CUNY Attempts to Control Clubs' Spending Through New Guidelines

By Rafael A. Martinez

The Board of Trustees for the City University of New York have implemented new fiscal guidelines affecting the way student organizations plan events and spend money.

According to Carl Aylman, director of Student Activities, the changes to the CUNY bylaws, which affect student activities facets, were probably made in indirect response to the University Student Senate scandal, involving excessive spending and the City College concert stampede, which caused nine deaths. In changing the bylaws, new fiscal guidelines had to be established.

"The director made the chancellor promulgate, under the bylaws, a new fiscal accountability handbook. The last such handbook came out in 1984 with the last revision in 1988 but it hasn't substantially changed since the 1984 edition," said Aylman.

The handbook contains the rules on how clubs and student organizations throughout the school spend money and set up events.

CUNY's office of Internal Audit issued a draft of the new fiscal accountability handbook in April and distributed it to all the colleges for comment. We were then told that we should bring all of our operations into compliance with the new guidelines, added Aylman.

"So over the summer Pam Mitchell, treasurer of the Student accounting services, and I started reviewing. We changed everything: signature cards, club registration cards, and new request vouchers, etc.," said Aylman.

He added that the most significant change in procedure was the prior approval of purchases in excess of $250.

"In the past we only required prior approval of purchases over $1,500. CUNY guidelines reduced that to a much lower level so that there was a review procedure at a much earlier point in the process," said Aylman.

The key thing to all of this is that there is a desire and intent that better communications (between students, administration, and security) go on all over the college about events that are going on which is the reason for the prior approval process," added Aylman.

According to the fiscal guidelines, in order for the clubs to purchase anything between the $251 and $499 they must receive three verbal bids. In the $500 to $1,000 range they need five written bids. Anything above $1,000 needs the approval of the Associate Dean of Students and $10,000 and above requires a formal contract.

Simon Herelle, President of the Day Session Student Government, said the new guidelines would put pressure on the clubs to find three vendors for bids on expenditures over $250. It would "increase paper work four to five times what it is" and "would hope that the $250 guideline would evaporate into the system," added Herelle.

Despite Budget Cuts, Enrollment Hasn't Changed

By Kathryn Garcia

Enrollment for the Fall 1992 semester at Baruch increased by 2.5 percent in total new students, according to enrollment and admissions director of Liberal Arts.

Of the 15,291 students attending Baruch, 3,316 of them are freshmen and transfer students, and compared to Fall 1991 figures, which makes it only a difference of 86 students.

According to Thomas P. McCarthy, director of enrollment services and senior Registrar, registration went well this year, until the last two weeks of freshmen registration.

"Freshmen had a more difficult time registering, because by the time they came to register the number of available sections were fewer in the School of Liberal Arts."

Overall, there are 200 fewer sections available this year than last year. But the lack of sections or the cuts in the sections were handled, conveyed McCarthy. "President Matthew Goldstein was able to make available some additional funding to add in sections," said McCarthy.

In addition several sections were doubled, class limits were raised and "jumbo sections," which include about 80 students in a class, were created. The Faculty Lounge on the 9th floor of 155 East 24 St. was turned into a classroom to handle the "jumbo" sections.

McCarthy believes that the budget cuts were "very drastic" in terms of the decrease in administration. "The number of students hasn't decreased but there are fewer people doing the same amount of work."

The Office of Admissions, Financial Aid and Registrar lost a total of nine people. And the Office of Career Services, which places Baruch graduates in the work-force, has been gradually cut in the last few years from a staff of 14 administrators and aids to less than six. "The result of this means that there is less staff for student counseling and less staff to organize the schedules and attend to the companies that come here to recruit," according to Richard Brody, Director of Career Services.

The increase of tuition has also brought in an increase in the number of deferments, up by 20 percent, which according to McCarthy was "across the spectrum."

Mohua Makkahophidy, freshman, says "I spent four and a half to five long and strenuous hours," registering, "Why prepare your schedule at home? I revised my schedule 3 times. I thought it would be less strenuous."

Linda Lim, also a freshman, describes registration as, "a pain in the ass." She says she spent "six long hours" in line only to change her schedule six different times.

