep to the budget of a student. REALISTICALLY SPEAKING

The Stolen Race

by COLIN BOACH

What should a graduating student do when the future looks bleak? Do we, in college, study to be educated in society? Or are we simply bystanders waiting for society to be reformed? Do we seek to be the black voice for the black society? Do we seek to be the white voice for the white society? Or are we simply bystanders waiting for society to be reformed?

There is no single answer to these questions, but there are several ways in which we can make a difference. One way is to actively participate in the changes that are occurring in our society. This can be done by joining organizations that are working to effect change, such as civil rights groups or progressive political parties. Another way is to use our voices to speak out against injustice. This can be done by writing letters to the editor of the student newspaper, or by speaking out in public forums. Finally, we can support those who are already working in this area. This can be done by donating money, volunteering time, or simply showing our support in any way we can.

The key to making a difference is to be realistic. We must acknowledge the challenges we face, but we must also be optimistic about the possibilities for change. Only then can we truly make a difference in the world.
QUESTION:

As you are aware, the Bensonhurst incident has caused a great deal of controversy in New York. Given the fact that one of the young men indicted (Pasquale Rauchhi) was a Baruch student, do you think that it affects the Baruch community? If so how?

Sophomore

I think my friends know that Pasquale Rauchhi was a Baruch student. But I feel that if they knew, it will not affect the Baruch community. Most college students are mature enough to deal with the Bensonhurst incident. Rauchhi was a Baruch student. But the ones I know. I am a white female in Bensonhurst and if the students know that Pasquale Rauchhi was in class with them, I feel that it definitely affects the Baruch community.

LORI STAZZONE

Senior

I think it is unfair that one of our students was involved in such an act, but I don't think that should put a stain on the whole school. In fact, I think that emphasizing the fact that Rauchhi was a Baruch student is simply deviating from the issue.

HOJONG KIM

Sophomore

I think race relations need improvement at Baruch so it does throughout the city. I think this incident has put a stain on the whole school.

ENALIE CRABBE

Sophomore

I don't think that this will adversely affect the Baruch community. Although it was a shame to hear that Mr. Rauchhi was in class with us, I am upset this happened. The Bensonhurst incident has no effect on the Baruch community since Baruch is made up of all kinds, and because of this we should all learn to coexist for our mutual benefit.

SEAN GRIFFITH

Chairman of the Day Session Student Government

I don't think that this will adversely affect the Baruch community. I believe that Mr. Rauchhi was innocent of what happened. The Bensonhurst incident comes in an array of forms because it is the fault of the past. The notorious event of the past that allow young European kids to think that they can kill people of African-American descent and will not be prosecuted to the fullest extent. Take for example the Howard Beach incident in which they killed a black kid but not in jail. But that is not the only one. There are a number of cases such as Tawana Brawley, Eleanor Dugger, Michael Stewart and now Yusuf Hawkins. You can depict the consequences of each of these cases. But it is the same situation committed by whites. First of all, the media has done white kids no justice, good kids who just made a mistake when they commit crimes. I don't think that the Bensonhurst incident is different; as savages, whites kill blacks.

LUZ A. SONNINO

Senior

I think the Bensonhurst incident is an example of how the white race is not prejudiced because a few whites beat up a black kid. As though black kids kidnap and ring whites. The media is blowing this case out of proportion because a few whites beat up a black kid. Although the black kids kidnap and ring whites. The Bensonhurst incident is an example of how the white race is not prejudiced.

JOSEPH FREEMAN

Counselor, Seek

I think race relations need improvement at Baruch so it does throughout the city. I should help us focus on this sensitive issue. I think this incident has put a stain on the whole school. In fact, I think that emphasizing the fact that Rauchhi was a Baruch student is simply deviating from the issue.

ANDREW BACCHI

Senior

I feel that it definitely affects the Baruch community. But the Bensonhurst tragedy, was a Baruch student. As you are aware, the Bensonhurst incident has caused a great deal of controversy in New York. Given the fact that one of the young men indicted (Pasquale Rauchhi) was a Baruch student, do you think that it affects the Baruch community? If so how?

... WITH

EDWARD ASANTE

Deputy Chair of the Sociology Department

I think it is made of a neighborhood situation. Our school situation. After Howard Beach, there is an increase in racism in my classroom. It might possibly show itself in ethnic organizations but not in the classroom situation. I would not say that the student is made up of all kinds, and because of this we should all learn to coexist for our mutual benefit.

Baruch College marked the start of the semester by officially welcoming the students and introducing the new faculty, staff, and administrators who make up the college. In an effort to remind the freshmen that they are part of the academic community that is sensitive to the demands placed on them as students, workers, and in some cases, parents, the president of Baruch College, Dr. John Fisher, delivered the annual address about the importance of leadership and the expectations that are placed on the students who will be attending Baruch College in the upcoming academic year.

This is not a cookie-cutter winner because of its clever title. Yes, we are not, actually planted. There are quite a few "biters" out there. (Ahem, Aaron Hall says), small that it would be difficult to expand into a full-blooded commentary, yet interesting enough to command attention.

Abdi gets over (in one Bruce Willis, Ed- en-Golden Barnes), but the fact is, the story is a little bit thin because of the duet and rap (and a lot of other dances because it's the right time for it), it's not a story of Sleazy-Macleay-Medlock-Chisholm-teams-bust-proof-the-team. balls take up a good chunk of the dance floor in the end, but like my music, "Big Daddy" is experienced and takes morethandances. (––I should play music!)

