Student Activities Face Major Cuts

Fees hikes may be solution

By Rafael A. Olmeda

Faced with a projected $80,000 cut, its largest ever, the Student Center Board budget for next year includes proposals for major reductions in programming that could jeopardize the Student Center Program Board, Evening and Graduate Student Programming, and Leadership Training Weekend, all of which have no funding proposed.

Carl Aylman, director of Student Life, traced the budget crisis to what he called a two-year delay on a working decision about cost sharing, a delay which has forced the Student Center to pay for the Accounting Unit, cancel Street Fair, and staff completing a paint job indefinitely.

Programming and services will be cut by $50,000 of the $80,000 cut, with the rest coming out of supplies, repairs, and capital expenses. "There can be no preventive infrastructure improvements now," said Aylman. Furniture and unusable will be replaced, and only $2,000 is allocated for repairs for the year.

In previous years, Aylman said, infrastructure improvements were paid for by budget surpluses. In fact, even after cutting nearly $70,000 from its proposed expenditures, the Student Center still faces an $11,000 deficit.

There are three ways to make up for the $11,000 deficit, according to Aylman. One is to borrow against leftover money from club budgets, a risky option that counts on clubs not spending all of their allocated funds and defers the problem for another year. Another way to meet the deficit is for the Student Center to charge students more than their current rate. Aylman raised the subject of charging club fees, but added that "in the Student Center a small rent, something he said he'd rather not do. The only thing

New Provost Has Busy First Semester

By Farah Gely

Since her appointment by President Matthew Goldstein, which became effective on August 1, 1992, Provost and vice president for Academic Affairs Lois Cronholm has accomplished many feats in her short tenure at Baruch.

After her appointment, Goldstein went on in a statement through the Office of College Advancement: "I am confident that she will bring vitality and strong leadership to the academic programs at Baruch."

Cronholm, who comes to Baruch from Temple University of Pennsylvania, where she was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, is responsible for the "orderly organization of academic programs" at the college. Cronholm describes her job as "primarily dealing with faculty, department chairs and deans." Her duties include the overseeing of curriculum and anything having to do with academic advising.

Under her guidance, Baruch has started its "most comprehensive review of academic services for students."

This review includes: tutoring, the removal of course levels and all non-classroom activities, which Cronholm feels "can be so important to the success of students."

The Office of the Provost is currently retrieving data and gathering a survey on class scheduling. "We would like to consider which changes we might make in the Baruch schedule that would benefit our student's needs," said Cronholm. By the end of the spring semester, Cronholm is hoping to have a pilot schedule, with the proposed new hours included in the Fall '93 semester.

The new schedule will be based on students response to the questionnaire that was circulated during registration. The questionnaire was "to get more information on when they [students] get classes," said Cronholm.

Cronholm has set up a task force to consider changes in housing. "The current"

Government Spending: Is it Excessive?

News Analysis

By Leon Headley

In the past, student government has felt that the Student Services Accounting Unit has not spent student money (student activity fees) on a clerical assistant for the executive committee (president, vice president, treasurer, and secretary). In many cases this has led to perceptions by students that the assistant was not fully utilized or had been hired simply because it was a "waste money" position.

This year, for the first time, the Student Services Accounting Unit has been held accountable for the use of student fees by the Student Senate. The Senate has authorized a review of all expenditures by the unit to ensure that all fees are used for the benefit of students.

The review includes a detailed examination of all expenses, including supplies, repairs, and capital expenditures. The Senate hopes to see a report by the end of the year that will provide a clear picture of how student fees are being spent.

The Senate has also asked the unit to provide regular updates on its spending habits. This will help ensure that student fees are being used as intended and that the unit is being held accountable for its expenditures.

The Senate believes that by holding the Student Services Accounting Unit accountable for its spending habits, student fees will be used more wisely and effectively. The Senate hopes that other units will follow its lead and be held accountable for their expenditures.

Student Life Under Attack, Again!

Question: What's the difference between Baruch College and high school? Answer: None, according to many people. However, the task of organizing all of this falls squarely on the shoulders of the three student divisions' student governments: the DSSG, the ESSA, and the GSA.