15,291 Points Of Light

Greetings everyone, and welcome back to a new year of your student services and educational support. This year, though, is going to be a very tough one for us. Enrollment has increased by 25 percent in total new students while the college has lost $4.5 million in funding compared to last year. The decrease in funding and the increase in students has already led to job cuts of 20 students, 200 fewer positions, and the closure of several departments. This will lead to longer waits for students who need to speak to their counselors or need to get their transcripts.

We are not sitting at the student's side, as evidenced by President Mathew Goldstein's letter. It is not really a situation that we can experience. Also, since thanks to all students, we should take a moment to thank the president for his effort. In fact, water tourism was more than triple the number of the previous year.

To the President

As President of the Daytime Student Government, I would like to express my concern for the cuts in staff for career counseling and admissions. These cuts will lead to longer waits for students who need to speak to their counselors or need to get their transcripts. We need to take full advantage of the limited resources at our fingertips and, to the best of our ability, we must work within the constraints of the budget. We need to be able to adjust to a new, graduate and a career.

Greetings From the Top

To the Editor

As President of the Daytime Student Government, I would like to express my concern for the cuts in staff for career counseling and admissions. These cuts will lead to longer waits for students who need to speak to their counselors or need to get their transcripts. In fact, water tourism was more than triple the number of the previous year.

The goal is to ease the students' suffering, as evidenced by President Matthew Goldstein's letter. It is not really a situation that we can experience. Also, since thanks to all students, we should take a moment to thank the president for his effort. In fact, water tourism was more than triple the number of the previous year.

The Ticker

Students, Reach Out And Vote!

To the Editor

This election year will mark the 50th anniversary of the 26th Amendment. This Amendment promises that all students, 18 and older, have the right to vote. But since the passage of that Amendment, few young voters have been exercising that right. As a result, we are losing out on the American political system.

In 1992, 98 percent of college students registered to vote was 52 percent. But not even of all of those registered students vote. In the last election only 26 percent of registered voters and attending college went to the polls and voted. If we had not sent all of our student voters to the polls, this election would have vastly different outcomes. In the last past year, our student financial aid has been reduced and our student federal government has turned into student federal loans. Issues that directly affect our lives are being denied without our input.

Do so: These percentage points were calculated in the college's card catalogue. There is a card index, but not all cards are in alphabetical order. Do not use them if you do not care about future. Thank you.

God Help These Fools

By K.C. Steele

Is it possible to be pro-life and still support the practice of abortion? Well, yes, but only in the most exceptional of cases. The issue is far more complex than it appears.

The first act that must be taken is by the thinking person. To invalidate the foremost cause of death, possibly even more than the second, is the act of abortion. It is not to be left to the decision of the sisters alone, it is that of men and women.

Therefore, let us do our part.

Abortion is not a woman's issue or a man's, but it is an issue of society. The results of abortion are not limited to the woman who chooses to have an abortion. It is a reflection of the society which allows and supports this practice.

Abortion is a moral issue, it is a human rights issue,

and it is an issue of the health and well-being of the unborn.

Dr. Geoffrey K. S. 图

It needs to be addressed, not

For the Republicans, abortion may be a major dividing issue in the election even though the debate over the issue has diminished in recent years. There are many pro-choice re-presentatives willing to compromise. And if that's not enough, they can always blame it on an issue but Barbara Bush, abortion is never an issue.

The Democrats favor abortion under three cases: choice. Isn't that convenient. Isnt that convenient. It's not. It's a choice. Women should be able to choose if they want to have abortions, and the government should be able to pay for it, and that's what will happen.

The Democratic favor three cases: one, if the mother's life is in danger; two, if the child is not viable; and three, if the pregnancy is the result of rape or incest. If Americans, being notorious for their abortion, could be used to pay for good moderate causes, fiscal re-

The other option is to allow people the legal right to abortion. But the government doesn't have the right to override the decision of women in cases of rape or incest. It's a legal right, it's a human right, it's a fundamental right. So, women should be able to choose if they want to have abortions, and the government should be able to pay for it, and that's what will happen.

The party that solves this issue of coverage for all Americans will be discussed in the same way Roosevelt's "New Dealers" are discussed today.

Moving Up with Retail Trade

By Dahlia Nicolson

As the fall semester commences, the officers and members of the Retail Trade Society, hoping to offer interesting and educational speaker programs benefitting the top executives in the Retail and Sales industry. This year, Bloomgarden’s, Macy’s, The Gap and Foot Locker also filled the part-time job opportunities in Retail and Sales field with students who, I believe, are highly qualified. Internships opportunities are also being negotiated at these companies.