Dr. Eddy has done the Michael Martinon thing, the Prince thing and the James Brown thing in concert, yet when he goes out to do his thing, we just get rid of these labels and let music Enemy; I message? NOOOOO! We go ahead and play an integral role in making the music?

In our world of capitalism and hard sell, I feel::: Yes, we are very happy. And while I'm in the Madonna section, I wonder why jazz music and jazz dance charts on any given week is nothing else, jazz surely is African-American thing in concert, yet when he goes out to do his thing, we just get rid of these labels and let music Enemy; I message? NOOOOO! We go ahead and play an integral role in making the music?

The download of Walt Disney World was started in October 1, 1971, when Walt Disney himself opened "the park." The Magic Kingdom is the most popular theme park in the world, and it has been running smoothly for over 30 years. The Magic Kingdom has been continuously expanded, and today it covers over 100 acres. It includes seven lands: Adventureland, Liberty Square, Frontierland, Main Street, U.S.A., Fantasyland, and Tomorrowland. The park is designed to take visitors into a world of fantasy and magic.

As you enter the park, you will be greeted by the iconic Cinderella Castle, which is a symbol of the magic and wonder of the world. The castle is surrounded by a moat, and it is reflected in the water. The castle is also home to many of the characters from Disney films.

Once you have explored the castle and its surroundings, you can visit the various attractions throughout the park. Some of the most popular attractions include Space Mountain, Buzz Lightyear's Space Ranger Adventure, and the Haunted Mansion. Each attraction offers a unique experience that is sure to delight visitors of all ages.

In addition to the attractions, there are also many shows and parades throughout the day. These include the Turtle Talk with Crush, which features Crush from the Toy Story films, and the Main Street Electrical Parade, which is a nightly show featuring music and lights.

Walt Disney World is a magical place that is sure to delight visitors of all ages. Whether you are a fan of Disney films or not, you will find something to enjoy on your visit.

Who is winning in a Chicago White Sox broadcast, Don Kessinger or Les Armstrong? Did you know that a Major League baseball player cannot be traded during the month of May? Imagine key games in the pennant race, the score is tied, a home hit to drive in a potential winning run is called foul because one of the nearby fatumps can't run far enough down the line to get a good read on the ball. This scenario could happen. It shouldn't.

Toad, a 9,000 pounder, is weighing second base. A runner steals second base, and the catcher throws wildly at the plate, so the run should make third base easy. He doesn't.

Mike Right goes by the throw. This scenario can also happen. The Cubs made it happen.

'88 "Team of the Year" Tries to Repeat as CUNY CHAMPS

By STEVEN SCHEER

Ask anyone in sports and they will tell you that it is extremely tough to repeat as champions. That is the task of the Baruch Women's Tennis team. Last season they were Baruch College's "team of the year" for finishing at a super 13-0, the first Baruch team to go undefeated in a long time.

Repeating is generally tough because everyone loves to knock off the number one team. It's even tougher when you lose a couple of good players and when your schedule is tough.

Last season's success can be attributed to a few things: The team was very deep, from top to bottom, singles and doubles; most of the players attended most matches; the players played very well; and the schedule wasn't all that difficult.

This season, the team is not deep at all. Losing quality players like Jackie Sonnower and Joy Inman will definitely be a blow to the Lady Statesmen.

Also Coach Bill Eng says that the schedule will be tougher than last year's.

A bright side: the team's top two players are returning in Catherine Assimacopoulos and Orapin Loesvidhya. Assimacopoulos was brilliant last season before losing in the CUNY Conference finals. An exhausted Loesvidhya, in the CUNY Tournament, miraculously came back to capture the number two singles crown.

Also returning is number three seed Karen Cohen. Cohen often provided dramatics last season, as she had the tendency to drop the first set before coming back for the win. Cohen says that she's determined to win in straight sets this year.

The new number four seed will most probably be Sue Brooks. At this time, however, it is uncertain if Brooks will play this season.

At number five could be Anna Daniels. Daniels, amazingly, finds enough hours in a week to play tennis, bowling, go to classes and take care of a family.

Jumping to number six will be Elizabeth Lejtman. Lejtman didn't play much last season but has proved worthy of being seeded.

There will also be some new faces to the team, junior Heidi Stechman and freshmen Sophy Yong, Seriz Sonnower, Agnes He and Mandy Isui. The freshmen are good with a lot of potential, but still need time to learn the system.

On paper the team looks pretty solid, not deep, but solid. However, there are some major problems. It appears that some players will not make all of the games. Assimacopoulos has classes on Mondays and Wednesdays which means that she is lost for games on those days. Ditto for Lejtman and Stechman. Loesvidhya will be lost on Fridays and weekends due to classes.

What does this all mean? It means that players will have to play under different seedings. It seems unlikely that Assimacopoulos and Loesvidhya will attend the same matches and Brooks' season is still up in the air. Cohen may be forced to play at number one or two, and the freshman may be called into action sooner than expected.

This will no doubt be a season that will give Coach Eng some gray hairs, unless a miracle happens and everybody shows up to games and the first-year players play well.

Due to the uncertainty of the players, the doubles pairings have not yet been made.

What does Coach Eng have to say about the upcoming season, which begins on Sept. 13 at (Division I team) St. Francis? "We have good players, but the bottom players don't have the experience like last year... depth was the difference last year."

After St. Francis, the home opener will be on Sept. 15 against an improved Ramapo College.

Nobody said it was easy being number one!