Evening students (with increases in each of the student division fees must be done separately. In other words, there is no across the board increase in these fees. For only a couple of extra dollars a semester, we, the students, can save the student life on campus.

To accomplish such an increase is through a referendum. To get a referendum on this May's ballot, a draft of the referendum must be submitted to the Student Elections and Governance Review Committee by March 15. After the committee approves the referendum, signatures of 10% of the student body must be collected by March 25 to get on the ballot. The referendum must then be approved by a majority of the votes cast in the May 3-6 elections. However, you think it would be easy, the trick is, increases in each of the student division fees must be done separately. In other words, there needs to be a series of referenda (with 10% of the student signatures), one for evening students (with 10% of evening students' signatures), one for graduate students (with 10%... well, you get the idea). The summer session is treated as one division, so it needs 10% of the summer students' signatures. To do all of this requires the combined efforts of a great many people. However, the task of organizing all of this falls squarely on the shoulders of the three student divisions' student governments: the DSSG, the ESSA, and the GSA. This is something that the student leadership needs to prove their worth. We wish them the best of luck!

Other solutions currently under consideration such as charging against unspent club funds which is a not likely because clubs have to spend all of their money before the academic year ends and the remaining funds will be returned to the student government. Charging clubs rent for their permanent club rooms in the Student Center will raise very little funds and are merely stopgap measures, and don't address the main issue: there is not enough student life on campus. The creation and passing of the referrals are the only way to have an almost dead student life at Baruch.

Let's face it, commuting isn't really conducive to a vibrant campus life. Student clubs and organizations help to fill the gap, but ultimately, it is the Student Center that comes through with many of the most popular events and programs of the school year. From Leadership Weekend to Street Fair, the staff of the Student Center contributes greatly to student life on campus.

If the proposal gets through, however, all of these programs (and more) will go the way of free tuition. But who cares anyway? The free movies that the SSCP shows only contribute to the growing Center. And why do students and graduate students need services anyway? And Street Fair is just an excuse to close off 22nd Street so that a couple of thousand students can get together and have a good time. Who cares? We do! And so do a great many students of Baruch.

It is now time for Baruch's students to show that they care. Between budget cuts and the constant eroding effect of inflation, new or additional sources of revenue must be found. The only realistic source for such revenue is an increase in the student activity fee. Other than a new allocation last year for the child care center, the various student activity fees (day, evening, graduate, and summer) have not been raised in several years. It is time for an across the board increase in these fees. For only a couple of extra dollars a semester, we, the students, can save the student life on campus.

The seeds that were sown in Eden, my Garden of Paradise, were born out of your womb. It must have been with pleasure that I was the Sun who warmed you and our children. You were the Earth who received the seeds that I implanted in you and created a life of heavenly bliss. The Most High.

Abraham K. Homan

One of the more disturbing stories in recent years has been the racial attacks that have not only occurred at surrounding American college campuses, but also at the Baruch campus. The attacks have come in the form of racist graffiti, verbal attacks, and even physical assaults. One of the most recent attacks occurred on December 10, 1992, when a number of students were targeted with racist graffiti. The graffiti was written in black ink on a wall that "we're going to do something" was written on it. The graffiti was not only offensive, but it was also promoted by a write-up that was published in an article titled "Anti-Discrimination League of College Students". The article was written by a Mr. Herelle, who is a member of the Board of Directors of the Student Center Association which oversees the Auxiliary Enterprises Corporation.

Second, during DSSG's December 9, 1992 meeting a motion was passed by a 13-0-vote to impose a $7.00-jacket subsidy for each of the 16 members of DSSG, for a grand total of $1,680 (should all 24 members decide to order a jacket. As an officially recorded, the minutes read: "All DSSG members' jackets will be subsidized 25 percent by DSSG on one condition: that the jacket be purchased through the Auxiliary Enterprises Corporation."

Third, Mr. Herelle made reference to an argument I had with DSSG regarding the president's role in the Street Fair. I stated that DSSG had no role in the Street Fair. I was never told that DSSG had no role in the Street Fair. I was never told that Mr. Herelle should know better since he is a member of the Board of Directors of the Student Center Association which oversees the Auxiliary Enterprises Corporation.