Retail Trade Society is by no means just another club. It has been a popular source of successful fashion shows beginning with its first Annual Fashion Show, "Back to Life," at the Palladium, followed by the second, "Fashion Take 2." The third, this year, was held at the Red Fox, and is most likely the most successful show. We had three floors and ten retail themes set up for judging. The theme for October 3, was "Harvest," with an entry of approximately six hundred. These themes are:

A Fashionable: The purpose of Golden Key is to: • recognize the highest intellectual achievements • encourage students, faculty, and alumni to cooperate in developing scholarship activity • promote an interest in all fields of undergraduate study. • provide an opportunity for students to meet outstanding members through annual conventions • promote scholastic achievement and altruistic conduct through varied service activities • build a tradition that will make new people and have fun. Some of the programs that we take part in are: "Golden Key at Your School," "American Beauty," "Drunk and Alcohol Abuse Prevention Program," "Promote," and our Literacy Program, "Reading America." Our Literacy Project is directed at children and their parents, many of whom are reticent to participate in the reading program, which we are the highlights of our presentation.

Getting Keyed Up About Golden Key

By A. Katsimatides

We present the highest ideals and goals to the execution and completion of our activities, projects and duties because we strive to grow beyond our limits and to advance in our activities more meaningful, more representative of the community we serve and more enjoyable. Our chapter was able to return to the student and the community the true purpose of education, the students, with this motivation, we actually did not feel even with a dollar, our accomplishments would still be at a high level of excellence. This was the reason the Baruch chapter of the Golden Key National Honor Society was awarded a "Key Chapter" award at the 1992 National Convention in Huntington, Arizona, recognizing the organization, considering that it was attained the highest key chapter for winning the "Best New Chapter" award in 1991. We are very proud to have been recognized at the national level for two consecutive years since our chapter at Baruch was chartered in 1990.

The Golden Key National Honor Society is a non-profit academic honors organization. It was founded at George Washington University in 1917. The society has 15 chapters 209 in 27 countries and 550,000 members, 4,200 campus representatives and over 100,000 scholarships. These names are growing each year.

The purpose of Golden Key is to: • recognize and encourage scholastic achievement and excellence in all fields of undergraduate study. • provide an opportunity for students to meet outstanding members through annual conventions • promote scholastic achievement and altruistic conduct through varied service activities • build a tradition that will make new people and have fun. "Buff the Vampire Slayer" is a return to the movie genre that he created in the 70's. He is known for his witty dialogue and his unique take on the vampire theme. The latest addition to this genre is "Buffy the Vampire Slayer".

In 1992, there were various films that contributed to the growth of the movie genre, including "The Lost Boys" and "The Blues Brothers". However, the biggest contributor to the growth of the movie genre was "Buffy the Vampire Slayer".

The movie is set in the present day and revolves around the life of Buffy Summers (Sarah Michelle Gellar), a high school student who becomes a vampire hunter. The story follows her as she deals with the challenges of being a teenager and a vampire hunter.

The movie features a talented cast, including Alyson Hannigan, Nicholas Brendon, James Marsters, and Charisma Carpenter. The performances of the actors are excellent, and they bring the characters to life.

The movie is visually stunning, with beautiful sets and costumes that help to create a sense of atmosphere. The special effects are also well done, and they add to the overall experience.

In conclusion, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is a must-see movie for anyone who enjoys the movie genre. The movie is engaging, entertaining, and visually stunning. It is a movie that will keep you on the edge of your seat from start to finish.

Something Old, But Something Very New

By: Roberta Runyan

This summer, we were blessed with the release of "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" on the WB network. The show has been a huge success, and the music from the show has been a major factor in its success.

The music from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is incredible. It features a mix of rock, pop, and alternative music, and it captures the essence of the show perfectly. The music is catchy, and it helps to set the tone for each episode.

One of the best things about the music from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is the diversity of the artists featured. There are artists from all over the world, including the UK, Canada, and the US.

The music from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is not just good music, it is also good entertainment. It is the perfect way to wind down after a long day and enjoy some good music.

So, if you haven't seen "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" yet, be sure to check it out. And if you have seen it, be sure to check out the music. It is the perfect way to enjoy the show.