Since 1988, reaching a high last year of 141 incidents in 97 institutions, editorial. Participative empirical reality or real-world events is not isolated problems but that these are not isolated problems and that our insensitivity to traditional "ivory-tower havens" for they are nothing of the kind and probably never were. The casting aside of these (citizens needs to several specific recommendations for action. One such action is the proposal, and I include have faculty, students and staff involved in the process. But the converse is true: if we have taken refuge from both our realities and the academic jargon which has little meaning or real-world significance the best provides for a nation so that we can do anything.

Paradise Lost

By Shamsheed Suprah Allah

What is most important is the integrity of our governmental procedures (and related issues). I stated that DSSG had no role in the Street Fair. I was never told that it was with pleasure that I was the Sun who warmed you and our children. You were the Earth who received the seeds that I implanted in you and created a life of heavenly bliss. The Most High.

Shamsheed Suprah Allah

We were able to accomplish this because we were both raised in the image of the Holy Father. Since the dawn of history, I, as the original son and King of My Father's kingdom, have been faced with this challenge. Over His creation in righteousness, over the Ilahi, my Father, my Garden of Paradise, over the world and our world and the world that we built together. The result you, my earthly paradise, turned into a pit ofhell. Pain and suffering is caused by the power that the"I" words that reveal the narcissists hold over the rest of the world, our soul, our minds steal the light of wisdom and the shining light of our little children. These devils then...

Pioneer Program at Baruch

By Edith Fechmer

January 19, 1993 was a big day at Baruch for new international students. A special orientation sponsored by Golden Key National Honor Society and the Office of Student Development, took place. The program was held in International Students Association’s new offices in 15-15. Students were welcomed to New York with a bagel and coffee and then given a short orientation to help them adjust. They were informed about the services of the International Student Office, and were given their brochures and catalogues to help them understand foreign environments. Language did not seem to be a barrier.

Baruch College Golden Key, Vice President of Student Development, Samuel Johnson, extended the orientation to welcome the students and make them feel more comfortable. Several Baruch students shared their long time experiences with the new students. They gave them some good starting advices, encouraged them to become active in extracurricular activities and get involved. They also offered insights on the process of adapting to their new culture, and the school system.

One of the most important things that the students were taught was the proper use of the school’s resources. They were told that the library is a great place to start, and they were encouraged to make use of its many resources. They were also advised to take advantage of the many student organizations on campus, and to get involved in extracurricular activities.

Another thing that was stressed was the importance of networking and making friends. The students were encouraged to get involved and make new friends. The people who run orientation take their time to help newly arrived students feel more comfortable in their new environment. They were quoted an evaluation of new students’ experiences. One student said, “I’ve been here for a long time, and I’ve never felt more comfortable in my new environment.”

You can help! You can make a difference! You can save a life. Give blood today!
What's Bug'n U?

By Maria V. Perez

Hello dear reader! I've been greatly amazed at the increase in insect infestations in my area and have noticed that my plants do not seem to be doing so well. I've been searching for a way to control the infestations and I've found a solution that seems to be working quite well. Here are some tips for controlling insect infestations in your garden:

1. Identify the pests: Knowing what the pests are is the first step in controlling them. It's important to identify the pests so you can choose the right method to control them.
2. Get rid of the pests: There are many methods for controlling pests, such as using insecticides, predators, and parasites. Choose the method that is best for your garden.
3. Keep your garden healthy: A healthy garden is less likely to be attacked by pests. Make sure your garden is healthy by providing the right conditions for growth.

If you have any questions or need further assistance, please feel free to contact me. I'm always here to help!

Do you want to look trendy and stylish without breaking the bank? Then check out these tips for dressing on a budget:

1. Shop second-hand: Thrift stores and consignment shops are great places to find affordable clothing. You can score some amazing deals on gently used clothing.
2. Invest in basics: A good pair of jeans, a little black dress, or a classic blazer are essential wardrobe staples that will last you for years.
3. Mix and match: Don't be afraid to mix and match pieces from different stores. Create your own unique style.

Remember, dressing well doesn't have to be expensive. With these tips, you can look fashionable and stylish on a budget.

Faux? Fur-it!

By Steven Corn Furs

The fur industry is under attack by animal activists, but many people still love wearing fur. I'm here to tell you that there's nothing wrong with loving fur. Here are some reasons why:

1. Fur is sustainable: Fur is a renewable resource that can help to reduce our carbon footprint. Many furriers are taking steps to be more sustainable, such as using recycled materials.
2. Fur is not cruel: Furriers are required to follow strict animal welfare standards, and the animals are treated humanely.
3. Fur is versatile: Fur can add a touch of elegance and style to any outfit, and it's a timeless fashion staple.

I hope you will join me in supporting the fur industry and wearing fur with pride.

If you have any questions or need further assistance, please feel free to contact me. I'm always here to help!

If you wanted the perfect point guard he should be quick, creative, and smart. He should average about 18 points a game, 8-9 assists, and rebound a little. If you're thinking "Yesh!" I think Kenny Anderson of the New Jersey Nets. Pound for pound the most talented and exciting point guard in the NBA. I know John Stockton and Kevin Johnson are great but Kenny is 21 years old! Shrink Magic Johnson down to six foot one and you've got Kenny. No look passes, a nice left hand jump shot, great penetration skills and an exciting style of play (which the Nets haven't seen since Michael Ray Richardson) are all part of his game. Speaking of the Nets, within the next 2 years this will be New York's team. Patrick Ewing and company won't be able to keep up with New York's team. Boxing

Riddick Bowe is boxing heavy-weight champion of the world. No ifs, ands, or buts. As Riddick likes to say "I best the man who beat the man who beat the man." But dude what's the deal with Michael Dokes. I mean it looks like the guy needed a kickstand just to stand up in the ring. Dokes is a walking advertisement to why kids shouldn't do drugs. Is this the best you can do Riddick? You don't have to fight Lennox Lewis just yet. Make a couple of bucks but at least fight a Tommy Morrison or George Foreman, not some washed up club fighter. Speaking of Lennox Lewis, shut up you big baby. You are not champion of anything you big garbage picking, Frank Bruno. British wannabe, crybaby. You want to fight Riddick you've got to do it to his terms and if he says no you're out of luck. "Nuff said."

As the D.E.'s from F.R.I.D.E. would say "Riddick you the man."

Knicks should trade forward Charles Oakley for Hubert Davis or Washington Bullets forward Harvey Grant.

Why: Bullets get a banger in Oakley to teach rookies forward Tom Gugliotta how to play tough N.B.A. ball and in Davis they get a promising rookie should be able to correct their mistake in trading Jeff Malone two years ago.

Why: Knicks finally get Harvey Grant, a player they tried to sign as a free agent. Grant could score 16 points and get 8 rebounds a game in the Knicks methodical offense. It also allows Pat Riley to put Charles Smith on the bench where he could be a valuable sixth man with his versatility.

Yankees should trade second baseman Pat Kelly and relief pitcher John Habyan to the Chicago Cubs for Red Sox catcher Tony Pena.

Why: Yankees need a veteran catcher to handle their young and talented pitching staff. Pena is still a sound defensive catcher who can still hit about .240 with a little pop. It also allows the Yankees to make a full time designated hitter of Matt Nokas.

Why: Boston is in really bad shape. They have no relief pitching, a horrible infield defense, and are a very old team. Kelly gives them superb defense and youth while Habyan gives them a solid arm out of the bullpen. They also have two veteran catchers in John Marzano and Bob Melvin to replace Pena.

Jets should sign free-agent defensive end Reggie White.

Why: Well I know its not a trade but it's the best move the Jets can make. Reggie White is an unrestricted free agent and arguably the best defensive player in the N.F.L.

The Jets have an exciting young team but very little veteran leadership. Reggie would bring instant respect to an injury riddled defense. With Dennis Byrd's career ending injury and Jeff Lagemann coming off of major surgery the Jets need a stud like Reggie. The Jets could expect about 14 sacks and a pass rush not seen since the days of Gstrand and Kielko. Figure it would take an 8.5 million dollar three year contract to get him signed.

If you have any trades that you would like to see happen drop a line to the Ticker in room 307 of the Student Center. Make sure you explain why the trade should happen and how the teams could benefit.
